SEN. ROBINSON ADMITS FEAR OF U. S. INSOLVENCY

Warns Against Dole Continuation.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate and administration spokesman in congress, startled the senate today with an admission that unless the enormous recovery expenditures are curtailed the country will be brought face to face with national bankruptcy.

JOSEPH T. ROBINSON.

The senator was discussing the 950 million dollar appropriation for continuation until May of the Civil Works Administration, which furnishes a camouflaged dole for four million unemployed persons. The President hopes that reviving industry and government financed public works will absorb most of the CWA army before summer. Otherwise congress, before adjourning, will appropriate 1 or 2 billions more to maintain the dole till after the November elections, when senators and representatives will need votes.

In Line with Warnings.

The note of alarm sounded openly for the first time by one of the key men of the administration is in line with the undersurface warnings, reputed to have been uttered by Budget Director Douglas, that any material increase in expenditure beyond the budget estimates so far transmitted to congress will compel the government to resort to issuance of printing press money to pay its bills. That would signalize an inflation of the currency which might easily get out of control as it did in Germany in the early twenties.

Senator Robinson was endeavoring to persuade the senate to recede from its amendment to the CWA appropriation bill prescribing that CWA state directors should be appointed by the President and confirmed by the senate. He thought such provision would tend to perpetuate the CWA.

Rejected by House.

The house has rejected the senate amendment flatly. Until the two bodies agree on the terms of the bill there will be no money to pay the CWA. Harry Hopkins, CWA administrator, said today his till is empty and that he will need 45 millions for the pay roll Saturday. He also is holding up until the bill is passed the appointment of a new CWA administration for Illinois.

"I make the assertion in the presence of the senate," said Sen. Robinson, "that senators are attempting to get into their hands a white elephant they would be mighty glad to get rid of after they had tried to manage it. If senators think that the policy in force of gradually disorganizing the Civil Works Administration is wrong—that they can avoid complaint—they are greatly mistaken. The policy is gradually to reduce this force, and the time is coming when we are going to have to do it or find some new methods of planning for it."

"Is not the whole matter rather a white elephant we are all going to have trouble in getting rid of?" asked Senator W. M. Logan [Dem., Ky.].

Must Cut Expenditures.

"There is no doubt about that," replied Sen. Robinson. "I unhesitatingly say that in the expenditure of enormous sums for various forms of relief we are gradually approaching the time when we are going to ask ourselves the question, How are we going to get the money to carry it on? We are also going to ask ourselves the question, How is it possible to discontinue the expenditure?"

Senator Robinson said the appointment provision would embarrass efficient administration of the CWA.

"It would follow, from the senator's argument," interposed Senator Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.], "that the statute which requires that postmasters be confirmed, and that clerks be confirmed, and that other public officials be confirmed should be repealed because certainly the secretary of the treasury, the postmaster gen

Factor Identifies 2 More Kidnapers

Puts Finger on Banghart and Costner

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—John Factor of Chicago, tonight identified Basil [the Owl] Banghart, and Isaac Costner as two members of the Touhy gang which kidnaped him last summer. Factor paid $70,000 for his release.

The identification of the two additional kidnapers is thus made on the day when, in Chicago, the second trial of Roger Touhy and two other pals begins. Both Banghart and Costner are recognized members of the Touhy gang.

The victim himself made the announcement of the identification as, surrounded by a bodyguard, he emerged from the office of Detective Captain J. H. Mintiens here. Right behind Factor was Capt. Daniel A. Gilbert and Sergeants Charles Pribyl and Harry O'Connell of the Chicago district attorney's office.

"Are you sure they are the men?" a newspaper man of a group of twenty asked.

"Yes, they are the men; I have identified them."

Factor was firm and determined. There was no smile on his face and there was no tremor in his frame as he stood in a flood of flashlights as cameras clicked.

In Private Conference.

"I can't say anything else now."

Factor had been advised against further discussion of the case by Baltimore district attorneys and detectives, who throughout the day were in communication with District Attorney Courtney of Chicago.

For forty minutes Factor and Ike Costner were virtually closeted alone in the office of Detective Captain Mintiens. At the door, which was ajar, sat two Baltimore detectives. Outside another door, which was closed within half an inch, stood other detectives and Capt. Gilbert.

Later district attorneys and detectives entered the office and sat in with Factor and Costner. It was explained by Chicago and Baltimore detectives that it was deliberately planned to have Factor meet Costner alone.

The reason? Well, when Factor was a prisoner in the Chicago hideout of the kidnapers Costner was his head guard. They got to know each other pretty well, Factor said.

Shake Hands on Meeting.

Although Factor's eyes were bandaged, he asserted here tonight that he would know Costner's voice. Factor was emphatic in identifying the voice. And he positively identified Banghart's voice and his general features, according to Captain Mintiens.

Factor and Costner shook hands when they met. Costner was virtually alone in the office when suddenly the door opened slowly and Factor walked in.

Factor, well groomed and wearing a $150 green fleece coat, took a seat and talked with Costner for nearly three-quarters of an hour. Details of the conversation were not disclosed, but it was said the two men discussed Factor's kidnap experience and the conversations which the two men held together when Costner was Factor's jailer.

Guarded by three Chicago detectives, the speculator arrived in Baltimore tonight by plane from Washington, where he had flown from Chicago.

"Costner," the Illinoisian asserted, "was my head guard while I was

HOW HE OUSTED INSULLS TOLD BY M'CULLOCH

Denounces Middle West Management.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Charles A. McCulloch, "the man with the punch," whom the Continental Illinois bank nominated to curb the domineering Samuel Insull as his co-receiver in the Middle West Utilities company, told a vivid story yesterday of the blows he struck that drove Insull into exile.

C. A. McCULLOCH. [Toloff Photo.]

Defends His Receivership.

Mr. McCulloch took the stand to defend his own receivership of Middle West, the annulment of which is asked by Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson on the charge that there was collusion between Insull and the banks. He was questioned successively by Attorney Henry I. Green, conducting the hearing as friend of the court, and by Mr. Ettelson, who stated in the record that he and the receiver had been friends for 20 years.

Agreeing with Ettelson's previous charge that under Insull the billion dollar utilities holding company was merely a brokerage house, the rugged McCulloch went further and asserted that it was "a bucket shop."

"When I discovered Martin Insull's abstraction of securities to cover his own brokerage accounts and asked him for his resignation I told him, of all the rotten managements I had even seen, he had it on the world," the receiver said. "The [illegible] was a $3,000,000 employes' investment account, built up from the savings not only of officials but of wage earner employes, such as linemen, and the Insulls had sunk it in stocks which today are worthless."

Calls It "Bucket Shop."

The witness passed a hand over his jutting chin as he reflected on the sorry condition he had uncovered in Middle West, which led to indictment of Samuel, Martin, and Samuel Insull Jr., and the elder Insull's flight to Greece.

"When I think of what happened to that employes' investment account I have to agree with what Senator Ettelson said when he called it a brokerage house," McCulloch rumbled. "Yes, I'll go further and say it was a bucket shop. And if Samuel Insull had a spark of manhood left of the great courage they say he had, he would take the first boat back and give protection to his son, who is carrying the whole load."

Praises Samuel Insull Jr.

As for Insull Jr., who buried his young wife yesterday, the receiver pronounced him "a fine boy," adding at another point that it would have been better for all if Junior's uncle, Martin, "had never been born." Martin Insull is fighting extradition from Canada.

Samuel Insull's concern was for preservation of his own power and Martin's from the day he, McCulloch, and a third receiver, the late Edward N. Hurley, took charge of Middle West, Mr. McCulloch said. Under questioning of Attorney Green, Mr. McCulloch admitted that Herman Waldeck, vice president of the Continental bank, had suggested him for the post.

There was a conference in court chambers, he recalled, where Judge Lindley instructed him and Mr. Hurley that if they turned out to be Insull's "yes men" both would be discharged. He, Hurley, and Insull then left for the Middle West offices at 20 Wacker drive, the witness said.

"We sat down at a directors' table,

BIBLE READING MARATHON TO BEGIN TONIGHT

A Bible reading marathon will be held in Zion beginning tonight and continuing until the holy book has been read through, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. Finis J. Dake, pastor of the Christian Assembly church, in which the affair will be staged. Loud speakers have been erected in the church and outside the building, through which the reading will be broadcast.

"We are doing this merely as a good Christian act," said Rev. Mr. Dake. "One can't read or hear the words of the Good Book too often. Certainly it is much more sensible than the walkathons, flag pole sitting, and marathon tests of almost every ridiculous description that are going on every day."

Following the regular church services this evening, Rev. Mr. Dake will begin reading from the King James version of the Bible and will continue until 2 a. m., when his place in the pulpit will be taken by O. E. Sluttz, a painter. At 4 a. m. another member of the congregation, Orville Archibald, will take up the task. Rev. Mr. Dake said he expected others to volunteer to read for several hours each. He predicted it would take four days to read the 31,175 verses in the Bible. There are 1,189 chapters and 733,746 words in the 66 books of the Old and New Testaments.

PANCAKE TOSSING CEREMONY GOES OFF 'GOLD BASIS'

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Because of the heavy flow of gold to the United States, no gold sovereign could be found for the winner of the traditional ceremony of tossing the pancake at Westminster school today, Shrove Tuesday, the hallowed "pancake day."

Instead, the dean of Westminster presented an "I. O. U." to the boy who obtained the largest piece in the scramble for a pancake tossed by a school girl.

The first pancake landed on a spectator's bald head, so a second was tossed.

Sends Extortion Note to Dad; Goes to Prison

Eau Claire, Wis., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Leonard Raether, 20, was sentenced to two years in the Green Bay reformatory when he pleaded guilty to sending an extortion note to his father, Ferdinand Raether, Ludington, farmer. In the note he demanded $75 on the threat of "using your son's .32 revolver, which I now have, on myself."

Farley to Bare His Evidence of Mail Fraud

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Other news of air mail developments on pages 3 and 4.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—In defense of his drastic order annulling the air mail contracts, Postmaster General Farley is preparing a public statement exposing in detail the fraud and collusion which, he says, attended the awarding of the contracts.

Mr. Farley had planned to issue the statement tonight, but at a late hour he postponed the action until tomorrow. According to reports the statement will be most sensational in character, giving in full charges that various air line officials sat around a table in Washington in May, 1930, and parceled out among themselves the rich gravy of the air mail contracts.

Receive Many Protests.

President Roosevelt and his postmaster general have been under a deluge of protest against the severity of the order nullifying the contracts without first hearing the defense of the companies affected. Among the leading protestants was Charles A. Lindbergh, who, with the many other critics, insisted that the order, if carried out, would deal a terrible blow to the progress of American aviation.

"I am preparing a letter to forward to Senator Black," said Mr. Farley tonight, "in which will be a full statement of the reasons why I ordered the domestic air contracts annulled. The letter is lengthy and refers to evidence in the possession of the postoffice department and produced by the senate investigating committee.

"I am having the records thoroughly checked before the letter is finally drafted and forwarded to the chairman of the investigating committee of the senate. This may require at least another 24 hours."

Foulois Makes Offer to Pilots.

Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the army air corps, which will take over the flying of the air mail beginning next Monday midnight, announced today that commercial pilots who are members of the army air corps reserve would be welcome to enlist in the army for the period of the emergency, and thus to continue flying the mail.

Gen. Foulois, added, however, that in the cases of most of the pilots, they are not yet aware whether their companies will attempt to continue in business, flying passengers without the air mail revenues, and thus continuing the pilots in their present jobs.

The postoffice department today issued the emergency schedules, which will become effective when the army begins service next Monday.

Cut Frequency of Service.

It had already been shown that the opening service would operate over routes less than half the mileage of existing routes. Today's schedules disclosed that the frequency of service over the routes served would also be cut drastically.

Eleven routes will be served, and whereas a total of 40 round trips are now made over those routes daily, the emergency service next week will provide for only 25 trips.

The New York-Chicago service will be cut from six round trips daily to five. The Chicago to Dallas, via Kansas City service will be cut from two trips to one, and another trip from Chicago to Kansas City will be dropped. The trips westward from Chicago to Salt Lake City will be continued at three daily. The present schedule of two trips daily from Chicago to Atlanta will be cut to one.

PROFESSOR TAKES GIRL FOR RIDE; FORGETS HER AND WALKS ON HOME

Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Police today told this story of an absentminded professor:

J. Robert Oppenheimer, 30, professor of physics at the University of California, took Miss Melba Phillips, a research assistant, for a ride in the Berkeley hills Monday night. He parked his automobile, made Miss Phillips comfortable by wrapping a blanket about her, and said he was going for a walk.

Time passed. Policeman Albert Nevin went by.

"My escort went for a walk hours ago and he hasn't returned," Miss Phillips tearfully told him.

Police, on a hunch, went to the Faculty club. There they found the professor in bed, asleep.

"Miss Phillips!" he exclaimed. "O, my word! I forgot all about her. I just walked and walked and I was home and I went to bed. I'm so sorry."

Girl Cashier's Ruse Cuts Robber's Loot at Theater

Mrs. Lucille Drew, 20 years old, cashier of the Metro theater at 3308 Lawrence avenue, adroitly concealed the larger part of the theater's receipts late last night when a robber thrust a pistol at her and demanded money. She handed the man $15 and, when he asked if there was more, told him there was some change he could have if he would give her a little time. The bandit declined. Mrs. Drew had saved $25 by the strategem.

CHANCELLORIES DEBATE ACTION; BATTLE GOES ON

Playing with Tinder

The shots being fired in Austria reverberated in the chancelleries of Europe yesterday. Dispatches from the chief capitals told of the grave views taken:

BERLIN.—Germany, through its foreign office spokesman, said it was determined not to interfere in Austria but added that if Czechoslovakia marches on Austria "we might have to emerge from our reserve."

PARIS.—Henry Berenger, chairman of the French senate foreign affairs committee, urged intervention in Austria by an international force of British, French, and Italian troops.

ROME.—Premier Mussolini met with the supreme national defense council. Italy, it was stated unofficially, is studying the possible necessity of intervention in Austria.

LONDON.—The British government announced a hands-off policy.

MOSCOW.—The semi-official press of soviet Russia saw in the Austrian outbreak a rising tide against Fascism and further growth of communist strength.

VIENNA, Feb. 13.—Five hundred lives is the fearful toll of two days of bloody fighting between Austrian Fascists and the Socialist schutzbund [semi-military force], it was officially admitted by the government today. More than 400 armed Socialists and 38 policemen and soldiers were killed.

[Dispatches from other sources said unofficial estimates of the casualties ranged as high as 2,000 dead.]

The struggle of the Fascists, who are supporting the government of Chancellor Dollfuss to expel the Socialists from the position of power they have held for so many years in Vienna, raged throughout the day. The Fascisti, who are in control of the center of the city, bombarded the working class districts, which surrounded Vienna with howitzers and 3 inch guns.

Socialists Are Barricaded.

The Socialists, barricaded in the huge municipal owned apartment buildings where they live, fought back desperately. But they had no big guns and it was apparent that they were fighting a losing battle. Their machine guns and pistols, although taking a huge toll from their foes, were insufficient to repel the merciless attacks of the government forces.

The greatest single fight took place at the Ottakring Workers' home. Of the 150 schutzbund men who were defending the home, 100 were killed when the place was stormed last night. The rest were arrested.

This building, which was the Socialist district headquarters, suffered the worst damage of any place in Vienna. It was literally smashed by artillery fire.

Two Centers of Resistance.

The two chief centers of Socialist resistance tonight are the big communal apartment house called the Sandleiten, in the Ottakring district, and the Schlingerhof, a big workingmen's apartment house in the Floridsdorf district on the northeast bank of the Danube. About 3,000 men are barricaded in the latter place.

All afternoon furious fighting with machine guns and 3 inch guns raged around the Sandleiten house, which was desperately defended by armed workers. In the house also are families of the schutzbund men. But shells dropped on this building failed to scare or dislodge the workers and tonight they were ensconced behind its walls sniping at police patrols.

Late tonight it was decided to make a concerted attack on the Schlingerhof at dawn tomorrow. Prince Schoenburg-Hartenstein, secretary of state for defense, will be in charge of this operation to blow the place off the map, if necessary, with shell fire.

Enforce Martial Law.

Martial law was enforced today throughout the nation. The curfew again tonight plunged every Austrian town in semi-darkness at 8 p. m. In this darkness a battle of snipers is raging in many cities throughout the nation.

berg, now the center of greatest resistance in the provinces, 900 embattled Socialists have seized and are holding coal mines, where they are besieged by militia and state troops. The latter are bombarding the workers with artillery.

Vice Mayor Ruckel of Graz was killed in street fighting today and the wife of Herr Savor, Socialist deputy, was also killed. There also were casualties, the extent of which is as yet uncertain, in Linz, Innsbruck, and other towns where sniping and street fighting occurred.

Government Seen in Control.

It seems certain, however, that the government's official announcement tonight that it is master of the situation in every province except Styria is true. In that province the government does not yet claim to have won.

Vienna presents a curious aspect of peaceful dwellings adjoining other sections where furious fighting goes on. You go around a corner from comparative quiet into an area of glaring gunfire.

I visited the suburb of Floridsdorf, where all afternoon shells dropped on the Schlingerhof. It was impossible to estimate the exact extent of the damage here or what the loss of life was, for we could not approach too near because of snipers.

Troops Patrol Streets.

We crossed the Danube by car, being stopped several times by patrols. All streets approaching the Schlingerhof were patroled by regular troops in full marching equipment. When they were seen by the schutzbund men in the house, a fusillade of shots would ensue.

We stood in the cold and heard the crackling of rifle and machine gun fire break out from time to time. The batteries which fired on the workers were posted on Sophienalpe hill, in the wiener wald near Vienna.

From this district I drove all around the Karl Marx hof, the biggest apartment house in Europe, and perhaps in the world. It is nearly a mile long and houses about 5,000 families.

Police and troops tried to storm this building and take it from the Socialists and it had been reported that the place was badly wrecked.

Finds Damage Slight.

I found the building still stands intact after the artillery fire. I could see where one cannon shot had made a hole in the wall, but it was over the passageway and it seemed to me the artilleryman who placed the shot exactly there must have been a good marksman.

The building is still inhabited. I saw women and children at the windows. Adjutant Wrabel, chief assistant of Maj. Emil Fey, vice chancellor of Austria, was wounded while inspecting the military operations against the Karl Marx hof.

From the Karl Marx hof it is only a short way to the Ottakring district and adjoining Socialist centers. Other than two workers' apartment houses, which had been hit, there were no other signs of artillery fire here.

In the streets of all these districts there were sullen crowds and police and troppers with bayonets held low and ready for action. Business did not proceed as usual today and most Viennese stores, especially those of jewelry dealers, had iron shutters down all day.

Trains Fired Upon.

As I drove from the Ottakring district to the Meidling district I saw several truckloads of Socialists under arrest and apparently accompanied by their families, being driven to the city jails. Several ambulances also raced by.

At railroad stations inquiries showed that trains were running much as usual. Some travelers reported their trains were shot at by schutzbund men along the route.

Crossing to the other side of town to another Socialist district, Simmering, where there was also severe fighting last night, we heard the police were bombarding another workingmen's apartment house known as the George Washington hof. This building was dedicated last year by the American minister, Gilchrist B. Stockton. We found the house intact, however.

Returning to the center of the city, we crossed barbed wire entanglements and went to the city hall, which was heavily guarded by Fascist Heimwehr troops and police. Over the city hall was flying the Heimwehr flag as well as the Austrian national colors.

Fascists Install Mayor.

The Fascists today formally installed a new city commissioner, Richard Schmitz, to take over the functions of the arrested Socialist burgomaster, Karl Seitz. Schmitz was installed to the accompaniment of a great display of troops.

It was declared when the Heimwehr took over the city hall that they found the original plans for the apartment house fortresses of the Socialists, which showed how gun emplacements were arranged in the houses and where they were hidden away, and also plans for secret tunnels.

The Dollfuss government reiterated with the installation of Schmitz in the city hall that the present drastic measures to rid the country of political parties and set up a Fascist form of corporative state would be carried to its complete conclusion.

The chancellor conferred with Tyrolean heimwehr and storm troop leaders. According to the newspaper Weltplatt, Dollfuss has decided to reform the Tyrolese government by ousting the present governor, Herr Stumpf, who is a Christian Socialist, and replacing him with a governing commission as demanded last week by revolting heimwehr leaders.

Former Chancellor Jailed.

Dr. Karl Renner, former speaker of parliament and the first Austrian chancellor, who signed the St. Germain treaty, was arrested and charged with Socialist activities.

The government in a statement said the last two days' tragic events were caused by the illegal calling of a general strike by the Socialists in protest against recent repressive measures. On the other hand the Socialists declare they did not call the general strike until blood had been spilled on the streets of Linz when troops and police fired on members of the schutzbund.

In any case, the general strike has been shown to be a useless and ineffective measure. With the exception of street cars, all other city services in Vienna were about normal. There were lights, water, electric current and plenty of transportation. The street cars were stopped because police did not want them to become possible barricades.

Battle in Other Cities.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Feb. 13.—Fighting has been going on all day in the suburbs of Graz. In the town of Goesting, workers have built a barricade. Artillery has been called up by the government. It is feared the Republican defense corps is sending reinforcements to the barricaded workers from Graz.

Quiet Is Restored in France; Provincial Riots Suppressed

PARIS, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Adopting a policy of "silent work," the political truce cabinet of Premier Gaston Doumergue tonight devoted itself to the principal aim of restoring public confidence.

Police were withdrawn from public gathering places, following the suppression of riots early today in several provincial cities. Quiet apparently was restored following the end of yesterday's general strike. Officers were ordered not to open fire unless fired upon.

Expressing belief that the disorders had finished, but remaining in readiness for possible outbreaks, the government turned to its program of balancing the budget and showing a strong fist in foreign problems.

Spurn Hitler Arms Demands.

A solid stand against Chancelor Hitler's arms demands was contained in a note sent to Berlin tonight. The note will be published tomorrow.

Vigorous prosecution of several financial scandals is under way and three new arrests were made, two in the $60,000,000 Stavisky case. Deputy Gaston Bounnaure, an attorney for the late Serge Stavisky, who is alleged to have caused the collapse of the Bayonne pawnshop, was one of those placed under arrest.

Stock Market Better.

Government spokesmen said the political truce was working its desired effects, pointing to the rise in value of all treasury bonds, particularly the 4½ per cent 1932 conversion issue, which climbed from 79.60 to 83.90 francs, and increased activity in the stock market. There were fewer redemptions of treasury bonds.

The provinces, however, deputies said, are not fully won over to the neutral government. Some suspicion exists that Parisians ousted the leftist cabinet of Premier Daladier by "foul means."

Disorders were suppressed early this morning at Marseilles, Nantes, Toulon, Lille, Roubaix, and Mulhouse.

JAPAN'S NEW ENVOY CALLS ON ROOSEVELT; TELLS HOPE FOR PEACE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Hirosi Saito, Japan's new ambassador to the United States, presented his credentials to President Roosevelt at the White House today and spoke of the "friendship" and "mutual confidence" of the two nations.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed similar sentiments and dwelt on the American desire for peace in the Pacific.

Saito said he was sure that "whatever question, either political or economic, may arise between our two countries, can and will be amicably composed in a spirit of friendship and mutual confidence—the spirit that has characterized our relations ever since Japan made, at the instance of the United States, her formal entry into the family of nations."

"I share fully," the President said in reply, "the view which you have expressed that all questions which may arise between our two countries will be resolved in a spirit of friendship and mutual confidence. You will find this government devoted now as in the past to the principle of maintaining peace in the Pacific region as elsewhere and ready to coöperate cordially and sympathetically with your government in all of the many lines of endeavor which are possible in pursuance of and toward making prevail that principle. It is our constant desire that, by coöperation, all the countries of the Pacific region may continue to enjoy peace and may attain conditions of abiding prosperity."

FORM GROUP IN BERLIN TO UNITE GERMAN JEWRY

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—To consolidate German Jewry and promote its interests, a new organization has been formed styling itself the "Reich Representation of German Jews."

Its council consists of several scores of Jewish leaders representative of various drifts within German Jewry from all over the reich. It includes Max Warburg, Prof. Martin Buber, Dr. Hommel, Rabbis Horovitz of Frankfurt and Hahn of Essen, and Leo Loewenstein, president of the Jewish War Veterans.

At its first session, the council adopted a resolution calling on German Jewry to bury its internal dissensions and unite. "All its forces should serve one aim," it declared, "to secure for every Jew in the Fatherland not only living space but also liberty to profess and practice his Jewish conviction openly and unrestrictedly."

GERMANY WARNS CZECHS TO KEEP HANDS OFF VIENNA

Berlin Says It Is Anxious for Peace.

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Germany's determination not to interfere in Austria and conviction that Austrian peace can only be restored on a basis of the public will were expressed today by a foreign office spokesman.

"We, as neighbors and friends of Austria, are most anxious," he said, "that peace shall prevail over there. But peace cannot come so long as [Chancellor] Dollfuss and [Vice Chancellor] Fey base their régime upon Austrian bayonets and foreign sympathies, not upon the will of the Austrian people."

The spokesman emphasized that recent events in Austria disproved complaints that Germany had smuggled arms into Austria to bring about a reign of terror and Nazi dominance.

Warns Czechs to Stay Neutral.

"If the Czechs should decide to march upon Austria," the spokesman continued, "we might have to emerge from our reserve.

"Just as the National Socialist party [the Nazis] stuck to strictly legal methods ever since the Munich putsch of 1923, we hold that in Austria the National Socialism of Austria must observe a strictly legal attitude.

"The reactionary heimwehr and the Marxistic Red front may resort to bloodshed—the Nazis in Austria will under no circumstances tolerate or participate in acts of violence.

"Events in Austria clearly show that it is not necessary to smuggle German arms across the border, as has been charged against the Nazis. The insurgents in Austria possessed not only hand grenades and rifles but even machine guns.

"Dollfuss' complaint to the league of nations becomes a grotesque farce in view of Austrian developments. His measures were taken without even bothering about an enabling act and merely because the heimwehr put an ultimatum up to him. If anybody, therefore, departed from legality, it is Dollfuss."

Frenchman Urges Intervention.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Armed protection of Austria's independence by French, British, and Italian troops was unofficially proposed today by Henry Berenger, chairman of the senate foreign affairs committee, if a "Socialists' uprising overpowers Chancellor Dollfuss."

"The beginning of a war in Europe and the end of the league of nations" if Dollfuss loses control of the situation was predicted by Berenger unless "an international army to protect Vienna" is sent by the three powers.

The statesman made his suggestions in an article in the newspaper Agence Economicue et Financiere.

Mussolini Studies Situation.

ROME, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini met with the supreme national defense council today for the second time in two days, but whether the Austrian situation was discussed could not be learned.

News of the suggestion made by Henry Berenger in Paris that it might be necessary for France and other countries to give armed assistance to Austria was received with interest in circles close to the government. Italy feels she is one of the chief parties affected by the Austrian situation and has been following affairs there very closely.

Well informed circles have felt for some time that conditions might reach the point of bringing Italy face to face with the necessity of deciding whether to intervene in Asutria as the only means of keeping either the Nazis or Leftists out of power. Many persons close to the situation think Italy would look with favor upon the idea of three-party intervention, but it is believed she would want to be sure it would be a last resort before making any step at all toward intervention. The semi-official press declared a Nazi Austria would be intolerable, as it likely would lead to a union with Germany, placing a new strong power on Italy's northern border, replacing Little Austria.

Britain to Remain Neutral.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The British government does not plan to intervene in Austrian affairs, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon said today in the house of commons. Referring to Austria's decision to lay its complaint of German interference in its internal affairs before the league of nations, Sir John said he believed the proper course is to await presentation of the case to the league council.

Moscow Cheers Uprisings.

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The capital of communism today watched avidly events in Austria and France, and through the columns of the communist party newspaper, Pravda, cheered on the fighting workers in both countries. Their activities, it was explained here, was a fight against the rising tide of Fascism.

Calling for a "united front" of all workers in those countries, the newspaper said:

"The demonstrations and general strikes in France and Austria show the revolutionary forces against Fascism are rising and ripening. But the only guarantee of a successful outcome is the adoption of a uniform front and tactics which will enlarge, deepen, and embrace wide masses of proletarians and peasants under the leadership of the communist party. They can be victorious only if control over the movement is assumed by revolutionary workers headed by the communist party."

LEFT WING LABORITES OF BRITAIN SUPPORT VIENNA SOCIALISTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The Independent Labor party, which is the left wing of the British Socialist movement and must not be confused with the parliamentary Labor party, today sent messages of sympathy and solidarity to Socialists in Vienna, Spain, and Paris.

The messages are in connection with the Socialists' stand for democracy as evinced in events of the last few days.

The Independent Labor party also sent a letter to the British Labor party, the Trade Union congress, the Cooperative league, the Socialist league, and the communist party, calling on them to unite in support of the Socialists on the continent and to resist the advance of fascism in Great Britain. An immediate conference to plan united action was urged.

PLAN NEW WORLD POWER PARLEY ON DISARMAMENT

U.S. to Get Bid to Another Arms Session.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A special meeting of great world powers, the United States among them, in an effort to smooth out disarmament tangles, was discussed today by officers of the world disarmament conference.

Resumption of the disarmament conference in Geneva by mid-April appeared likely and the special session would be designed to break the ground for it.

Plan for U. S. Participation.

Hope of the United States' participation in the pre-conference parley would be based on an invitation to Japan, Russia, and Germany, other leading nonleague members. The meeting would be held outside Geneva, with London a favored site.

The plan has been discussed seriously by influential statesmen, it was learned, with Great Britain considered the logical nation to send out invitations.

A meeting of the steering committee of the disarmament conference was set for April 10 in Geneva, and it was believed certain that the full conference would resume a few days later, as it has already in effect been twice postponed within six months.

"If disarmament is going to die it must die with a fight in full conference," said Arthur Henderson, president of the conference. "There will be no fade-out."

Britain to Act as Host.

In the event Russia and Japan accept invitations to the proposed special meeting, it was pointed out, the United States could not remain aloof on the ground that only European issues were involved.

Definite action is not expected until Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, has completed a proposed tour of European capitals.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 13.—The Japanese budget of 2,112,000,000 yen ($633,600,000) for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1934, was passed by the house of representatives tonight. It will go to the house of peers tomorrow, where it is a foregone conclusion that it will be passed.

Forty-four per cent of the total budget, or 938,000,000 yen ($281,400,000), is for defense. This is the largest peacetime appropriation for this purpose in the nation's history. The army's share of this is 450,000,000 yen ($135,000,000). The allotment for the navy is 488,000,000 yen ($146,400,000), which is just 11,000,000 yen ($3,300,000) under the amount appropriated for the sea forces in the navy's great spending year, 1921-'22.

Despite the huge defense appropriations, the 79 year old finance minister, Korekiyo Takahashi, is credited with lopping 400,000,000 yen [$120,000,000] off the original demands of the defense ministries. The budget as a whole is believed to indicate that the pace at which the national debt has been mounting is slackened. The estimated deficit for next year of 1,027,000,000 yen [$308,100,000] is said to be about 250,000,000 yen [$75,000,000] under the expected deficit for 1933-34.

EIGHT BUFFALOES SENTENCED TO DIE BY COUNTY BOARD

Herd Will Be Shot as an Economy Measure.

Death sentences were pronounced yesterday upon eight buffaloes, scraggy descendants of the lordly beasts that thundered over the western plains in pioneer days, by the county commissioners meeting in their capacity as commissioners of the forest preserves. The condemned animals will meet their fate in their compound in the Palos Park forest preserve.

Debate as to the manner of inflicting the penalty on the beasts for their failure to multiply was stormy. It was finally decided they should die in a manner befitting their noble forebears—by rifle bullets. The carcasses are to be butchered and fed to the inmates of the Oak Forest infirmary.

The plight of the herd came to the attention of the board last Jan. 10, when Supt. Charles G. Sauers of the preserves asked to be permitted to kill them as an economy measure. He said the herd had diminished from 24 head to 8 head within a few years and were no longer an attraction.

Women Delay Execution.

At that time, because of the insistence of the four women commissioners, the passing of the sentences were delayed. Sauers was instructed to offer the animals to the Chicago Zoological society.

Yesterday he reported that the institution had rejected the offer. He repeated his request that he be allowed to put an end to their existence and the commissioners sadly granted it.

Commissioner Charles H. Weber then opened the debate on the mode of execution with, "Let's dress like Indians and shoot them down with bows and arrows. We might charge admission and raise some needed funds."

The women commissioners scoffed at the plan. Commissioner Frank Kasper said he recalled from his school days that the animals committed suicide in early days in great numbers during stampedes. He suggested that the animals be stampeded.

"We'll start them in the direction of your house in Berwyn and let them run," said Commissioner Dan Ryan. "They can run for miles."

Poison Proposal Rejected.

Kasper withdrew his motion. Several women suggested poison. It was pointed out that poison would destroy the food value of the carcasses.

Supt. Sauers said the animals were difficult to kill. In the golden days of the west marksmen shot the beasts in the left shoulder to pierce the heart and even then they galloped for great distances before they fell dead, he said.

"I vote that our nimrod, Commissioner Homer Byrd, be assigned to shoot them down," said Commissioner Peter Kelly. "He used to have a fox farm and knows the ways of wild critters. Besides, he's a quail shooter."

Supt. Sauers solved the problem by announcing he had several former service men in his employ, who would undertake to dispatch the order of the commissioners within the week. His plan was approved.

SAVE 8 AMERICAN SPORTSMEN AS SHIP RAMS REEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 13.—The loss of a $50,000 schooner and $5,000 in cash was revealed here today with the arrival of eight American sportsmen. They had narrowly escaped death when their boat Pieces of Eight crashed into a reef Saturday night off the north shore of Pinar del Rio province. Frank Blair of Chicago was one of the group.

The rescue was made by the Cuban gunboat Pinar del Rio after three of the victims, Capt. John Farrington of Miami, Richard W. Peters of Philadelphia, and David O. True of Baltimore, reached shore in a rowboat and summoned aid.

Others on the ship were Warren Davis, Samuel K. Reeves Jr., William Taylor, all Philadelphians, and Capt. Peter Christiansen of the Isle of Pines.

AIRMAIL CARRIER SUES U. S. OVER VOIDED CONTRACT

Asks Injunction; Hearing Set for Friday.

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The right of Postmaster General James A. Farley to cancel the government's air mail contracts was challenged today in federal court by Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., one of the larger of the companies involved. It was made clear tonight that the government will fight the suit. Attorney General Cummings in Washington said Mr. Farley would show abundant cause for his action.

The company sought and obtained an order directing Mr. Farley and John J. Kiely, postmaster of New York, to show cause next Friday why they should not be restrained from carrying out an annulment of the contracts as approved by President Roosevelt.

Federal Judge John C. Knox, who signed the order, declined, however, to issue a temporary injunction pending the hearing on Friday.

Cite Injunction Grounds.

The injunction was sought on two grounds:

1. The cancelation order was illegal, it was argued, because it went beyond the power and authority and jurisdiction of the postmaster general.

2. It was also illegal, the petition set forth, because it would deprive the company of property without due process of law or without just compensation, which would be in violation of the 4th and 5th amendments to the constitution of the United States.

The complaint set forth that, after obtaining its air mail contract, TWA spent 5 million dollars to carry out its obligations under the agreement with the postoffice department.

Call Cancelation Unfair.

The cancelation order, which will be effective next Monday unless the postmaster general is restrained, would have an unfair and serious consequence, according to the complaint.

"The defendant Farley's wrongful and illegal cancelation of said contract," according to the complaint, "and the diversion of mail covered thereby from the complainant and the enforcement against it of said penalties, will destroy complainant's property.

"It will force it to discontinue its air service, throw out of employment all of its pilots, workmen, and other employes, since without the revenue derived from said contract, complainant cannot operate except with irreparable damage to itself, its stockholders, the public who use the complainant's planes and services, and the public municipalities in whose airports and services many millions of dollars of public money have been spent in an effort to promote transportation by air.

HUEY LONG'S PASTOR FRIEND RESIGNS HIS JOB AS MINISTER

Shreveport, La., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, companion of Senator Huey P. Long when the latter recently figured in an encounter with a Washington newspaper reporter, has verbally tendered his resignation as pastor of the Kings Highway Christian church here, members of the church board said today.

Mr. Smith returned here yesterday from Washington after joining Senator Long in public statements denying that he was acting as the senator's bodyguard and also denying that the senator struck the reporter with a loaded cane.

T. J. Smith of Bossier City, chairman of the Kings Highway church board, said he had received Mr. Smith's resignation as pastor by telephone, the minister saying, "I am resigning."

Mr. Smith has been pastor of the church for five years, coming here from Indianapolis. Friends said he planned to remain here in the interest of an oil refinery labor union in Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas.

ROOSEVELT ROW WITH LINDBERGH STIRS CONGRESS

G. O. P. Savage in Attack on "Rebuke."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The rift between President Roosevelt and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh over cancelation of the government air mail contracts today became the subject of heated political conflict on Capitol hill.

Republican members of both houses of congress savagely attacked the White House statement branding the Lindbergh telegram to President Roosevelt as "propaganda." Democrats, on the other hand, rallied behind Mr. Roosevelt in condemnation of the Lindbergh telegram.

The issue threw the house of representatives into one of its most turbulent sessions in recent years—so hectic that only a sudden and unceremonious adjournment put an end to the bitter partisan wrangling.

Hastings Defends Protest.

In the senate Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.] took up the cudgel for Col. Lindbergh with the statement that "it is a rather strange thing for this administration to accuse anybody of propaganda, because, in my judgment, it has the most successful propaganda organization the world has ever known."

The uproar in the house had its beginning with Representative Hamilton Fish's desire to insert the Lindbergh telegram in the Congressional Record. Before it subsided, the New Yorker, a former all-American tackle at Harvard, was almost at blows with Democratic Leader Joseph W. Byrns, [Dem., Tenn.]

Mr. Fish asked consent to put the telegram in the record. At once, nearly a score of Democrats, anxious to back the President on the air mail contract question, raised objections. Mr. Fish, in retaliation, proceeded deliberately to object to every bill called on the private calendar then under consideration.

Proposes Adjournment.

Finally Representative Harold Knutson [Rep., Minn.] suggested that "these proceedings are a joke," and proposed that the house adjourn. Representative Byrns, as majority leader, asked for five minutes' time in which to restore order. Representative Fish objected.

"Well, I will tell the gentleman this ——" the leader began, angrily.

"No, you will not tell the gentleman anything," shouted the New Yorker. "You are just an ordinary member of this house."

"You'll never get anywhere by these tactics," yelled the irate Mr. Byrns above the din.

Steps Into Aile.

In his perturbation, Representative Fish had stepped from the Republican side into the middle aile, which constitutes the party line in the house.

"Mr. Speaker," shouted Representative Thomas [Turbulent Tom] Blanton [Dem., Tex.], "I ask that the gentleman from New York sit on his own side of the house. We do not want him in 'no man's land.'"

Finally Mr. Byrns obtained a semblance of order.

"We cannot proceed in this manner," he said. "I would like to ask the gentleman from New York this question: 'Is he going to object to all bills from now on?'"

Insists on His Point.

Mr. Fish replied that he would not object if the Lindbergh telegram were allowed to go into the Record.

"I am not going to be held up that way," Mr. Byrns retorted, in a rage.

"Neither am I going to be held up," was the reply.

"Then," yelled Mr. Byrns, "I move this house adjourn."

But Mr. Fish had the last word. Within an hour he issued a statement declaring the "disgraceful attack on Lindbergh by Secretary Stephen Early, implying that Lindbergh was motivated by publicity because he dared, in his capacity of an American citizen, to protest to the President against a blanket condemnation of fourteen air mail companies, is typical of the dictatorship that we are slipping into."

EX-NAVY FLYER ASKS INQUIRY ON LINDY'S FITNESS AS OFFICER

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Daily News quotes Arthur W. McMahon, former navy flyer, as charging Col. Charles A. Lindbergh with conduct unbecoming an officer and petitioning Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, commander of the Second corps area, to conduct a hearing into Col. Lindbergh's fitness to hold his reserve commission.

McMahon was described as a native of Brooklyn, having served in the naval flying corps during the war at Pensacola, Miami, Key West and Hampton Roads.

McMahon based his charge, the News says, on Col. Lindbergh's telegram to President Roosevelt in connection with the cancelation of the air mail contracts. McMahon was quoted as saying he acted as a citizen who might have to serve under Col. Lindbergh in the event of war. The action was described by the News as under a subsection of army regulations covering circumstances in which a reserve officer can be shorn of his commission by the President or a board of officers.

Gen. Nolan was out of town but Col. George A. Nugent, chief of staff, said no such document had been received.

MUSICIAN HELD ON CHARGES OF WISCONSIN GIRL

Elmer Hoagland, 26 years old, 116 Ridge avenue, Evanston, a musician, was arrested last night at his home and is being held by police as a fugitive from justice on the complaint of Sheriff James Doyle of Florence county, Wis. Sheriff Doyle said Hoagland is wanted on a charge of raping Miss Violet Olsen, 17 years old, of Florence county. He fled to Evanston and a few days ago Sheriff Doyle learned he was living at the Ridge avenue address and caused his arrest.

SENATE DEBATES CONTEMPT GUILT OF MacCRACKEN

Three Air Line Officials Also on Trial.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The United States senate behind closed doors began to debate late today over the fate of William P. MacCracken Jr., former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics and the three aviation company officials on trial with him for contempt.

A recess, taken in the midst of the discussion interrupted what was reported to be a vehement argument concerning the sufficiency of the evidence against MacCracken, L. H. Brittin, vice president of Northwest Airways; Harris M. Hanshue, president of Western Air Express, and Gilbert L. Givvin, Western Air's Washington representative.

Republicans Watch Dispute.

The debate found Republicans sitting on the side lines listening to a dispute within the Democratic ranks. Democratic members of the special investigating committee which charged the four defendants with having tampered with MacCracken's files after his air mail correspondence had been subpenaed were described as arguing vigorously that the evidence warranted a guilty verdict. They held all four equally culpable.

But their contentions were reported to have been quickly and strongly challenged. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], and Senator Josiah W. Bailey [Dem., N. C.], led in plying Chairman Hugo I. Black [Dem., Ala.] with questions which indicated a doubt on their part that the case was adequate from a legal standpoint.

The discussion was said to have been confined largely to questions of fact, with little or no debate on points of law, or concerning the advisability as contended by some senators that the entire case should be turned over to the courts.

Question Chairman Black.

Chairman Black was said to have been questioned closely as to whether MacCracken was correct, so far as the committee knew, in his claim that he did not know of Brittin's removal and destruction of correspondence until after the act had been completed.

The chairman is reported to have replied that there was no evidence to disprove MacCracken's assertion, nor any to disprove the contention of Hanshue and Givvin, that they had returned to the committee all the documents which Givvin took with MacCracken's permission.

One senator was described as privately having expressed the belief that unless the committee can make out a stronger case when the proceedings are resumed tomorrow it was doubtful whether the senate would find Brittin, Hanshue, and Givvin guilty, and might even free MacCracken.

MacCracken's case, however, is complicated by the fact that resentment among the senators is high as the result of tactics on the part of himself and Frank J. Hogan, his counsel. The whirligig of the last few days' events, which found MacCracken in and out of arrest and playing tag with the senate sergeant-at-arms, has caused more than one senator to favor making an example of MacCracken.

Senators Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] and Homer T. Bone [Dem., Wash.] were reported as having made vigorous speeches in favor of finding all four defendants guilty.

CHICAGO CHINESE QUIETLY OBSERVE NEW YEAR'S EVE

Chicago's Chinese last night observed their New Year's eve in a subdued manner. Chinese and American flags were displayed, firecrackers lighted, and at midnight the celebrants extended well wishes to relatives and friends. From midnight until tonight they will eat lightly in preparation for the great feast which is the high point in the celebration. In China all business places are kept closed during the festivities but here only the drug stores will be closed. The Chinese believe that during the celebration no one will become ill so there will be no need for medicine.

$10,000,000 WASTE ON CHICAGO P. O. SITE IS CHARGED

Congressman Demands Full Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Charging a waste of $10,000,000 of government money, Chairman James M. Mead [Dem., N. Y.], of the house postoffice committee, today demanded a detailed departmental report of the purchase of a federal postoffice building site in Chicago.

At a hearing on legislation to regulate the construction of postoffices over railroad tracks, Mr. Mead charged that "intrigue, log rolling and pork barrel tactics" marked the negotiations which led up to the abandonment of the originally chosen Chicago site at Harrison and Van Buren streets and the purchase of the present site.

A final report of the committee on the Chicago purchases, Mr. Mead said, will be based on the information furnished in accordance with today's request by L. C. Martin, special assistant to the secretary of the treasury, and Wright Chambers, postoffice department expert.

Members of the committee, backing Mr. Mead, declared that an investigation of the Chicago postoffice building site purchase showed a "waste of $10,000,000 of government funds," as the result of the purchase of the present site for 5½ millions after the abandonment of the property previously purchased from the Marshall Field estate.

"Some of the dirt developed at Chicago," said Chairman Mead, "showed that the Marshall Field estate netted 92½ per cent profit over a 2½ year period, on the sale of the site to the government."

Shower of Cold Water Leads to a $10,000 Suit

Miss Edith Prettyman, 23 years old, yesterday filed a $10,000 damage suit in the Superior court against the Michigan-Ohio Building corporation. The suit charges that she developed pneumonia after a bucket of cold water was dashed over her head while she was getting a shampoo in the Doret Vanity shop in the building, which is at 612 North Michigan avenue. This incident occurred last Nov. 22, the bill asserts. Miss Prettyman is now in Tampa, Fla. She is editor of the American Cemetery magazine.

660,000 OWNERS SUFFER LOSS IN AVIATION STOCKS

Air Mail Cancellation Has Wide Consequence.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

About 660,000 owners of common stocks have suffered direct losses as a result of President Roosevelt's order last Friday canceling government contracts with private aviation companies for the carrying of the United States mail. Indirectly, the number of stockholders affected is much larger since stock in some of the companies concerned is owned by investment trusts, insurance companies, etc.

Since most of the aviation shares are listed on leading stock exchanges, they may be sold at any time and consequently may be considered as a part of the cash resources of the owner. Therefore the sharp decline in the market values of these shares means a reduction in the cash resources of these owners.

Losses Are Computed.

An example of what the loss means may be found in the case of the stock of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation, which owns the United Air Lines, Inc., one of the companies whose contracts were canceled. On Tuesday, Feb. 6, the stock of the parent company closed at $35.25 a share. Yesterday United Aircraft closed at $21.25. Thus in a week's time the market value of this stock has lost $14, or 40 per cent. Stock of The Aviation corporation sold at $9.87½ on Feb. 2. Yesterday it closed at $6.50, a loss of $3.37½ a share, or around 30 per cent.

Some of the aviation companies are owned by holding companies, therefore in computing the number of holders affected by the loss in stock prices, the stockholders in the holding companies are listed.

The United Air Lines, Inc., is a wholly owned subsidiary of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation, whose common stock is held by 22,924 owners. The American Airways is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Aviation corporation, which has 25,130 shareholders.

Western Air Express corporation has 1,261 stockholders and North American Aviation, which owns 51 per cent of the stock of Western Air, has 21,594 shareholders. General Aviation corporation holds 43 per cent of North American. The number of General Aviation shareholders is not available, but the General Motors corporation, which owns 50 per cent of General Aviation, as well as 8 per cent of North American, has 333,632 stockholders. Eastern Air Transport, Inc., is a wholly owned subsidiary of North American.

Railroad Is a Holder.

Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., is owned 47½ per cent by Western Air Express, 47½ per cent by Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc. There are 15,617 Transcontinental Air shareholders and the Pennsylvania railroad, with 239,890 shareholders, owns 8 per cent of Transcontinental Air stock.

Northwest Airways and Kohler Aviation are closely held and the number of stockholders not available, nor for the three remaining companies falling under the President's order, namely, Pennsylvania Airlines, Inc.; National Parks Airways, Inc., and the U. S. Airways.

WARNS ILLINOIS OF U. S. LIMIT ON RELIEF TO STATE

Howard O. Hunter, field representative of the federal emergency relief administration, said yesterday that the most Illinois can hope for in federal relief aid this year is an advance of one-third of the total relief expenditures of the state. He pointed out that last year the federal govrnment advanced about 80 per cent of all relief expenditures in the state.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission is wrestling with the problem of providing relief for the rest of the year with the proceeds of tax anticipation warrants based on the $30,000,000 relief bond issue. Relief is now being provided at the rate of $6,000,000 a month, and at that rate the thirty millions would be used up by July, and an additional $30,000,000 required to provide relief for the rest of the year.

Even if the federal government supplies $20,000,000 of the additional money required, which Mr. Hunter said is by no means certain, because Illinois has got more than its share before, another $10,000,000 would still have to be raised to finish the year, it was indicated by relief officials.

ENOUGH PLANES FOUND HERE TO CARRY AIR MAIL

Maj. Merrill D. Mann, commander of the 33d division aviation, Illinois National Guard, and army air corps officers attached to the sixth corps area headquarters yesterday completed a survey of army planes and pilots available to fly the air mail in and out of Chicago when the army takes that service over Monday. Maj. Mann said the surveys showed a sufficient number of planes and pilots available.

The survey will be handed to Lieut. Col. Horace M. Hickman, army air corps, who has been ordered to Chicago to command the central zone of the air corps' air mail operations. No word of the date of his arrival was received yesterday. Meanwhile plans of the local army and postoffice officials were held in abeyance.

Roger M. Combs Jr., chairman of General Air Express, an air express system operated by five air lines, announced yesterday that the services of the system will not be affected by the loss of air mail contracts. American Airways, one of the five companies, has announced its intention of continuing operations without reducing schedules, but the other four lines have not announced their plans.

Distribution of Food to CWA Men Will Stop

The distribution of surplus food products to workers on Civil Works administration projects who were taken off of the relief rolls will be discontinued effective tomorrow, it was announced yesterday by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. The food was provided by the federal government from surplus agricultural produce purchased by it.

Howard O. Hunter, temporary Civil Works administrator for Illinois, yesterday announced the appointment of the ten following men as county Civil Works administrators: Frank Helmer, Brown county; E. E. Embree, De Kalb; R. E. Webb, Franklin; William J. Spencer, Fulton; R. E. Brooking, Henderson; W. S. Smysor, Jackson; L. N. Fisher, Macon; Harry Hudson, Pike; F. H. Bridges, Marion, and David J. Jarrett, Winnebago.

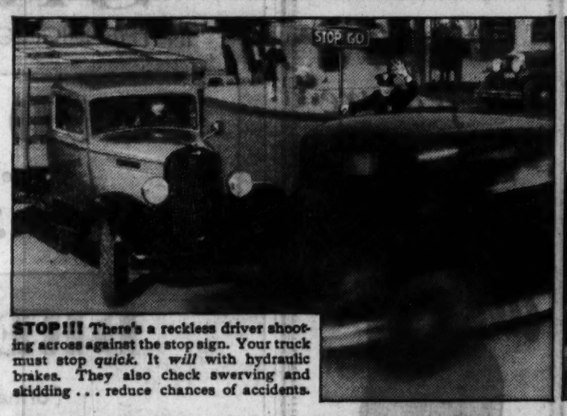
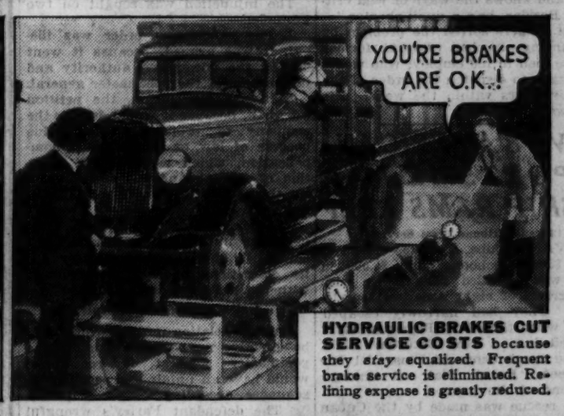
"This Feature Alone Switched Me To Dodge Trucks"



STOP!!! There's a reckless driver shooting across against the stop sign. Your truck must stop quick. It will with hydraulic brakes. They also check swerving and skidding . . . reduce chances of accidents.



HYDRAULIC BRAKES CUT SERVICE COSTS because they stay equalized. Frequent brake service is eliminated. Relining expense is greatly reduced.

No Other Low-Priced Truck Has Hydraulic Brakes . . . Plus These 17 Other Great Features That Save Gas . . . Oil . . . Tires . . . Cut Upkeep Costs

LOW-PRICED Dodge trucks have been winning buyers four times faster than the rest of the industry. Many of the nation's best known business firms are switching to Dodge. These people are buying on the same basis that you should buy your next truck . . . they are checking features, comparing Dodge with other low-priced trucks, learning to judge truck value for themselves.

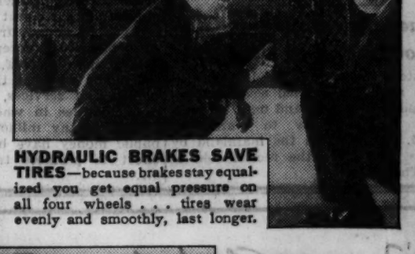
These buyers are finding, just as you will find, that Dodge offers eighteen quality features that actually cost Dodge more money, yet are put there because they will save money for you.

One of these money-saving features is hydraulic brakes that stay equalized, cut tire expense, reduce service costs and cut relining costs. They save in still another way because they are safer, stop smoother and quicker . . . thus reduce chances of accident.

Another expensive Dodge feature is four piston rings instead of the usual three . . . this saves gas and oil. Dodge also gives you four main bearings, they naturally cost Dodge more than the usual three, and save money for you by reducing vibration and prolonging engine life.

Roller bearing universals, oil filter, valve seat inserts, air cleaner, crankcase ventilator, double tapered roller bearings in rear wheels, these and many more cost Dodge money while they very definitely and obviously save money for you.

Before you buy any low-priced truck, Dodge urges you to learn the facts. The extra value Dodge gives you is almost incredible 'til you make your own comparison. See your Dodge dealer at once.



HYDRAULIC BRAKES SAVE TIRES—because brakes stay equalized you get equal pressure on all four wheels . . . tires wear evenly and smoothly, last longer.

HOUSE GETS NEW INCOME TAX BILL UNDER GAG RULE

Measure Revises Much of Present Law.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—With a rigid gag rule limiting amendment, Democratic leaders in the house today greased the legislative runway for the administration's 258 million dollar tax revision bill, scheduled to start through congress tomorrow.

Carrying sweeping reforms in the federal revenue status, including a new schedule of income surtaxes, the measure was reported out by the ways and means committee today after months of preparation. Immediately it was cloaked in the protection of the special rule, which permits only those amendments approved by the committee to be offered from the floor.

Individual members of the house will have no opportunity of altering the measure. But under the terms of the rule, they will have sixteen hours in which to debate its provisions and explain what they would do if they could.

Major Revisions.

The major revisions in existing tax laws to be effected by the bill are as follows:

[1]. Substitution of a flat normal income tax rate of 4 per cent for the present graduated rate of from 4 to 8 per cent. Readjustment of existing surtax tables into 28 instead of 53 brackets, with surtaxes starting on $4,000 instead of on $6,000 incomes. Allowance of an earned income credit of 10 per cent against income below $8,000 subject to normal tax. Expected to realize 28 millions annually.

[2]. Revision of the existing capital gains and losses tax to permit the measurement of such gains or losses for tax purposes on a percentage basis, depending on the length of time for which the capital asset has been held. Expected to bring in 30 millions a year.

[3]. Imposition of a 35 per cent tax on the "undistributed adjusted net income" of personal holding companies, such income to be determined by adding to the net income of a corporation the amount of dividends received from other corporations and the amount of partially tax exempt interest and subtracting therefrom the amount of federal income taxes paid. The committee said it believed the majority of personal holding companies are "in fact formed for the sole purpose of avoiding the imposition of the surtax upon the stockholders." Estimated yield 25 million dollars a year.

Restricts Reorganization Melons.

[4]. Restriction of present tax provisions dealing with corporate reorganizations to prevent corporations from distributing to their shareholders stock or securities in another corporation party to the reorganization and thereby paying what would otherwise be taxable dividends without taxation; and new limitations on the definition for tax purposes of a corporate reorganization. Yield 10 million dollars a year.

[5]. Subjection to surtaxes of dividends paid from earnings accumulated before March 1, 1913, which are now free from taxation. Yield 6 millions.

[6]. Alteration of the present foreign tax credit to provide that the federal government will secure a tax of one-half of the foreign income earned by American corporations in countries where the income tax rates are not less than one-half of our rates. Yield five millions.

Consolidated Rate Doubled.

[7]. Imposition of a 2 per cent tax on consolidated returns instead of the tax of one per cent now charged for filing tax returns in such form. Yield twenty millions.

[8]. Revision of the partnership provisions of the present revenue laws to eliminate "the opportunities for tax avoidance which the committee's investigations and the investigations of other congressional committees have disclosed." Yield 5 millions.

[9]. Administrative changes in the present gasoline and lubricating oil regulations to require proof of a second sale or of sale to a state in order to claim a credit against the tax paid by the manufacturer. Yield 20 millions a year.

Additional revenue of 24 millions is expected from miscellaneous provisions of the bill including a tax on imported coconut and sesame oils, and a new domestic excise tax of one-tenth of a cent per barrel on crude petroleum.

The bill provides for the termination of the present two cent federal tax on bank checks on Dec. 31, 1934.

Won't Confirm or Deny Marriage

HENRY CHAPIN JR. FILES CROSS BILL SEEKING DIVORCE

Henry K. Chapin Jr., secretary of the Lake Coal and Dock company, appeared before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday to show why he should not be held in contempt of court for nonpayment of temporary alimony to his wife, Mrs. Ada Bruce Chapin of Boston, who seeks a divorce on grounds of cruelty. After obtaining a continuance of the motion until March 16, Chapin filed a cross bill for divorce, charging that his wife deserted him on Oct. 2, 1932.

Mrs. Chapin, who now resides in the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. John Angus Bruce, had asked that her husband be held in contempt of court because of his failure to pay her $15 a week support money in accordance with a court order. Through her counsel, William B. Gemmill, she charged that Chapin was $370 in arrears. Attorney Gemmill said Mrs. Chapin has received $181 from her husband in recent weeks. He added that she is saving the money to come to Chicago to contest his cross bill.

She Won't Talk

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—She wouldn't say "yes" and she wouldn't say "no."

Judith Anderson, stage and film star, "simply don't discuss" the report current today that she is secretly married to Ian Keith, English matinée idol, and former husband of Ethel Clayton, Hollywood actress and, earlier, of the Baroness Fern Andra von Welcks, of Germany.

"You mustn't ask me such things," pleaded Judith. "I won't confirm it; I don't deny it," the dynamic "Electra" declared. And like that same O'Neill heroine in a soul rending "aside" she added, when asked if possibly she and Keith had any marriage plans, "I won't say either 'yes' or 'no.'"

And there terminated the interview.

Shoots Youth Stealing Coal in Railway Yards

Michael Kocker, 21 years old, 9709 Avenue N, was shot in the back and seriously wounded last night after he and several other youths were caught stealing coal in the yards of the Chicago Short Line railroad near his home. He was shot by William Stone, 10308 Ewing avenue, a watchman for the railroad, who came upon the boys filling bags with coal. Stone was accompanied by Arthur Feeley, 7326 South Michigan avenue, an official of the railroad. East Side police were told that Kocker was shot when he tried to attack Feeley. Kocker was taken to the South Chicago hospital.

ARMY SERGEANT FOUND SLAIN BY A MACHINE GUN

Galesburg, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The body of Sergt. Samuel C. Cole of the Knox R. O. T. C. was found lying in front of a 30 caliber machine gun in the military headquarters at the college this afternoon. He had been shot through the heart.

Officers found an empty cartridge near a table which the machine gun rested against. There were two bullet holes in the ceiling, but apparently only one bullet had been fired. It had split after passing through his body, making the two holes.

Sergt. Cole had been exhibiting various types of firearms and ammunition to a sophomore infantry class this morning. When the students left, the machine gun was on its tripod near the table. Officers were unable to tell whether it was discharged accidentally as he started to pick up the weapon or whether it was a case of suicide. The trigger apparently had been pulled on the edge of the table. It was possible, the investigators said, that he had attempted to pick the machine gun up by the barrel, forgetting that it was loaded.

Cole was 37 years old. He had been in the United States army since 1916 and had served in the Knox R. O. T. C. for 10 years. His regular army service included a term on duty in China.

CLOSED SALOONS TOLD TO APPEAL FOR LICENSES

Nineteen owners of saloons in the Englewood and Hyde Park residential districts which recently were closed by police order were informed yesterday that they were pursuing the wrong legal remedy in seeking an injunction to restrain the city administration from interfering with their businesses. Master in Chancery Julius Miner, hearing the court call of Circuit Judge William V. Brothers, informed the petitioners that they should appeal to the Chicago liquor commissioner for licenses under the new state liquor control act.

THREE GUNMEN ROB POSTOFFICE IN RIVER GROVE

Three gunmen entered the postoffice at River Grove, northwestern suburb, shortly after 6 p. m. yesterday and after terrorizing two women employes fled with all the money and stamps in the office.

There were no patrons in the postoffice when the robbers arrived. The leader vaulted over a counter and compelled Mrs. Edna Trumbull, wife of the postmaster, and Miss Olga Streets, a clerk, to lie on the floor while his companions looted the safe. The holdup occupied only a few minutes and both women said they doubted if they would be able to identify the bandits.

It is believed that the trio had parked their automobile about a half block from the postoffice, which is at 8420 West Grand avenue. No estimate of the loot was made and it was reported an audit would have to be made before the amount could be determined.

THE STORE FOR MEN

First at Field's!

We Stole a Beat on the March Hare To Bring Young Men the New Sensation

Hose and Ties of RABBITS' HAIR

And what we mean, it's new! It's a snug, luxurious, easy-feeling new type of material in which soft, downy rabbits' hair is blended with wool and with silk to give you something that's distinctly different. It's one of those things that will score a hit with young men because it has that look of "careless smoothness" everyone is striving for. First at Field's, of course.

THE HOSE

are a combination of rabbits' hair and choice wool. They come in stripes of smart, contrasting shades. They're all snugly warm. Some are "warm" in appearance, too, for those who want them that way. Others are more conservative. Pair $1

THE TIE

These "Thistle-Knit Ties" make the scoop complete. Here are crocheted ties of rabbits' hair and silk, with a thistle-like appearance but silky smooth in their tying qualities. $1.75

CASSEROLE ALASKA

Use 6 rather thick slices of bread, butter them, and break into small pieces. Flake one tall can salmon and combine it with the bread in a baking dish. Beat one egg, add two cups of milk, salt and pepper, and pour over the bread and salmon. Dot the top with bits of butter and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for about half an hour. This recipe serves 4 or 5.

FISH FILLETS WITH MORNAY SAUCE

Wash 2 pounds of fish fillets and place in kettle, cover with hot water, add 1 small onion, 1 bay leaf, ½ teaspoon thyme leaves, 2 or 3 sprigs parsley, and 1 teaspoon salt. Simmer for 10 minutes. Lift fish gently from liquid, place in a large shallow baking dish, keep in a warm place. Strain the fish liquid, combine one cup with 1 cup milk and thicken with the blended butter and flour (3 tablespoons each). Add ½ cup of grated cheese to this sauce, more salt if needed, and pour the sauce over the fish. Sprinkle ½ cup grated cheese over the top and place in a hot oven until the top is a delicate brown. Garnish with parsley and serve in baking dish. Serves 6 to 8 persons.

CHEESE FONDUE

Heat 1¾ cups milk in a double boiler, add 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter and cook for a few minutes. Add 2 cups grated cheese and 2 beaten eggs and stir until cheese has melted and mixture thickened slightly. Season with salt and pepper. Serve on thin slices of toast or toasted crackers. Serves 4 persons.

BAKED SPAGHETTI WITH EGGS

Cook ½ package of spaghetti for 10 to 15 minutes, until tender, in lightly boiling water and drain. Make a sauce of 1 pint milk, 3 tablespoons flour and 3 tablespoons butter. Add ½ chopped green pepper and a little Worcestershire sauce to season. Add 1 teaspoon salt and some pepper to sauce and combine with cooked spaghetti and pour into a shallow baking dish. Break 6 eggs on the spaghetti and bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are set. Serve in baking dish.

SEN. ROBINSON ADMITS FEAR OF U. S. BANKRUPTCY

Warns Against Continuation of Dole Systems.

Robinson Takes Umbrage.

"It would not follow any such thing," snapped Senator Robinson, "and I do not believe that any one but the senator from Missouri would make that suggestion. I think he has even gone beyond his own conception of the true relations of controversies."

"I will say to the senator from Arkansas that that statement is absolutely unjustified," retorted Senator Clark.

"If the senator will let me talk a little in my own time, or will ask me to yield, I will appreciate it. I will be glad to yield to him if he wishes to have me yield, but the senator is a skilled parliamentarian, and he knows better than to interrupt while some one else is talking."

"I beg the senator's pardon," said Mr. Clark.

Connally Charges Retaliation.

Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], said the senate amendment would turn the CWA into a political patronage institution. He charged that senators supporting the amendment were retaliating for failure to get the President to appoint their friends to jobs.

The senate already had approved that part of the conference report on the bill providing for payment of compensation to CWA workers for injuries sustained in the line of their work. The maximum fixed for any one injury is $3,500. Monthly compensation is limited to $25, which may continue for 11 years. For injuries sustained up to date, the government would be required to pay 14 millions.

Senator George W. Norris [Radical, Neb.,] and Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], confessed they were amazed that so many could have been injured in the three months the CWA has been in existence. There are 142 claims for death, 14,000 for personal injury.

One in 300 Injured.

"That means," said Senator Millard Tydings [Dem., Md.], "that one person has been injured out of less than every 300 people employed in the short while they have been working. If they work a year, therefore, probably one out of every 150 who work will be injured. If they have been permanently injured they will get pensions and if they have not been permanently injured they will get compensation in the meantime. It seems to me these figures for injuries are much higher than would prevail in similar normal private industries."

Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] asked if the CWA workers are "employés in the proper sense." Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] replied that they are and that "the insinuation they are something else is unjustified."

Small Nose of Big Camel.

"I do not think it is necessary," said Senator Thomas P. Gore [Dem., Okla.], "for senators to worry or to weep for other opportunities to spend the taxpayers' money. This amendment is the very small nose of a very large camel, and the camel will occupy the tent before many moons have waxed and waned."

The conference report limits the employment of CWA workers in federal departments. Senator Wagner said this would throw 400,000 to 500,000 men out of work.

SAUCY VALENTINES OUT TODAY WITH THE SAME OLD MESSAGE

"Will you be my valentine?" is being asked all over Chicago today. Judging by the volume of sales reported from loop department and book stores, the old fashioned custom of "valentine missives" has not lessened in popularity.

Today's valentines, many of them, are saucy and amusing in comparison to the simple sentiments of 1835 to 1875 hidden in billows of paper lace. Many cards of this period were on display at the Chicago Historical society yesterday. One of them had a tiny mirror showing through the lacy cover. "Look at My Beloved" was the invitation extended to the recipient of the valentine. Another disclosed a series of overlapping delicate paper lace doors, surrounded by a tiny garden, which finally divulged the following, written in script:

O, smile, my dear,
That I may see
Love dwells within Thy heart for me.

This card was dated 1835.

Take this down:
You're just my type, and do we click?
I'll say we do—but, gee!
Now get this straight, and get it quick—
You can't dictate to me!

Another valentine sentiment to suit the strawberry cover was, "You're the berries! I'd pick you any time!"

SOMBER COLORS DOOMED, STATE CLOTHIERS HOPE

Looking forward to the best spring business in several years, members of the Illinois Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers in convention at Hotel Sherman yesterday said they placed their hopes on NRA wages, reëmployment, and leisure to put an end to somber "depression colors."

"Not only light tans and grays, but even pastel shades of greens and blues ought to come into favor," said A. C. Emrich of Freeport, president of the association. "The mental states common during a depression lead men to select plain dark fabrics, partly for psychological and partly for practical reasons. The upturn in confidence as well as in buying power should sweep a lot of navy blue and oxford grays into discard."

Men need more clothes if they have more leisure, said another speaker, B. J. Cahn, president of B. Kuppenheimer & Co. He declared that what is "almost a new social order" is being developed, leading to a greater demand for both sports and dress clothes. An increase in sports clothing purchases has already been noted, he said.

The dealers predicted a wide acceptance of less conservative style details, including pinch-backs, bellows backs, and half belted backs in suit coats, and twin plaits in trousers for both business and golf wear. Golf slacks with side zipper openings are another novelty which the retailers believe will meet with favor.

AUSTRALIA READY TO BUY FROM U. S. ON BARTER BASIS

Insists American Imports Must Be Increased.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 13.—Efforts of the United States to foster greater trade with Australia will require not only a concentration of real salesmanship but a closer study of possible reciprocal tariffs and more active trading conditions between the two countries, according to a research into the subject made by the writer of the article.

The balance of trade between the United States and Australia has always been favorable to the former by ratios ranging from 2 to 1 to 8 to 1. This fact has made Australian government and business heads wonder why better trading conditions should be accorded the United States if Uncle Sam will not buy more products from Australia.

The Market Is There.

Having lived among Australians for more than a decade and knowing their quick response to buy American goods that please them, the writer with confidence vouches that a wealthy ready market in Australia awaits American products, despite empire preferential tariffs, as soon as the monetary exchange between the two countries reaches somewhat comparable stabilization and as soon as the United States determines to buy more Australian primary products direct from the commonwealth.

The peak year of American sales of goods to Australia was 1926, when Uncle Sam sold $165,000,000 worth of goods to Australia's meager population of six million people. In the same year the United States purchased only $45,000,000 worth of wool, skins, hides, rabbit furs and mining ore direct from Australia. These figures, however, do not include the millions of dollars worth of Australian wools purchased indirectly through England.

In 1929 Australia bought $1,50,110,000 worth of American goods and sold Uncle Sam only $31,968,000 worth of primary products. The depression, coupled with the depreciation of the Australian pound 25 per cent below the depreciated English pound, caused America's exports to Australia to drop in 1932 to $26,817,000. In the same bad year Uncle Sam purchased only $4,643,000 worth of products from Australia.

Ottawa Pact a Blow.

Of course the Ottawa imperial tariff agreement by which Australia gave Great Britain and her dominions preferential duties over foreign competitors gave American trade to the antipodes a severe blow.

The Ottawa agreement already has cost the United States a loss of millions in trade to Australia, as by reciprocal trade treaties between Australia and Great Britain the latter purchased millions of dollars' worth of wheat, flour, barley, fresh and dried fruits, tinned fruits and other goods which in the past had been purchased from America.

On the other hand the revolutionary change in the Australian automobile trade is noteworthy. Ten years ago the United States sold Australia close to 90 per cent of all cars in the commonwealth. In 1933 less than 50 per cent of the imported cars were American. In 1929 America sold Australia 83,802 automobiles and 27,198 motor trucks, but in 1932 only 2,605 automobiles and 474 trucks.

Competition with U. S. Farmer.

Tobacco, gasoline and oils, lumber, electrical and industrial machinery, automobiles, motion pictures, and manufactured goods of all descriptions make up the bulk of Australia's imports from the United States.

Australia, being strictly an agricultural country, is a competitor of the United States in the products the latter raises. Australia has for sale wool, vast surplus quantities of wheat, fruits, rich ore, hides and skins, wines and pearls. With the exception of wool, the United States produces practically all of its own requirements. However, with probable increases in the sale of American goods to Australia, it is suggested by industrial and shipping men in Australia that America could divert more of its purchases of Australian wool and ores direct to Australia and thus fill the empty ships that return from Australia to America.

The influence of the United States in the lives of the Australian people, in their customs, their dress and general development in the building of their homes and cities is a marked one. American newspapers, magazines, music, books, plays, and motion pictures have for years wielded a strong American influence over the Australian people. Despite the fact that 98 per cent of the people are of British descent the Australian public will admit that they have many things and sentiments of freedom in common with Americans.

Good Shipping Facilities.

Shipping facilities between Australia and America are quicker than between the commonwealth and Europe. In short, there are no serious handicaps in service for better trade between America and Australia.

The foregoing should give one a safe presumption that the Australian public is receptive to things American. In fact, it is safe to say that all tariffs and monetary exchange being somewhat near equal, the Australian will favor the American made article in preference to any other. Price, of course, makes a difference, but as the "bouncing" dollar is getting more and more to a lower gold content in closer value with the pound, this element should be settled so the Australian public can buy American goods in Australia as cheaply as other foreign articles.

Repay Relief Money Taken by Fraud; Put on Probation

Steve Scilapis, 55 years old, and his wife Angeline, 40 years old, 1737 Arcade place, pleaded guilty yesterday to obtaining $902 in public relief while they had a bank account of $4,000. Municipal Judge John Gutknecht admitted them to probation when he was informed that they had repaid the amount in full to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

TRAYLOR HOLDING HIS OWN AFTER SLIGHT RELAPSE

Heart Retains Strength, Doctor Says.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, who suffered a slight relapse yesterday afternoon in his fight against pneumonia, late last night was reported to be sleeping well. His temperature at 11 p. m. was 100, his pulse 114 and respiration 38.

Early in the evening, a few hours after the relapse, Dr. William Cubbins, who is attending Mr. Traylor at his home, 426 Barry avenue, said that while the patient was not as comfortable as he was on Monday, he still was apparently holding his own.

Breathing Is Difficult.

"The disease is tightening up a bit in the lungs," said Dr. Cubbins, "and this probably caused the slight setback. Mr. Traylor is having some difficulty in breathing. So far his heart has maintained its strength."

The doctor said yesterday's relapse did not compare with that of Saturday night when Mr. Traylor's life "hung by a thread." He explained that such relapses generally occur in regular cycles in most pneumonia cases. He added that with Mr. Traylor the recurrences were irregular and difficult to anticipate.

Pulse Is Strong.

At 5 o'clock Mr. Traylor's pulse was 112. The doctor said it was strong and regular. His temperature remained at 99.8 degrees and his respiration at 42 to the minute.

Although Mr. Traylor was given no sedatives during the day he was constantly given oxygen. Dr. Carl Johnson remained at his bedside throughout the day to administer the gas.

Hawaiians See Sun Eclipse Reach 37 Per Cent Totality

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 13.—(AP)—An eclipse of the sun was viewed in Hawaii today. It reached 37 per cent of totality. The solar shadow began at 2:29 p. m., and lasted until 4:21 p. m. [6.59 p. m., to 8:51 p. m., C. S. T.].

[The path of the total eclipse, though 70 miles wide and 6,000 miles long missed all but a very few inhabitated places of the earth. It coincided with the sunrise at a point 200 miles east of the Malay peninsula, and ended in the ocean at sunset 200 miles off the coast of Alaska. Scientists, including two Americans sailed to Losap island in the Carolines, equatorial Pacific, one of the few bits of land where the total eclipse was visible.

BACK IN JAIL

WILLIAM WEBER.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

William Weber, the 17 year old high school student who must serve out his six months jail sentence because his parents refuse to pay a $2,500 judgment granted a woman who was hurt in an accident in which the youth was driving his mother's automobile, surrendered yesterday and last evening was back in the county jail. The youth was surrendered to the sheriff by his father, Michael, 1521 North Mason avenue, on a mandate issued Saturday by the Appellate court.

The surrender brought to an end a two year fight he has made to escape the jail sentence. After a number of appeals the youth was finally ordered to serve the sentence under a special malice count which was part of the judgment.

The complainant in the case is Mrs. Lucille Saliba of Berwyn. She won her judgment in 1932. Mrs. Saliba must pay 50 cents a day for the board of young Weber while he serves his sentence, or he will be released. Her first week's board money, $3.50, was paid to the sheriff yesterday.

300 GIRLS FLEE WEST SIDE FIRE; $200,000 LOSS

Four Firemen Injured in Spectacular Blaze.

More than 300 girl workers fled down fire escapes and stairways to safety yesterday afternoon when a fire caused by two explosions attacked a seven story building at 1213-19 West Van Buren street. The building houses a number of manufacturing concerns.

Four firemen were injured. Apparatus from all fire stations in the area were summoned in response to a 5-11 and two special alarms before the flames were brought under control. The damage was estimated at $200,000.

Starts in Millinery Factory.

The fire originated on the fourth floor of the building where the Sebastian Millinery company is located. A minor explosion occurred in a small room on that floor where naphtha, varnish and other highly explosive liquids used in the hatmaking business were stored.

Firemen responded to the first alarm and extinguished the blaze that followed the explosion. Some of the men had departed and the others were getting ready to leave when a second explosion occurred and flames and dense clouds of smoke poured from the fourth floor windows. The other alarms were then sent in and policemen summoned to the scene.

Girls Flee for Lives.

The girls employed in the building fled for their lives, leaving their hats and coats and other belongings behind them. Some even left their money and pay checks they had just received.

The flames swept quickly upward, burning through the fifth and sixth floors, occupied by the Blair Corset company, and into the seventh, which is occupied by the Century Shirt company and the Peterson Vest company. The building offices were on the first floor, a printing shop on the second and a dress company on the third.

All vehicular traffic in nearby streets was tied up for some time and more than 100 policemen were summoned to the scene to hold back the thousands of spectators who crowded about.

The firemen injured were Lieut. William Peterson of Engine Company No. 103, who was burned about the face and hands when he was overcome while working on the fifth floor; Thomas Doherty of the Insurance Patrol No. 1, who stepped on a nail; Charles Hynes of Truck Company No. 1, who was overcome, and Edward Petrick of Tower No. 1, cut about the face and hands by glass.

BANDIT PAIR ROB STORE.

Two robbers yesterday afternoon entered the cigar store of Harry Milner at 5001 South Ashland avenue and compelled the owner to surrender $25. As the pair fled Milner seized a pistol, ran to the street and fired five times at them.

SHIP RESCUES TWO STOWAWAYS ABOARD RAFT IN THE PACIFIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Feb. 13.—After spending two days aboard a six foot raft of their own make amid shark infested Pacific seas John Pitzer, 19, of Oklahoma, and Arthur Martin, 27, an Estonian, arrived at Cristobal today aboard the American steamer Santa Elena. They were taken aboard Feb. 7 when their improvised craft was sighted by the vessel 15 miles off San Telmo, Lower California.

Their story began on Jan. 25 at Galveston, Tex., when they stowed away on the Karuma Maru, a tramp steamer bound for the Far East. The captain discovered them the day after sailing and tried to put them ashore at Cristobal. The port authorities refused to admit them and six days later, in the Pacific ocean, the men learned that the ship would call at San Pedro, Cal., for coal.

To avoid being turned over to San Pedro authorities the stowaways built a frail raft and took to the water.

Canal authorities again refused them permission to land today and when the Santa Elena sailed for New York this afternoon they were still aboard.

SCOUTS START TO COMPLY WITH ROOSEVELT PLEA

In response to President Roosevelt's recent appeal to the Boy Scouts of America to do a "national good turn" on the occasion of their 24th anniversary celebration, the 17,000 Chicago Scouts began a citywide search yesterday for old furniture and clothing to be given to families on the relief rolls. The articles will be turned over to church relief committees or the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

Families who do not know any Boy Scouts should telephone the Scout headquarters at 9 West Washington street, if they have articles to contribute to the campaign. Scout troops in churches or institutions having their own relief organizations, will be given credit for the material collected and turned over to them.

Other activities in celebration of Boy Scout week have included radio talks by Chicago Scout executives, "parents' nights" at troop headquarters, and window displays of scoutcraft in loop department stores. The celebration of Boy Scout week ends today, but the "national good turn" campaign will continue until Feb. 26, when a "President's report dinner" will be held at the Hotel Sherman.

ROBBED OF $98 IN HOME.

St. Paul Man Offers Free to Stomach Sufferers

St. Paul, Minn.—Wm. H. Fraser, of this city, believes he has an outstanding discovery for victims of Acid Stomach, Gas Pains, Belching, Indigestion, and other symptoms of excess acidity. Thousands have written to him highly praising this treatment, which is known as Udga. Mr. Fraser, Suite A, Foot-Schulze Bldg., St. Paul, Minn., is always glad to hear from stomach sufferers and will send a free sample to anyone who writes him. The seven-day trial box of Udga Tablets is sold under a money-back guarantee of satisfaction by all good druggists.

Here's Joyful News for Rheumatic Sufferers

Swiftly and Safely Uric Acid Starts To Go—in 24 Hours

Killing the pain of neuritis, sciatica and rheumatism with dope doesn't end your agony—you've got to get the excess uric acid out of your joints and muscles.

Thousands joyfully praise ALLENRU because they know by experience that when taken as directed the pain—the agony of rheumatism, backache, sciatica and neuritis—leaves the body in 48 hours—no matter how stubborn and persistent.

Leading druggists everywhere know that ALLENRU is so swiftly effective that one bottle is guaranteed to do exactly as stated or money back and the price is but 85c.

PAY FOR JUDGES BLOCKS EFFORT TO CUT BUDGET

Arvey Urges Refusal of Funds for Supplies.

In a six hour session yesterday the city council finance committee strove to reduce an overappropriation of nearly two millions in the tentative 1934 corporate budget, but failed to get appropriations down to the $44,000,000 figure which represents the aldermanic estimate of revenue for this year.

The Municipal court proved to be the major stumbling block in the reduction process and the cause for 90 minutes of argument. The court, which has power to enforce its demand for money, has requested $2,505,671 for 1934, an increase of $521,482 over the 1933 figure. Nearly all of the increase comes from the judges' demand for full salaries for themselves and the court employés.

Must Return Back Pay.

The city not only is compelled to set up those salaries without the 78 days' pay cut given to other city employés but, under an order of Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan, the aldermen must return to the judges $136,000 taken from their salaries in 1932 and 1933. This order applies also to the pay of aldermen and city officials elected or appointed to definite terms.

The finance committee by a 9 to 8 vote put off a decision on the court's appropriation until today, but Chief Justice Sonsteby and 29 of his associates who signed the appropriation request were criticized roundly by nearly every member of the committee.

"We are powerless because of the court's authority," said Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], "but let's cripple the judges by refusing to give them money for furniture and fixtures, printing and other supplies, and perhaps they'll come to terms. At least that will focus public attention on the judges and their aversion to pay cuts.

Willing to Go to Jail.

"Or, let's put the subject squarely up to the judges. Inform them that if they insist in their attitude we'll have to take nearly $500,000 out of the appropriations for police, fire and health services to the public. For myself, I'd much rather go to jail than vote them full pay."

The aldermen then passed on to their own salaries. These they decided to set up minus 78 days' pay, but their compensation for automobile maintenance that had been eliminated a few days ago went back into the budget at last year's figure of $48 a month. The salaries of other city officials were restored to the pre-depression basis and an appropriation made to return to them deductions suffered in 1932 and 1934 in compliance with the order of Judge Sullivan.

The budget as it now stands resembles in most details the recommendations made to the council by City Controler Upham with the exception of the bureau of streets, where a cut of $1,486,017 made by the controler was restored by the aldermen. Vacancies are not to be filled, and city employés are docked 78 days' pay with the exception of the policemen and firemen, whose salaries are to be cut only by 52 days' pay.

Band Concerts Cut Out.

Earlier in the day the aldermen followed up previous deletions of such items as $1,000 for the purchase of works of art created by local talent by refusing the Drama league an equal amount for entertainment purposes on Navy pier. They also turned thumbs down on a request from James Petrillo of the Musicians' union for $10,000 for band concerts.

Sessions will continue today with the expectation that the budget in its final form can be completed by the end of this week.

PONZI LEAVES HIS PRISON TODAY ONLY TO FACE DEPORTATION

Boston, Mass., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Charles Ponzi, financial wizard, whose "get rich quick" scheme brought him a long prison term and sorrow to thousands of investors a decade ago, today was getting ready to leave the state prison tomorrow.

Ponzi will have only time for one quick breath of free air, however, for federal officers will be waiting to arrest him on a deportation warrant. The warrant calls for his immediate deportation to Italy, his homeland.

No one ever was able to determine definitely, but it was estimated that between 7 and 20 millions passed through Ponzi's hands during the height of the bubble. It did not burst until the authorities pricked it, for Ponzi continued to operate and continued to pay just as long as the officials left his doors open.

It was later shown in court that he was "robbing Peter to pay Paul" and that hundreds of clients would receive back only a trifling percentage of the savings they had entrusted to him.

FORECLOSES ON FARM MORTGAGE; MOB GETS ROPE

Milladore, Wis., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Charles Kohel, Milladore farmer, today narrowly escaped violence at the hands of more than 200 farmers, who protested his action in foreclosing on a mortgage he held on the William Smazal farm and dispossessing the latter and his family Monday.

Kohel forced William Smazal, his wife, their ill baby, and a brother, Charles Smazal, to evacuate the farm home and moved their furniture out onto the road, authorities said. The Smazal family went to the home of another brother.

After a protest meeting last night, the farmers assembled at the Kohel home today and forced him to sign an agreement extending Smazal's mortgage for 30 days. Smazal had applied for a federal loan but had not yet received it.

After Kohel had signed the agreement, the crowd of farmers took exception to statements he supposedly made. They procured a rope and started to drag Kohel toward a tree, but Deputy Sheriff Ervin Rey prevailed upon them to release him.

4 Nonchalant Gunmen Get $300 from Hotel

Four gunmen strolled casually into the lobby of the Pearson hotel, 190 East Pearson street, yesterday afternoon. Paying no attention to ten men and women in the lobby, the four drew revolvers and forced the clerk, James Taylor, to hand over $300. They walked out and drove away in an automobile in which a fifth man was seated at the wheel.

ASSESSOR BARES IRREGULARITIES IN BAIL BONDS

Shows Property Listed at Far Above True Value.

Irregularities in real estate bonds accepted for bail during the last year in the Criminal court were revealed yesterday in an analysis of real estate bonds submitted to State's Attorney Courtney by Assessor J. L. Jacobs. The study was turned over to the prosecutor to aid him in his campaign to curb bail bond abuses.

The analysis discloses that the value of property offered for bonds has been valued far above its true value. In hundreds of cases listed in the analysis the value of the property is only a fraction of the bond for which it has been put up as surety. In many other cases it is shown that the same property has been taken as surety for various defendants on the same day or within a few days after it had already been pledged on inflated values.

Charges Violations of Law.

The assessor said his report showed violations of the law providing that the value of real estate offered for bonding purposes should be twice the amount of the bond. It also shows, he said, that no precautions have been taken to determine the equity of the person offering surety in the property scheduled.

In the case of one lot, whose full value was fixed by the assessor at $37, it was found that it had been accepted (as surety in five instances within a month for bonds totaling $11,000. The owner of the property, H. Scott, whose address is not known, fixed its value at between $3,000 and $10,000.

"Responsibility for these irregularities may be difficult to determine," said Mr. Jacobs. "It is possible that many of the owners may be innocent and that the ballooning of values is the work of unscrupulous attorneys and professional bondsmen. However, in the majority of the cases it must be assumed that they are the knowing tools of the lawyers and bondsmen."

Show Bond Irregularities.

The subjoined figures, taken at random, show some examples of the irregularities discovered. The following table shows eight properties scheduled for bail bond—some of them several times, it will be noted—giving the address of each property, the amount of the bond, the owner's valuation, and the full value of the property as determined by the assessor's appraisers:

In some of the cases noted in the foregoing table the same property was scheduled for two or more bonds in the same day.

Gets Valuation from Court.

Mr. Jacobs said he had made the analysis to trap possible complainants before the board of tax appeals. He obtained the list of properties on which bonds were issued from the clerk of the Criminal court and set the valuations made by his staff against those of the owner.

"When a complainant who has made a valuation for bonding purposes appears before the board he is met by a representative of my office," said Mr. Jacobs. "We ask him if he ever offered the property for a bond and what he valued it at when he did so. Usually the property owner says he has forgotten what the value was at the time. We can show him. This usually sends him away with a red face.

"But it does not always do so. I remember one case of a complainant who had scheduled his property at about five times its actual worth. The board of appeals gave him the reduction he wanted anyhow."

Assessor Jacobs offered Prosecutor Courtney the facilities of his office so that the valuation set by the owner might be compared with that set by the assessor. Bonds made at the value determined by his office will be much more secure than those issued in the past, Mr. Jacobs said.

BANKER TESTIFIES ON WARNING GIVEN TO STONE OFFICIALS

Nearly a year before H. O. Stone & Co., defunct real estate investment house, failed for $14,000,000 officials of the company were advised not to sell their stocks to the public. This was brought out yesterday by Arthur Newton, vice president of the First National bank, who testified in the trial of five former officials of the company, charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

In the fall of 1929, the witness said, Henry F. Norcott, former president of the investment house and one of the defendants, asked the bank to lend his company $150,000 or the concern would have "to close shop." The loan was refused at the time, but advanced later when Mrs. Norcott furnished additional collateral.

RAID APARTMENT FOR RECORDS IN $500,000 FRAUD

Policemen from the state's attorney's office yesterday raided an apartment at 609 Stratford place, the home of Louis W. Gruber, former purchasing agent for the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, who is alleged to have defrauded his employers of more than half a million dollars. Gruber, who is a fugitive, was indicted Friday on a charge of obtaining signatures to a written instrument with intent to defraud.

In the apartment the police found his wife, Mrs. E. Beverley Gruber, 30 years old. She was suffering from hunger. At the Town Hall station, where she was taken for questioning, she told Assistant State's Attorney James A. Brown she had been afraid to leave the house while police guards were at the doors. She added that she had not heard from her husband since Friday, when he told her he was going to Houston, Tex.

The search warrant on which the raid was made stated that the authorities wished to seize records bearing on the Monarch Specialties company, the Century Products company, and the Shawnee Erline company. These, it has been alleged, were dummy corporations set up by Gruber to handle frauds. Mr. Brown was hopeful that the records would be in a safe found in the flat, which will be opened today.

Knock Out that COLD!
Give It No Chance To Get Going!
A cold once under way is a cold hard to drive away! Let no cold endanger you. At the first chill or sneeze take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It usually makes short work of a cold because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it gets at a cold from the inside. A cold, you know, is an internal infection and calls for internal treatment.
Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine means COMPLETE relief because it is a COMPLETE treatment. It does all the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the action you want, and anything less is taking chances. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute.

"AN EYE TO THE FUTURE — AN EAR TO THE GROUND"

—this describes General Motors' policy, a policy by which the public is given what it wants in better cars year after year, and yet is safely protected against ill-timed or dubious experiments

The three outstanding advancements in modern automobiles—NO DRAFT-VENTILATION, KNEE-ACTION WHEELS, STREAMLINE DESIGN—the trio which captures public interest and public approval wherever new cars are shown—are each and all General Motors contributions!

Three in a row!

HOW the well-dressed 1934 motor car will look is no longer an engineer's guess.

The good sense and the good taste of the people of America are settling that question in a fashion no one can mistake.

By their plain-spoken approval of the new General Motors cars the people have definitely set the vogue for streamlining of mature refinement.

It would be foolish to deny our pleasure at meeting so accurately the public's taste, yet we realize what credit belongs to the public also.

Our successful 1934 streamline designs did not leap full-born into being; they are of deliberate growth, rather than of abrupt inspiration.

Years are behind them, years of stern work in laboratory and on proving grounds, a total of experience on streamlined motor cars, railway trains, airplanes, unmatched in the world.

But the soundness of our 1934 designs found priceless advance verification from the public itself—hundreds of thousands of motorists told our Customer Research Staff just what they wanted.

HOW GENERAL MOTORS LEADERSHIP KEEPS IN STEP WITH YOUR DESIRES

FIRST—The vast and varied activities in research and experiment pursued by General Motors cover virtually the whole field of transportation. Its work in aero-streamlining over many years, for example, embraces airplanes, automobiles, even railway trains.

SECOND—Through the largest automotive dealer organization in the world General Motors is in close understanding of the public mind; and last year this understanding was verified and double-checked by more than a million consumer research letters sent to automobile owners.

THIRD—It is a hard and fast policy of General Motors to suffer its own mistakes, to test and prove every innovation under conditions beyond those of normal use, to protect the buyer against any experiment of doubtful utility or value.

FOURTH—The balanced excellence of General Motors cars in 1934 as in other years includes ample and numerous features such as safe, smart, roomier Fisher Bodies, perfected No-Draft Ventilation, Knee-Action Wheels, smoother, more powerful motors, better brakes, to mention just a few.

And we can cite Knee-Action Wheels, No-Draft Ventilation, Streamline Designs as triumphs three-in-a-row! because our will to progress is linked with willingness to listen to the people's own desires!

This medallion commemorates the twenty-fifth anniversary of General Motors and of its public-minded interest in the advancement of motor transportation

TAX RATES TOLD FOR SEVEN MORE COUNTRY TOWNS

First Personal Property Bills Mailed Out.

County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer yesterday made public the 1932 tax rates for seven more Cook county townships outside of the city. The rates for the eight townships in Chicago and for 13 other country townships have already been announced. Rates for the 10 remaining country townships will be completed within a few days.

Last night County Treasurer McDonough mailed out the first of the 1932 personal property bills, sending 5,200 to the city township of South Chicago. It had been planned to mail the South Chicago real estate bills at the same time but they are not completed.

The treasurer announced that after all the bills have been mailed to South Chicago, the bills for the country townships will be sent out before those for the remaining city townships. The bills for the entire county total 1,125,000 for real estate and 1,031,000 for personal property.

How to Calculate Rates.

A taxpayer in any of the seven townships for which the rates were completed yesterday may now calculate his tax rate for each $100 of assessed valuation by adding the basic rate, which varies in each township, to the school, park and bond district rates, and in some instances the sanitary district and village rates, depending on where he lives. The basic rate is the sum of the state, county, forest preserve, township and road and bridge rates, with the sanitary district and township high school rates added when applicable to the entire township.

In those parts of the townships of Calumet, Maine and Niles which lie within the city of Chicago, the taxpayer must also add the city and the school board rates to the basic rate. In the townships of Evanston, New Trier and Niles, the North Shore Mosquito Abatement district rate is included in the basic rate.

With the total rate known, the tax bill may be calculated by multiplying the assessed valuation of the taxpayer's property by the rate and then placing the decimal point in the result two places to the left.

Assessed valuations for 1932 may be learned at the office of Assessor J. L. Jacobs in the county building, but will not be given out by telephone.

Explanation for Cicero.

In the table of rates for the township of Cicero, announced Monday, the basic rate was given as $3.68. Deputy collectors of Cicero explained yesterday that the basic rate might be considered as $7.54 because the rates for school district 99 and high school district 201, which were listed separately at $1.98 and $1.88 respectively, prevail throughout the township and should be included as part of the basic rate.

The Cicero taxpayer may now estimate his total rate by merely adding his park district rate and the joint school bond district rate, if it applies to him, to the basic rate of $7.54.

Jarecki Divides Work.

County Judge Jarecki yesterday assigned Judge J. G. Van Keuren of Pinckneyville, who has been sitting in the Cook county court, to hear tax receivership petitions filed under the Kerner-Skarda act. Judge Jarecki will devote his entire time for the next few days to hearing the petition of the Chicago Real Estate board for a 15 per cent reduction in the 1931 real estate assessments on homes and small flat buildings in the county. The hearing will be resumed today after a postponement of several weeks.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $391,231, making a total of $106,080,588 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 25, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Feb 13	$ 23,500	$ 71,473
Uncollected	15,278,207	40,946,311

HOW HE OUSTED INSULLS TOLD BY McCULLOCH

Denounces Management of Middle West.

with Insull in the middle, Hurley on the left, and me on the right," Mr. McCulloch explained. "Insull said he supposed we'd want desks and told Junior to see about it, implying that our offices would be right there. I said, 'Wait a minute; I want my own office.' I moved my stuff in next morning."

A few days later—on or about April 20, 1932—Mr. McCulloch said, there was a conference at the Continental bank. There was a question whether Middle West could regain title to $10,000,000 of securities which was in a trust deposit with the Bankers' Trust company, New York, and on which Martin Insull had granted the New York bank a lien as additional security on a loan. There was a discussion also of who should be employed to audit the Middle West books, Insull insisting on Arthur Young & Co., whom he had formerly employed. Melvin Traylor, president of the First National bank, was present, Mr. McCulloch recalled.

Stock Abstraction Told.

"The meeting wasn't getting anywhere," Mr. McCulloch said. "At one point Traylor called me to a corner and asked if I'd been told about Martin Insull and Marshall Sampsell. I said I hadn't."

Mr. Traylor's reference, the receiver explained, was to Sampsell's abstraction of 3,000 shares of Central and Southwest stock from the Central Illinois Public Service company, of which he was president, and to Martin Insull's abstraction of other stocks, which caused the indictment of both Insulls in the state court. Both abstractions were to cover private accounts of Sampsell and the Insulls, according to previous testimony.

"I asked Insull about it the minute we left the bank and got into his cab," Receiver McCulloch said. "He turned to Junior, who was riding with us, and said Hurley and I should have been told before. I said Sampsell would have to quit that same day, and Insull told Junior to get his resignation."

Back at the office, the receiver continued, Samuel Insull said he wanted to "take care of Martin," and suggested that he be named chairman of the subsidiary Kentucky Utilities company at $30,000 a year. The receiver said he countered with a demand that Martin also resign, and Insull, confronted with the evidence against his brother, agreed to tell him to go.

Turns down Martin's Plea.

"Sam Insull called me up next morning and said Martin had told him my demand would mean sacrificing his livelihood," Mr. McCulloch went on. "I said I didn't want to deprive any man of his livelihood, but did he get that resignation. Sam said no, but he would ask Martin again, to save me embarrassment. I said it was no embarrassment to me and told him to send Martin in right now.

Before the moment he came into my office, I'd never seen Martin in my life. I said I was sorry for him, but there was nothing I could do. He asked why I was taking his position away and I told him I had learned he signed a note and turned collateral over to Sampsell. He said Sam had done that, and without his knowledge. I asked him if it wasn't a fact that he'd given an order to hand over 9,000 shares of Central and Southwest Utilities to his broker. He said his brother was aware of that also.

"I wound it up by telling him that according to my information it was the rottenest management I had ever heard of and he had the world beat and I wanted his resignation. He gave it to me."

It was on April 25, the receiver said, that Martin Insull turned in his resignation, covering the presidency of Middle West and offices in 96 subsidiaries. It was about April 29, he added, that Samuel Insull came once more interceding for Martin.

"'My brother hasn't got a dollar in the world, and if you could pay him for the ten days he has served since the receivership,'" Mr. McCulloch quoted Samuel Insull as suggesting. "I answered: 'Not one dollar will he get from the receivers,' and he didn't."

Samuel Insull stayed on as receiver, the witness recalled, until the afternoon of June 3, 1932. The previous afternoon, he said, Bruce Johnstone, one of his attorneys, came to him with a report that Ralph Shaw, attorney in the receivership of the subsidiary Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, had discovered a defalcation which Samuel Insull ordered there for Martin's benefit. He and Johnstone agreed to notify the court immediately.

The next morning it developed that the bankers had decided that Insull must resign as chairman of the Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas, and Public Service of Northern Illinois companies. There was a conference at the Continental bank.

Demands Ouster of Insull.

"I told the gentlemen present that Insull had to get out of Middle West," Mr. McCulloch said. "They said they didn't want to give him both barrels on the same day. I said I didn't care what they did. Sam Insull's resignation had to be in my hands by 5 o'clock that evening. I said I'd fire the first barrel if I had to, and I did."

Stanley Field, then chairman of the Continental and later chairman of the three operating companies, was delegated to tell Insull he must quit the operating companies, Mr. McCulloch explained. Mr. Field came to the Middle West offices and was closeted with Insull for 25 minutes.

"They came out together," McCulloch said, "and I told Insull to wait a minute—I wanted to see him. He came into my office and I said he must have had a bad 25 minutes. He said he had. I said in view of his resignation from the operating companies, I wanted him toresign as Middle West receiver also. He asked if I thought he should. I said yes."

They rode home together in a cab, the receiver recollected, and, as they arrived at Insull's door, Insull patted him on the knee. "He looked at me and said, 'Charlie, if I had had a man like you around me ten years ago who would tell me no, I wouldn't be out now.' I said, 'You're wrong there, Sam, for if I had been around ten years ago you would have chased me down the corridor as you did other good men.'"

Insull broke down during this interchange, the receiver said. There were tears in his eyes as he left the cab to face Mrs. Insull. "I've got a melancholy wife," was his reference to her, McCulloch said.

On cross-examination by Mr. Ettelson, the receiver said that although great operating economies had been effected, the company was still in "doubtful position." He gave it as his opinion, however, that the company might be reorganized within the next eight or nine months. He denied there had been any collusion in his appointment and asserted that, far from giving preference to the First National bank, of which he is a director, he, as receiver of Middle West, had secured substantial concessions from the bank.

$40,000,000 Equity Lost.

"We've lost a $40,000,000 equity in the National Electric Power company," the receiver said, referring to the eastern holding company through which Middle West once controled utilities from Maine to Florida.

"We had a proposition for John W. Auchincloss, director of the Chase bank, to be receiver with myself of National Electric to hold the properties together, but the other banks wouldn't agree. Then Ed Hurley tried to borrow $20,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to rescue our collateral, which the banks were holding, but that fell through."

The receiver twirled the pocket knife on his watch chain as he recited his struggles with the New York banks.

"No, they wouldn't go along," he reflected, "and I dare say that as a result those same New York banks have more utility business on their hands than banking business."

He continued the recital of Middle West's distress under questioning of Mr. Ettelson. The attorney asked what other aspects of the company's position seemed bad.

"Well, we have a string of Texas ice companies trying to compete with independent companies who can produce ice at half as much per ton as we do. We have a string of bus lines from Jacksonville to Cincinnati—losing business right and left since the railroads cut their rate to a cent and a half a mile. There's still plenty of grief in Middle West."

"Added taxes and the NRA are costing us $2,500,000 a year," Mr. McCulloch added. "But we've cut expenses from $2,050,000 under the Insull management to a present $600,000 or $700,000 a year. I think a reorganization can be effected in eight or nine months. I have no desire to prolong this receivership—I'll resign tomorrow if the judge thinks the receivership should end."

STENCH BOMBS ON SOUTH SIDE.

Stench bombs were buried through plate glass windows at 3113 and 3117 West 111th street yesterday. The store at the first address was to have been opened today as a cash and carry milk depot.

CITY FACES LOSS OF CAR FUND AS CASH RESERVOIR

New Ordinance to Give Trustee Control.

City officials were confronted with a new financial worry yesterday. They feared the city would lose the use of the city traction fund when the 1930 franchise ordinance is accepted by the car companies.

Control of the traction fund has been a boon to the city during the depression years. By investing the fund in city and school board securities, it has served as a reservoir of cash for the payment of public expenses. The fund now totals $63,112,082 of which, it was said yesterday, only about $38,000 is cash. The remainder consists of public promises to pay, including $11,000,000 city bonds, $24,000,000 city tax warrants, and $26,000,000 school tax warrants.

Trustee to Be Named.

The new transit ordinance provides that the traction fund shall be turned over to a bank or trust company as trustee for use in building the State street subway. The trustee is to be chosen by the mayor with the approval of the city council, but the fact that the trustee is chosen in this way, according to city officials, is no guarantee that he will agree to the continued investment of the fund in city securities.

There is a considerable accrual of cash to the fund from time to time due to the maturing of tax warrants and bonds, it was pointed out, and the city and schools, in their present financial straits, need this money for operating expenses.

Mayor Kelly asked Walter L. Fisher, traction attorney, yesterday if it would be possible to amend the traction ordinance so as to assure the city control of the fund for the next three years, by which time, it is figured, the public financial stress will be over. Mr. Fisher replied that such an amendment would require a referendum at a popular election, so the idea was given up as too expensive and cumbersome.

$20,000,000 Interest Saved.

The traction fund has been built up under the old 1907 traction franchise, which required the surface line companies to pay 55 per cent of their net income to the fund.

Victor S. Petterson, deputy city controler, said yesterday that the fund had saved the taxpayers about $20,000,000 in interest charges since 1918, because tax warrants are put into the fund at 2 or 2½ per cent instead of the 6 per cent paid to banks or private investors. Mr. Petterson said that a total of about $47,000,000 has been paid into the fund by the street car companies. The remainder of the $63,000,000 represents increment due to interest payments.

The local transportation committee of the city council called off a public hearing scheduled for yesterday at which opponents of the 1930 ordinance were invited to voice their objections to the grant of an extension of time until July 31 for the car companies to accept the ordinance. No new date was set for the hearing.

CONTRACT IS LET FOR PRINTING OF COUNCIL RECORD

A contract for printing the proceedings of the city council was let by the council at its last meeing to the Champlin-Shealy Printing company on its bid of $8.35 a page. Although the company was only the third lowest bidder, its bid was 5 cents a page lower than the bid of the John F. Higgins Printing company, which has had the contract for more than forty years.

The two bids lower than that of the Champlin-Shealy company were submitted by the Chicago Railway Printing company, $5 a page, and the James T. Igoe Printing and Lithographing company, $5.50 a page. Financial ratings of these two companies were submitted to the council finance committee along with their bids. The aldermen decided after reading the reports that the successful bidder was the lowest responsible bidder.

James T. Igoe, former city clerk and former congressman, was said to be connected with both of the companies that submitted the two lowest bids, one of which was 50 cents higher than the other. The aldermen were told that the journal could not be printed as it has been in the past at the price quoted by the two low bidders.

Sues Rail Inspector for $5,000 Breach of Promise

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Suit was brought in the Vanderburgh county Circuit court today by Miss Zelma Ley, formerly of Akron, O., against Colony Sasseur, Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway inspector, charging breach of marriage contract and asking $5,000 damage.

DIVORCEE, ACCUSER OF LIEUTENANT, WAS DRUNK, FRIENDS SAY

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Five gin highballs were served to Blanche Ralls Boisclaire in an hour one night last October, Mrs. Ruth Mealey, a bootlegger at the time, testified Tuesday in Lieut. John H. Murrel's trial for rape of Mrs. Boisclaire, or Miss Ralls, as the twice divorced complainant is known.

Two army doctors declared it impossible for Murrel, former West Point and University of Minnesota football star, forcibly to commit the attack as described by Miss Ralls.

Murrel flatly denied any assault.

He declared she was unable at first to direct him to her home after three couples, of whom Murrel and Miss Ralls were one, attended a hotel dance and night club party.

Forrest Miller, another member of the party, testified he considered Miss Ralls drunk, hysterical. H. C. Peveler, for 10 years special investigator for the Birmingham, Ala., chief of police and city commission, declared Miss Ralls' general reputation for truth in her home town was bad.

"I did not know what to do with her, sir," Murrel asserted. "She was in a drunken condition. If I had taken her to a hotel I didn't know how to register for her. I didn't want to be seen downtown with her. I didn't want to leave her to the jail or to the street. I only knew she was with our party and I had to take care of her."

The lieutenant asserted he drove Miss Ralls to Fort Sam Houston because his mother was there and he knew she "would take care of her."

SHOWS SCHOOLS HAVE CUT COST $36 PER PUPIL

Legislature Will Be Shown Figures.

The board of education's economy program has brought about a marked reduction in the average yearly cost per pupil in educating the city's half million school children. This was disclosed yesterday by James B. McCahey, president of the school board, who said the annual cost of each student to the taxpayers had decreased from $126.67 in 1931 to $90.68 in 1933.

The trend of savings becomes more evident when a comparison of the last year's cost per pupil is made with the 1924 cost, which amounted to $104.91. The decrease for 1933 was made despite the fact that the average daily attendance of students has increased 62,842 in the last ten years.

The survey of school costs was made after several weeks' work by Harry Bracket, school auditor, and his assistant, R. L. Douglas. The figures showing a reduction in nearly all of the school departments will be used by the school trustees to point out to members of the Illinois legislature that the present school board has put into effect its economy program.

Three legislative proposals designed to relieve the school board's acute financial situation will be introduced in the third special session of the legislature.

Year—	Expenses.	Cost per pupil.
1924	$40,350,169	$104 91
1925	41,882,273	105.96
1926	43,325,000	107.72
1927	46,602,572	112.45
1928	51,845,046	121.17
1929	52,939,163	122.48
1930	55,879,473	126.35
1931	56,617,394	126.67
1932	47,975,439	106.80

JUDGE ASSAILS LIQUOR SALE TO BOYS AND GIRLS

Municipal Judge J. William Brooks in the Boys' court yesterday condemned saloonkeepers who allow youths and girls of the teen ages to buy liquor. He was hearing the cases of five young men and three girls, 16, 17 and 18 years old, who were arrested by police who found them drinking in a saloon at 5054 Lawrence avenue.

"Call these places taverns, tea rooms or any fancy name you wish," the judge said, "but they remain old time saloons. This place is one which comes within the category of places which the mayor wants closed. In my day strict laws were enforced against having minors in liquor dispensing places.

"It's not the saloonkeepers alone who are to blame. I also blame parents."

The judge freed the youths and girls, but fined Reginald Wolff, the bartender, $25. He will hear a motion to vacate the fine on April 25.

House Committee to Hear Plan Today.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The struggle to prove to federal officials that the purchase of Chicago's $40,000,000 school bond issue would be a step toward recovery continued unabated here today. Richard S. Folsom, attorney for the Chicago school board, is leading the drive.

A scheduled appearance of Folsom before a subcommittee of the house committee on banking and currency was postponed until tomorrow. The subcommittee adjourned when a roll call demanded their presence in the house.

Folsom said that he would base his plea on the argument that the Chicago schools, with an enrollment of a half million pupils, would be forced to close unless the federal government is won over to the program suggested by Mayor Kelly.

Mayor Kelly's Plan.

The mayor's plan is contained in a bill introduced by Congressman A. J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.] and referred to the banking and currency committee. This measure would empower the Reconstruction Finance corporation to purchase bonds of a school district with real estate, not used for school purposes, as collateral. The Chicago school board owns $30,000,000 worth of such property.

While Folsom awaited a hearing in the forenoon members of the subcommittee were discussing various measures for lending Uncle Sam's assistance to penniless municipalities. An indication that some school relief might be expected from this session was apparent from questions asked by the congressmen.

Jesse H. Jones, head of the RFC, was called before the committee. Chairman Anning S. Prall [Dem., N. Y.], who several years ago as president of the New York City Board of Education, asked Jones what chance there was to make loans to school districts.

Has Ickes' "Sympathy."

"Well, I think we have gone about as far as the present law allows," replied Jones. "If the government is going to embark on a program of lending money to municipalities I think there should be some kind of yardstick."

Folsom also called on Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, during the day. He asked for the cabinet member's support and sympathy.

"You have my sympathy," said Ickes, "but this is out of my sphere. I'm not the RFC. My opinion is that this question is one for the administration to decide."

Tonight Folsom was busy on his preparation for the hearing. James Simpson Jr. [Rep., Ill.], who is a member of the subcommittee, said that he would steer the questioning and help all he could.

11 Killed, 3 Hurt by Slide in Apennine Mountains, Italy

PESARO, Italy, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Eleven persons were killed and three injured by a landslide today in the village of San Lorenzo in the Apennine mountains. Heavy rains caused the slide, which measured 800 feet across, and wrecked four houses. This was the second disaster within a week in the region. The other caused 35 deaths when an avalanche of snow descended upon Bolognola and other nearby towns.

RESCUERS TAKE CHICAGO YACHT SAFELY IN TOW

Dering's Exploring Party Helpless in Storm.

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The exploration yacht, Uvira, battered helpless by a storm 80 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, was taken in tow tonight by the coast guard cutter, Pontchartrain, after the steamship, Atenas, which picked up her distress call, raced 39 miles to stand by.

The Pontchartrain reported the 36 amateur explorers on the yacht safe. The message did not say to what port the cutter was towing her, but it was thought Norfolk, Va.

Boom Carried Away.

The yacht's main boom was carried away, one of her first wireless messages reported.

It was the second time in a week that the yacht, with her crew of adventure seekers heading for Central American waters, had been in trouble. Last Friday as she left Brooklyn she ran aground in Ambrose channel, an incident the coast guards ascribed to amateur navigation.

The expedition was headed by Jackson K. Dering of Chicago, and among those reported to be aboard were Mrs. Dering and Miss Peggy Howse of Evanston.

The first distress call was picked up by the liner and the coast guard shortly before noon, and it was not until 5:30 p. m. [eastern standard time] that the Atenas reached her side.

Bound for Tropic Seas.

The Uvira sailed out of New York last week. Dering and his companions planned to photograph tropical fish with a deep sea camera, search for a lost Mayan city and for the white Indians of Central America, to try to find a fresh water lake in Nicaragua in which salt water fish abound and to hunt for mineral deposits.

Scientific expeditions also were to be made by the party to Tiburon island, in the Gulf of California, to investigate reports that cannibalism exists there, and into the interior of Mexico to search for lost cities of the Mayan civilization.

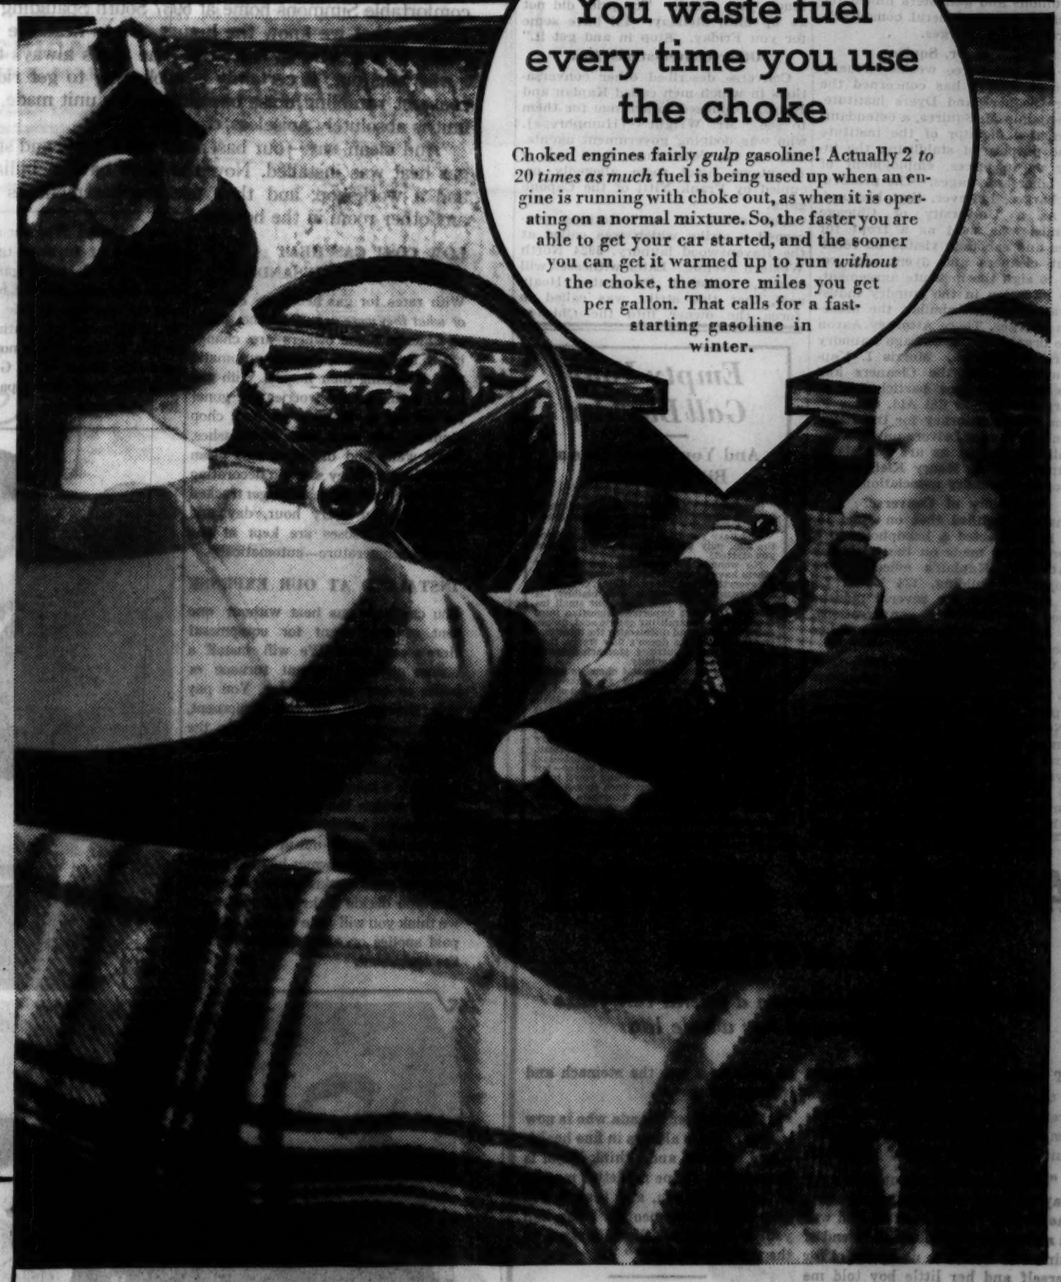
STANDARD'S 1934 WINTER GASOLINE

REDUCES AMOUNT OF FUEL USED IN STARTING, 30% TO 50%

- Starts Cold Engines Faster
- Cuts Need of Choke to Minimum
- Turns All Your Gasoline Money Into Miles



You waste fuel every time you use the choke

Choked engines fairly gulp gasoline! Actually 2 to 20 times as much fuel is being used up when an engine is running with choke out, as when it is operating on a normal mixture. So, the faster you are able to get your car started, and the sooner you can get it warmed up to run without the choke, the more miles you get per gallon. That calls for a fast-starting gasoline in winter.

IMPORTANT! Even the fastest-starting gasoline will fail to get you going promptly if it has to buck the wrong kind of motor oil. Some motor oils grow thick and sticky in low temperatures—clutch moving parts like taffy. Here's the way to avoid that and give your engine free play and perfect protection all winter long:

TAPPED PHONE TALKS TOLD IN RACKET TRIAL

Humphreys Is Connected with Trade Groups.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Wire tapping evidence presented yesterday in the racket conspiracy trial linked Murray Humphreys—who was Chicago's kingpin racketeer until he fled arrest on federal and state indictments—with trade association and labor union leaders in the violence-ridden laundry and cleaning and dyeing industries.

Clarence L. Converse, the federal investigator who gathered the evidence, was permitted to testify only after Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court, who is presiding in the racket trial, had ruled in favor of Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber's plea to admit the testimony. Defense attorneys had bitterly opposed it.

Unusual Evidence in Illinois.

Wire tapping evidence has been introduced once before in a criminal trial in Illinois courts That was in the trial of Police Chief Charles C. Healey on graft charges in 1918, in which Mr. Raber was one of the prosecutors. The trial ended in a jury disagreement, and thus the State Supreme court never passed on the validity of such evidence. The United States Supreme court, however, has approved it in federal criminal trials.

Much of Converse's testimony appeared obscure and unconnected with other events in the trial to spectators, and probably to the jury as well, for two reasons. In the first place, many of the telephone conversations which he heard were presented by the prosecutors not as evidence of actual criminal acts, but merely to show the close relations between various defendants.

Mostly Laundry Testimony.

Also, the majority of the conversations described dealt with the laundry business, a section of the alleged conspiracy on which virtually no other evidence has been presented. Later witnesses will connect the conversations with strikes and racketeering in that industry, the prosecution promised.

There are eighteen defendants actually on trial in the case. Humphreys, though indicted with these defandants, is a fugitive and therefore is not on trial.

The indictment charges racketeering and violence in three industries, cleaning and dyeing, laundry and the related linen supply business, and carbonated beverages. Interlocking activities of trade association attorneys, labor unions and gangsters linked the businesses in the general conspiracy, the prosecution charges.

Status of Dr. Squires.

For the last three weeks virtually all the testimony has concerned the former Cleaners and Dyers institute. Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, a defendant, was created dictator of the institute for the purpose of stabilizing the industry as to prices, employment of union labor and wages. The prosecution charges, however, that his position as a University of Chicago economist was used as a front for strikes and sabotage visited on recalcitrant cleaners and dyers who refused to sign the institute agreement.

The situation in the laundry industry was somewhat similar, the prosecution charges. There Attorney Aaron Sapiro organized the Chicago Laundry Owners' association. Morris I. Kaplan, attorney for the Cleaners and Dyers institute, also participated in the organization as did Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], attorney for the Laundry and Dyehouse Drivers union. They are all defendants, as are officials of the union and T. Henry Klein, president of the Laundry association.

Testimony of Converse.

Converse testified that on June 15, 1932, he connected a headphone to a tap previously made on the telephone in Attorney Kaplan's office in the Metropolitan building, 134 North La Salle street, and for several months listened to Kaplan's conversations, these including talks with a number of the defendants.

In the fall of the same year, Converse said, he tapped the telephone wires leading to an office occupied by Humphreys in the Palmolive building, 919 North Michigan avenue. In both instances he was seeking evidence of income tax evasion against Humphreys, who was indicted for that offense by the government.

Converse testified that he could identify the voices of only Humphreys and Kaplan in conversations he heard, but he told of remarks presumably made by other defendants who gave their names in the course of the conversations.

He mentioned Dr. Squires only once, in a call to Kaplan in which the cleaning and dyeing dictator remarked that a strike was in progress at a cleaning plant. Converse quoted Dr. Squires as saying that he regarded the strike as an attempt to coerce the plant owner into joining a trade association.

That association, Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Dodd Healy explained outside of court, was not the institute but an organization being considered at that time in which Attorney Sapiro would have supplanted Dr. Squires as the dictator. Humphreys was linked to the new organization by another phone conversation which Converse said he heard on Oct. 4, 1932, as follows:

"GIRL—State 2201 [Kaplan's telephone number].

"HUMPHREYS—Mr. Kaplan, please.

"GIRL—Who's calling?

"HUMPHREYS—Mr. Wright."

"Wright," Humphreys Alias.

[This was an alias used by Humphreys in all his telephone conversations, and by others in referring to him, according to Converse. Similarly, George Knott, vice president of the Laundry and Dyehouse Drivers' union, was "Mr. Casey," Converse testified.]

"KAPLAN—Hello.

"HUMPHREYS—Did you get that charter?

"KAPLAN—Yes, the boy called me from Springfield and told me it was granted and will no doubt be here in the next hour."

Employés of the secretary of state will be called later to testify, it was said by Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Bugan, that on that day a charter for the new cleaning and dyeing trade association was mailed to Kaplan.

On another occasion Humphreys asked Kaplan for money, and Kaplan replied, according to Converse:

"I want to talk to you about that matter. We've got that fellow coming in here today and I'll get some—not much, just a little. The price did not go up until Monday. I'll have some for you Friday. Stop in and get it."

Other Conversations Told.

Converse described other conversations in which men called Kaplan and Kaplan promised to arrange for them to see "Mr. Wright" [Humphreys], who was dodging government agents. One of the rendezvous fixed was a downtown hotel room allegedly occupied by Frank Nitti of the Capone gang.

One series of conversations concerned a strike which was called at the Ravenswood laundry, 5924 North Western avenue. Later witnesses will testify, Assistant Prosecutor Healy said, that this strike was called to force the owner into the Chicago Laundry Owners' association. Members of the association paid their union drivers $30 a week, while those who refused to join were offered individual contracts by the union for wages at $40 a week, it is charged.

Thus, the prosecution charges, the union members were put in the position of being called on strike by their officials for the purpose of lowering their own pay. Members of the association paid $1 a week for each wagon they operated, and this revenue, the prosecution charges, went to Humphreys.

The first conversation in this series was a call to Kaplan on Aug. 15, 1932, which Converse said came from the defendant Knott, who said:

"I've got your friend tied up."

Just eighteen minutes later George Bendell, another official of the union, who is also on trial, called Kaplan, Converse said, with the information that Knott and two others had been "thrown in the can." Bendell added that "neither aldermen is in," without identifying the aldermen, and Kaplan said he would take care of the case himself, Converse testified.

The next day, the witness said, Kaplan called Knott who said:

"We worked on that fellow all day yesterday, and last night he called us in and signed an individual contract. I told him he belonged in the association."

"That fellow," the prosecution charges, was the owner of the Ravenswood laundry. In the same conversation, Converse testified, Kaplan said:

"The White Bear [laundry] is running wild and you had better close them up tomorrow morning."

"I can't," replied Knott, according to Converse. "I have other irons in the fire. I will order them to your office. I think that will be better."

Nelson and Litsinger.

Edward R. Litsinger, former political leader, and former Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court were attorneys at that time for a group of independent laundrymen and had advised them not to sign Sapiro's trade association contract, pronouncing it illegal. Converse testified that Kaplan told Fred Hicks, a laundry owner, in speaking of an association organization meeting to be held on July 13, 1932:

"Oscar Nelson is to be there tonight. He will talk after Sapiro gives him the changes in the contract, and I am sure Nelson will wipe the floor with Litsinger."

ROCKEFELLER SR. USES SUN ROOM; ABANDONS HIS TRIP TO FLORIDA

Tarrytown, N. Y., Feb. 13.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller Sr. is so pleased with a sun room which recently was added to his Pocantico Hills mansion that he has abandoned all plans for a trip to Florida this winter, it was learned today.

Mr. Rockefeller spends at least two hours in the sun room every afternoon. His health has improved to such an extent that his physician now calls only once a day instead of three times, as he did earlier in the winter.

The sun room cost about $7,000. It is built of two thicknesses of a special glass. A six inch air space between the glass walls is heated.

FACTOR POINTS OUT 2 SUSPECTS AS KIDNAPERS

kept for twelve days in a shack somewhere outside of Chicago. I will say this for Costner, he treated me very kindly and showed no cruelty. He has a somewhat southern drawl.

"Banghart, on the other hand, was cruel and had a harsh, commanding voice. I have made up my mind to do my duty and let come what may, I shall coöperate with the Chicago police."

Banghart, Costner, May Davis, and Mrs. Tom Touhy are held here in bond of $200,000 each as a result of the numerous charges against them.

Banghart, Costner, and the Davis woman are charged with the $105,000 robbery of a mail truck Nov. 15 in Charlotte, N. C. In addition they are charged with possession of machine guns, an offense punishable by a 20 year penitentiary sentence under a 1933 law.

Banghart, Costner, and May Davis also are charged with possession of stolen money, and Mrs. Touhy and Banghart with possession of a stolen automobile. The last charge was lodged after money found in their apartment was identified as part of the loot in the Charlotte mail robbery.

Tracing the movements of the Touhy gang in the mail robbery Charlotte police have found evidence leading them to believe that the Touhy gang had planned to kidnap a prominent citizen of that town.

It was said that the intended victim was W. S. Lee Jr., son of W. S. Lee, vice president of the Duke Power company, and himself a wealthy engineer. Officials said that they had not learned what caused the gangsters to give up the plan.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, withdrew today all but eight of the 21 federal officers he had searching for other members of the Touhy gang here. The men sought especially, he asserted, are Tom Touhy, whose wife was arrested Sunday; Charles [Ice Box] Connors, and Ludwig Schmidt. The officers averred they had reason to believe that the three were, or recently had been, in Baltimore.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

OPEN DEPOSIT BOX.

Federal agents opened yesterday a safe deposit box belonging to Tommy Touhy's wife, Jessie, without bringing to light evidence valuable to the government investigation of the Touhy gang.

The box, in the Suburban Trust and Savings bank of Oak Park, held only mortgages, insurance policies, and like papers. A receipt revealing existence of the box was found in Mrs. Touhy's possession when she was arrested in Baltimore in company of Basil Banghart, Touhy gangster and alleged kidnaper.

"NOW YOU SEE WHY WE'RE SOLD ON GAS HEAT"

An informal interview with Mr. and Mrs. J. Simmons and family, at 5937 South Spaulding Avenue

"During the cold spell, when other fellows were worrying about fuel, I never had to give it a thought"

WHY IS THE Simmons family sold on gas heat? Let Mr. Simmons tell you—from his easy chair—in the cozy, comfortable Simmons home at 5937 South Spaulding Avenue.

"Now that we know the luxury of gas heat, we wouldn't trade it for anything," he says. "The fuel's always there—it never runs out. It certainly is a blessing to get rid of that constant rumbling noise our old heating unit made. Our gas unit is absolutely noiseless, day and night.

"And clean, say—our basement is just spic and span since gas heat was installed. Now the boys have a billiard table and a workshop, and they use the basement as much as any other room in the house."

LOW COST GAS HEAT ATTRACTS THOUSANDS

With rates for gas heat now one-half of what they were in 1930-31, thousands of Chicago home owners are changing to this sootless, dustless automatic way of heating their homes. With gas heat, their furnace worries are gone! No longer do they shovel coal, chop kindling, sift and haul dirty ashes. Their walls and draperies stay clean much longer. They save on decorating bills. Basement dirt is no longer tracked upstairs. And every hour, day and night, their houses are kept at the correct temperature—automatically.

INSTALLED AT OUR EXPENSE

You can have gas heat without one cent of investment for equipment! Here's our offer. We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But—if you decide to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Don't delay! Why put up with the nuisance of furnace tending any longer? Think what gas heat will mean in greater comfort, better health and convenience for the entire family. With rates for heating with gas so low, it is pure folly not to investigate this liberal offer. Get in touch with your local gas company TODAY, for full information.

Clean, that's one of the reasons that makes Mrs. Simmons so enthusiastic about gas heat. Because she has no furnace worries she has more time for other things.

Below—John and Reid Simmons can now have great times playing billiards in the basement which gas heat has made so spic and span.

"Now that we know the luxury of gas heat we wouldn't trade it for anything," says Mr. Simmons. "During the cold spell when other fellows were worrying about fuel, I never had to give it a thought."

Left—Mr. Simmons certainly enjoys his workshop in the basement where he can make and repair things. "We use the basement as much as any room in the house," Mr. Simmons says.

What Others Say About New Low Cost Gas Heat

"Gas heat is much cleaner . . . there has been a great saving in decorating expense." Mrs. H. R. Wagner 5049 N. Kostner Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"When leaving home find thermostat quite handy for economic purposes—lower heat when leaving and on entering home, get immediate heat by simple readjustment of thermostat to higher temperature. Mr. Konigsmark is also very fond of our gas heating." Mrs. Anna Konigsmark 4019 Cullerton Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"Instead of a coal bin, we now have a little workshop in the basement where my son spends his spare time making all sorts of things. That's what gas heat has done for him." A. E. Anderson 7328 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"Why, gas heat makes all the difference in the world. It's such a relief to get rid of that everlasting job of shoveling coal, poking fires and hauling out ashes." Martin Pear
7231 S. Union Ave., Chicago, Ill.

4,000 Work For You When You Light Gas

Every day, in the Crawford Avenue plant of The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company, 2,000 tons of coal are converted to coke in the production of gas. The ovens are never cool; in all weather, day and night, the work goes on.

A thousand miles away, on the plains of west Texas, natural gas rushes up from the earth and is led through pipelines to serve you in Chicago.

Within the city limits of Chicago, a 3,700-mile network of distribution mains is watched over constantly by a small army of experienced workers whose duty it is to keep this vast system working perfectly in every part.

More than 4,000 workers, on the job day and night in eight-hour shifts, are dedicated to your service so that when you touch the valve handle on your gas range burner, the gas will be there.

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER!

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense . . . and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

YOU INVEST NOTHING!

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of gas heat.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralising gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Ozoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Ozoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Ozoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

A TRUE STORY

By A MOTHER

who got some advice from a friend ten years ago that changed her whole life

IT was an attack of serious illness that came to Mrs. Ruth Crownover, of 544 St. Clair Avenue, Jackson, Michigan, as a blessing in disguise. But let her tell her own story.

"I first learned about this easy way to keep well ten years ago", she writes. "I had been ill, and was in a run-down condition. A friend of mine who had been using Nujol for herself and her little boy told me about its gentle action, so I purchased my first bottle and took it faithfully and regularly, and in a few days I began to feel better, and in a short time was back at my work.

"I continued to use Nujol off and on as needed, and took it regularly both before and after my little daughter was born. When she was about two years old she was very ill for two weeks with measles and bronchitis, and when the disease left her she was too weak to talk. My doctor advised Nujol, and it certainly worked fine. We have both used it whenever we have needed it ever since.

"I think Nujol is a remarkable product, and far superior to harsh pills and cathartics, which certainly do seem to upset the stomach and irritate the bowels.

"My daughter Wanda who is now ten years old is always in fine health—and both she and I think Nujol is responsible. I hope my letter may be of interest to you, and that it will help some other people. I can tell you, it makes all the difference in the world to be well!"

This is a case where a friend's advice and a doctor's advice combined to teach a mother a valuable health secret. Why don't you follow Mrs. Crownover's example? Try Nujol yourself. Bring up your children on it to be regular as clockwork.

Nujol now comes in two forms, plain, and Cream of Nujol which is flavored and often preferred by children. Millions of people all over the world keep well with Nujol. Why not get a bottle and start in this very day?

What is your Nujol story? If you have been using Nujol for ten years or more, if you are bringing up your children on it, tell us. Address Stanco Incorporated, 2 Park Avenue, New York City.

TOUHYS ON TRIAL AGAIN; DAY ENDS WITHOUT A JUROR

Judge Overrules Defense on All Delay Pleas.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

The second trial of Roger Touhy and two of his gang for the kidnaping of John Factor began yesterday in Judge Michael Feinberg's court with attorneys for the state and defense sparring cautiously as befitted opponents who had previously battled in a no-decision contest.

The selection of a jury was the first order of business and the prosecuting attorneys, warned by their experiences at the first trial, which ended in a jury disagreement, examined each veniremen with the utmost care.

Not a Juror Chosen.

Not one juror had been accepted, even tentatively, at the close of the day's session. An additional 100 veniremen were ordered summoned for tomorrow and other groups of 100 will be brought in Friday and Saturday if a jury is not completed before then.

Judge Feinberg's refusal to dismiss jurors for trivial reasons caused the defense to use sixteen peremptory challenges and the state nine. Each side has sixty of these challenges, twenty for each defendant. At that rate the defense would exhaust its challenges in four days and hopes were expressed that this jury may be selected in a much shorter time than the two weeks required to pick twelve men at the first trial.

Investigate All Statements.

Two veniremen in the first trial were convicted of perjury because they answered the state's questions falsely and precautions were taken yesterday by the prosecutors to avoid the repetition of such incidents. Investigators were busy during the day examining the statements of those who passed through the jury box, but the six months' jail sentence given one of the perjured veniremen seemed to have stimulated a scrupulous regard for the truth in those summoned for jury service yesterday.

Extremely careful also in the interrogation of the prospective jurors was Attorney William Scott Stewart, who continued as defense counsel despite his protests to the court that he wasn't being paid properly for his legal services. Judge Feinberg refused to permit Stewart to withdraw, and overruled a dozen or so other motions presented by the lawyer in a vain effort to delay the trial.

Interlude on Parsimony.

The defendants, Roger Touhy, Gus Schaefer, and Albert Kator, endeavored to look hurt as their lawyer pictured them as a penny-hoarding trio, reluctant to part with their dollars for the able representation given by one of the most ingenious criminal lawyers in Chicago.

But after the motion had been overruled Attorney Stewart conversed smilingly with his clients. It was understood by every one that such motions are not to be taken too seriously and come in very handy at times, often gaining continuances from judges less experienced than Judge Feinberg in the happy little tricks of the criminal lawyers' trade.

There was a flurry of excitement among the policemen, deputy sheriffs, policewomen, and bailiffs who protected the court, as in the first trial, when late in the day Defense Attorney Stewart tendered a panel of four jurors and the state immediately accepted them. But Stewart changed his mind.

"The defense peremptorily challenges Juror Frank J. Vonesh," he said hurriedly, causing disappointment among the weary forces of the law, who have become a little tired of the Touhy case and were hoping for a speedy selection of the jury.

Judge Rebukes Stewart.

Before another veniremen was called in an effort to fill the broken panel of four jurors the judge reprimanded Attorney Stewart for challenging a juror after tendering him to the state.

"After this, when you tender a juror you will not be allowed to challenge him," the judge ruled. "I'll let you do it this once but not again."

Stewart murmured an apology, but he shook his head sadly at Prosecutor Wilbert Crowley. The sudden acceptance of the panel by the state had been a shock and, as the court attaches gleefully pointed out, had been turning Stewart's own practices upon himself. The defense attorney's sudden acceptance of the last panel of four jurors without questioning them had been a feature of the first trial.

PRISON REBELLION CLAIMS 9TH VICTIM; BOARD OPENS QUIZ

Walla Walla, Wash., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Nine dead and nine wounded was the toll counted tonight as a board of inquiry pushed an investigation of the unsuccessful attempt of convicts to escape from the Washington state prison here yesterday.

The board sought to fix the responsibility for the short lived uprising which resulted in the slaying of eight convicts and one turnkey and the wounding of three inmates and six prison employés.

The fatalities increased to nine when Ernest Alonzo Ware, 27, convict from King county, died today in the prison hospital from wounds received when tower guards let loose a blast of rifle and submachine gun fire against a wedge shaped rush of 15 or 16 convicts toward the prison walls.

The wounded were reported recovering. Five of the convicts who survived the fire from the guards were in solitary confinement and the warden indicated he planned to file murder charges against them.

F. W. Jackson, head turnkey, in whose office the fight for liberty started, quoted De Long as saying: "Sorry to do this, but we're doing too much time."

Jackson answered a telephone call from the warden as the rebelling prisoners held knives against his back. He told the warden everything was all right, but to give him a hint. Jackson said: "Do you want me to come out on the lawn or to the front office?"

McCauley became suspicious as a result of Jackson's replies. He ordered guards rushed to the walls.

STEWART LINKED WITH FREEING OF JEROME FACTOR

Lawyer Kidnaped by Gang, Police Sergeant Says.

Police Sergeant Frank Reynolds declared in a speech at the Union League club yesterday that Jerome Factor was released by his kidnapers last April only after Attorney William Scott Stewart had been kidnaped in turn by members of the Capone gang. The Capone gangsters, the sergeant said, had been asked by Jerome's father, John Factor, to help him recover his son.

SERGT. FRANK REYNOLDS.

Sergt. Reynolds, a policeman many times cited for bravery, a member of Supervising Captain John Stege's detail assigned to clear the city of hoodlums, spoke before the Wisconsin Association of Chicago. He told some of the inside story of Chicago's war on crime and was discussing kidnaping when one of his listeners expressed interest in the activities of lawyers who defend criminals in the courts.

Sergeant Answers a Question.

"How close is the connection between the so-called criminal lawyers and the gangsters they defend?" Sergt. Reynolds was asked.

"Sometimes it is too close for their own comfort," he replied. "Take William Scott Stewart, for instance. When Jerome Factor was kidnaped his father, John Factor, called in members of the Capone gang to negotiate for the boy's release. These hoodlums grabbed off Stewart and told him to produce young Factor or it would be too bad for him. Two days later Jerome Factor was turned loose and then the Capone gang let Stewart go free."

Informed of Sergt. Reynold's statement, Attorney Stewart declared it was untrue. "I've heard that one before," he said. "There isn't a word of truth in the story."

Stewart Defends Touhys.

Attorney Stewart is now engaged for the second time in defending three Touhy gangsters against the charge that they kidnaped the elder Factor last July and held him for 12 days until a $70,000 ransom was paid. The first trial on this charge ended in a jury disagreement.

Earlier Stewart gained an acquittal for the Touhys in St. Paul federal court where they were tried for the kidnaping of William Hamm Jr., St. Paul brewer.

According to members of the Factor family, 19 year old Jerome was freed by his kidnapers without the payment of ransom. The youth was held prisoner for eight days.

Calls the Touhys Tough.

In his talk yesterday Sergt. Reynolds termed the Touhys "one of the toughest mobs in the country, proficient as snatchers and stickup men."

"If the Touhys get out of the present kidnaping charge against them," the sergeant said, "I predict that Roger Touhy will not be alive one year from today. The Touhys are bitter enemies of the Capone gang. So bitter is this enmity that I believe the recent arrest of Basil Banghart [Touhy gangstr seized in Baltimore] was made possible by information furnished by members of the Capone gang."

Questioned further concerning the Capone gang, Sergt. Reynolds said it is still in operation although Al Capone himself is in prison and many of the members have turned to legitimate pursuits. Jack McGurn, former machine gunner for Capone, is "broke, his house lost in foreclosure proceedings, and is now selling insurance," the sergeant said.

Tells of New Pistol.

In reply to a question concerning the efficiency of bullet proof vests, Sergt. Reynolds said that a new type .38 automatic pistol has been placed on the market and that shots from this gun will penetrate bullet proof vests and the armor on automobiles. The new pistol first came to the attention of Chicago police, he said, after a recent raid on an apartment at 1423 Farwell avenue in which three criminals were shot to death when they resisted arrest.

"We found six of these automatics in the flat," Sergt. Reynolds said. "Later we held a test in which a bulletproof vest was placed around a sack of cement and a bullet from one of these guns was fired into it. The bullet not only penetrated the vest but also went through the sack of cement. Even before this test, however, I never liked the vests. If I am going to get it I'd rather take it as I am."

Describes Gang's Capture.

In illustration of police methods Sergt. Reynolds told of the capture of the robbery gang headed by George Roy Baker, who once led a rebel faction in the coal teamsters' union. Baker and eight of his followers were held to the grand jury yesterday in total bonds of $260,000 on 26 charges of robbery.

"Information we received led us to the gang's headquarters and we tapped the telephone wires," the sergeant said. "We heard one of the gang negotiating with a north side politician for the purchase of a machine gun. Then we decided to arrest them in the fear that some one might get shot if we let the machine gun get into their hands."

Find Dillinger Gang Hideout.

Sergt. Reynolds revealed to his listeners that Chicago police have discovered the hiding place of two more members of the Dillinger gang and that their arrest is expected at any time.

"We located these two members of the Dillinger mob because one of them objected to a noisy party given by another tenant of the apartment house in which they are living," the sergeant said. "One of the guests at the party recognized the men and telephoned police. Now we have a dictagraph installed and are waiting for the proper time to arrest them."

Reynolds expressed the belief that kidnaping can and will be halted by the police. He predicted that the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, will be under arrest within 30 days.

Repeal's Effect on Criminals.

Asked what effect repeal of prohibition had on criminals, the sergeant said it had reduced most hoodlums to poverty.

"A few hoodlums still have their connections with breweries, however," he said. "Joe Saltis has a brewery of his own."

Sergt. Reynolds praised the work of State's Attorney Courtney in eliminating long continuances in criminal cases and for his determined drive on crime in Cook county. He also praised Capt. Stege for his successful investigation of criminal cases and for his bravery in leading raids on the headquarters of desperate criminals.

FORMER NIGHT CLUB HOSTESS FOUND SLAIN IN NEW YORK FLAT

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Helen Nugent, a former night club hostess and taxi dancer, was found murdered in a two room apartment here early this afternoon. She had been shot to death and lay sprawled on the floor, while in the next room a radio was going full blast and all the lights in the apartment were on.

She herself lived a few doors west with her nine year old son, Allan. She had been separated for the last four years from her husband and recently had been doing scrubwoman's work for a living. She also had been receiving occasional emergency relief from the police.

The apartment in which she was found is normally occupied by Joseph De Marco, now missing. Upon discovering the body the police immediately started a search for De Marco. Neighbors in the house said she had been doing odd cleaning jobs for De Marco.

Detectives searched the room and found the revolver underneath the mattress. It was a .32 caliber and two of its chambers were empty. Her handbag and a ring she usually wore were missing.

TESTIFIES AUTOPSY REVEALED KENNEDY DIED OF POISONING

Greenwood, Miss., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The statement that Dr. John Preston Kennedy died of mercury poisoning was made today by Dr. W. F. Hand, attending physician, at the trial of Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, charged with his murder.

He said his diagnosis was reached by Dr. Kennedy's statement that he had received a poison highball from his woman associate, Dr. Dean, by symptoms of the case and by the autopsy.

At the morning session, Dr. Hand told the jury of Dr. Kennedy's dying statement in almost the same words as two previous witnesses. He said Dr. Kennedy's mind was sound at the time of the statement and that the physician knew he could not recover.

CRIMINAL COURT GETS HELP FROM 2 MORE JUDGES

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Klusas, Bruno Norkus, and Frank Rocco, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

The Criminal court yesterday morning began to close the gap between the number of indictments being returned and cases tried, when Judges George Fred Rush and Daniel P. Trude of the Circuit court joined the jurists on the west side.

Word was also received that Judge Marcus Kavanaugh of the Superior court would go to the Criminal court tomorrow to help. Judge Rush will remain as long as his services are needed. Judge Trude will be there for two months, a month longer than the absence of Judge Benjamin Epstein, who is on vacation.

Because of the distance that the courts have fallen behind the grand jury, Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan said he would like to have one more judge, at least during the trial of Dr. Alice Wynekoop.

Charges Husband Bumped Her Head for Singing

Mrs. Lillian Boettscher, 24 years old, 6234 Ingleside avenue, told Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday that her husband, Erwin, was cruel and asked a divorce. She asserted that he became angry when she sang in the bathtub and often had bumped her head on the porcelain. The judge told her attorney, Norman Becker, to draw up the decree.

Food Facts worth KNOWING

Many people wonder why it is almost impossible to get the delicious flavor of canned applesauce when it is made at home.

CANNED APPLESAUCE
is a blend of apples of distinctly different flavors

This proper blending of apples assures flavor, consistency, and texture. It makes better applesauce.

Many people who can't digest raw apples, find canned applesauce easy to digest. It contains fruit acids which produce a mildly laxative effect.

There is splendid food value in canned applesauce. It is a zestful breakfast dish. Adds flavor to meats and fowl, when served with them. Makes many delicious, healthful desserts. Buy some today!

When Kidney Trouble Causes You to Get Up Nights

Flush Poisonous Waste and Acid from Kidneys

If you aren't feeling just right—are nervous—have dizzy spells and occasional headache—study your kidneys and learn about yourself.

Through the delicate filters of the kidneys, acid and poisonous waste are drawn from the blood and discharged from the body through the bladder—sometimes these filters become clogged with poisonous waste and kidneys do not function properly—they need a good cleaning.

One reliable medicine, highly efficient and inexpensive, is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—you can't go wrong on this grand medicine for it has been helping people for 50 years—to correct their aches and pains and to banish uric acid conditions, the aggravation of sciatics, neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago and rheumatism.

So if you have such symptoms of Kidney trouble as backache, nervousness, getting up two or three times during the night—scanty, burning or smarting passage—leg cramps—moist palms or puffy eyes get a 35 cent package of this grand diuretic at any modern drugstore—it starts the first day on its errand of helpfulness.

If You're Past 45 and Feel "Low" and Upset Look for Acid Stomach

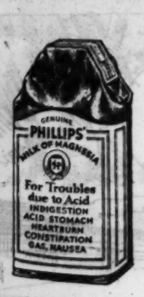
The Signs of Acid Stomach

Nervousness	Frequent Headaches	Neuralgia
Indigestion	Feeling of Weakness	Nausea
Sour Stomach	Auto-intoxication	Mouth Acidity
Sleeplessness	Loss of Appetite



What To Do For It

TAKE—2 Teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

Authorities say a large number of people suffer from acid stomach. And think, often, that there is something far worse the matter with them.

If you have Acid Stomach, you can easily trace it. Headaches, stomach pains after eating, "gas," "upsets," nausea are the usual indications.

To get rid of it, all you need do is this:

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. Or—you can take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, substituting one tablet for each teaspoonful of the liquid and get the same result.

Try It—You Will Be Amazed

Try this. It may make a great difference in your life. For this small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts to neutralize the stomach acids that cause distress.

After-meal pains and discomfort go. You feel freedom from dull headaches. That "afternoon-fag" you think is "nerves" disappears. You feel like another person.

Get REAL Phillips'

But all "milk of magnesia" is not alike. When you buy, be sure to get the REAL article — Genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. This is the kind doctors endorse—judged the safest and most effective laxative anti-acid known.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

MAE WEST and her pal Dan Cupid

CUPID: "Hello, Mae, how are tricks?"

MAE WEST: "Why Dan, you darling, what are you doing here in Hollywood?"

CUPID: "Came for a holiday—it's the one place I never have to work. All you girls can take care of yourselves."

MAE WEST: "We get our men, all right. But then we've been using Lux Toilet Soap for years. A luscious skin gets them every time."

CUPID: "You do know men. Mae. I find I've lots more spare time since girls everywhere started using your soap. Guess I'll fly over and see Lupe now. Take care of yourself."

MAE WEST: "By-by. C'm up and see me some time."

PARAMOUNT STAR

Take a leaf out of Mae's little notebook! Lovely, appealing skin attracts men just as honeysuckle attracts bees. You can have it just as easily as the 9 out of 10 screen stars who use Lux Toilet Soap. Use it yourself every day for the soft, appealing skin that men adore!

LINDBERGH AND AVIATION.

The protest of Col. Lindbergh against the summary and sweeping action of the government upon all air mail contracts will be understood by any one who realizes the part Col. Lindbergh has played in development of aviation. It is a part, in fact, more important than that of any other individual. Col. Lindbergh has done more than any one connected with aviation in this or any other country for the extension of air routes and air service. He is the great pathfinder for American aviation. As we have pointed out, a serious and vital purpose has entered into all his great ventures. While his flying has been an example to all the aviation world of what preparedness and cool skill can do to eliminate the hazards of flying even in the most daring flights, his service in surveying the possible routes for practical air transport has been unequaled.

At the close of his great survey of both the northern and southern Atlantic routes THE TRIBUNE reviewed Col. Lindbergh's record and it is well to recall it now that he has asked for hearing upon the action of the postoffice department. We pointed out that since the historic feat which first established his fame Col. Lindbergh has been the chief trail blazer for air routes, beginning with his good will tour upon his return to the United States in 1927. He visited on that tour eighty-two cities, virtually every one of which is now served by air transport. Immediately following this tour he made a flight through Central America. Those countries are now linked by the Pan-American Airways. The next spring he charted a transcontinental air line between New York and Los Angeles. That route is being operated by Transcontinental and Western Air Lines now and he is serving as its technical adviser.

In 1929 Col. Lindbergh inaugurated the first of the many routes across the Caribbean to be established by Pan-American Airways. He flew the first air mail from Miami to the Canal Zone. Next he inaugurated air mail service between Mexico City and the United States by flying to the border city of Brownsville, Tex., and back to the Mexican capital. That fall he inaugurated the Pan-American air line to Paramaribo, Dutch East Guiana, and on the return flight discovered Mayan ruins in the Yucatan jungle.

In the spring of 1930 he inaugurated air mail service between the United States and Buenos Aires by flying the first mail plane to the Canal Zone. The following summer Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh took off on their flight to the orient, through Canada, Alaska, Siberia, Manchuria, and Japan to China. Since that flight Pan-American Airways has acquired an air line operating in Alaska and has begun operation of another air line in China in conjunction with the Chinese government. Additional refueling bases will have to be installed, but the way is paved for an air line between the United States and the orient.

Important steps have already been taken by Pan-American Airways toward the realization of a trans-Atlantic air line. The exclusive rights to such an operation in Greenland and Iceland have been secured by purchase. Negotiations have been carried on with Great Britain's Imperial Airways toward the establishment of an air service via British owned Bermuda, off the coast of the United States.

In the course of its operations on the east coast of South America, Pan-American Airways has watched the preparations being made by Germany and France to operate air lines between Brazil and Africa. The Germans have anchored a vessel, the Westphalen, in midocean as an intermediate stop and have flown the route several times on test hops. The French have flown the route also, planning to establish a mail service. Meanwhile Dr. Hugo Eckener has been operating the Graf Zeppelin on a regular schedule of trips between Friedrichshafen, Germany, and Rio de Janeiro for two years.

No lack of appreciation of the splendid service of other contributors to the development of practical aviation in this or other countries is implied in the statement that Col. Lindbergh stands easily at the head of this great movement of human progress. Without avoidable self-advertisment, with unflinching courage and a judgment and skill unsurpassed, he has carried on a series of explorations which not only have put his name among the greatest of explorers but have laid a foundation of practical knowledge for the prompt establishment of America's system of air transport. More than any other man he has contributed to make that system the greatest in the world. It is hardly to be wondered that he has been quick to defend from injustice and demoralization what is so much work of his courage, vision and devotion.

If there has been corruption or incompetence in the negotiation of mail contracts it should be exposed and corrected, and Col. Lindbergh would be the last to defend it. But the structure of commercial aviation and of air mail which has been so swiftly and ably established should be protected from attack that is unjustifiable, whether the attack is the result of well intentioned, if heedless, zeal or of less excusable tactics or politics.

JUDGE BARNES' NRA DECISION.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes in the United States District court has denied the government's petition for a temporary injunction to restrain the Suburban Motor Service corporation from violating a provision of the petroleum code and in his opinion expressed many doubts regarding the constitutionality of the National Recovery act.

Judge Barnes' doubts are those which constitutionalists everywhere entertain and no one has stated them more clearly than he has done in his opinion. He said that if congress has the power to delegate authority as it is done in the National Recovery act it is difficult to see why it may not provide that the President may promulgate any rules and regulations which seem in his discretion to provide for the welfare of the people and give these regulations the effect of law. When that happens, Judge Barnes said, "constitutional government as we have known it will cease to exist."

His opinion referred to the Supreme court decision in the Minnesota mortgage foreclosure case to emphasize the point there made that emergency does not create new powers of government nor does it increase the scope of granted power or diminish the restrictions upon it. The Supreme court in holding that the Minnesota mortgage moratorium act could be regarded as a valid exercise of the state power in time of emergency of general and dangerous character rather restricted than amplified the doctrine of exigency which has been held in the New Deal legislation as justification for all acts of congress. The Supreme court held that emergency does not rewrite the constitution and is not the warrant for destructive constructions of it. Judge Barnes refers to that with the comment that it must apply with even greater force to the federal government, which is of limited and enumerated powers, than it would to the states, which are bodies of sovereignty limited only by specific constitutional provisions.

In the case before Judge Barnes, which involved a company operating gasoline filling stations, the federal government attempted to apply the code to prevent the giving of premiums to customers, on the ground that it was unfair competition and could be controled under the interstate commerce powers. Judge Barnes specifically held that such transactions in merchandising within a state could not be legally distorted into phases of interstate commerce.

When the Supreme court decided the Minnesota case its opinion was regarded as in reality a warning to congress and the recovery administrators that the constitutional limitations had not been impaired and that government could not throw off all restraints which heretofore have been checks and protections. The dissenting opinion was a more vigorous statement of the constitutional limitations, but sufficient warning was discovered in the majority decision which upheld the mortgage moratorium. Judge Barnes' well considered opinion is further evidence that the courts will give judicial scrutiny to the principles of government raised in the new planned society. That, of course, is the duty of the judicial branch of government and prudent citizens will have a reassurance in the knowledge that the judiciary is not abdicating its functions.

IT WAS ST. PAUL, NOT MINNEAPOLIS.

In an editorial commenting upon crime, particularly kidnaping, in Minnesota, the state which had a press gag law, the mistake was made of putting the Bremer and Hamm kidnapings in Minneapolis instead of St. Paul. The victims were residents of the latter city, and representatives of the former are of the opinion, as expressed in a considerable correspondence, that the distinction is material and relevant. The point is conceded.

Although THE TRIBUNE believes that when a state tries to suppress even scandal sheets charging official corruption and tries to do so by passing an unconstitutional law permitting summary proceedings it exposes itself to the consequences of collusion between protected politicians and protected criminals there is no excuse for an error confusing one city with another, except the excuse that it was an error, and in the case of two cities so carefully nourishing their separate entities in a geographical whole an error of which a good deal would be heard.

Although THE TRIBUNE sticks to its main point that it never pays to indulge politics in special immunities, it offers such amends as it can make to Minneapolis with the hope that in doing so it does not step on any St. Paul toes. Our compliments to each of the twins and apologies to one of them.

"TUNE OUT AGAIN NEXT MONDAY—"

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

Inasmuch as the federal radio commission has intimated that radio stations broadcasting advertisments of hard liquor may have difficulty getting their licenses renewed, broadcasters are more than straining their ingenuity to get around the physical fact that some of the waves from their stations flutter across states in which liquor advertising is prohibited. One New York station actually is telling its listeners-in to tune it out. Before going on the air with a trio that croons for a gin distiller the announcer says:

"Those listening in from dry states may now tune out this station, for the next program is not intended to offer alcoholic beverages for sale or delivery in any state or community wherein the advertising, sale, or use thereof is unlawful."

That strikes us as being the height of something or other. It seems hardly fair for a radio station to drive a listener to drink and then cut him off without any information on where to get it and what is the best stuff to get.

Moreover, it seems a rank imposition on radio owners to ask them to defend themselves against liquor advertising. Already the announcers would have us all weak with fatigue if we carried out all their commands. Most of us have learned to ignore the requests that we [1] "try some of this today," [2] "call your local druggist right now," [3] "don't delay a minute," [4] "send in the lids of three packages," [5] "write at once for a handsome photograph of Gus and Maggie, suitable for framing," [6] "imagine you are floating down the beautiful Nile," and the like.

Exhortations like these go in one ear and out the other. Failure to comply with them subjects the listener only to irreparable loss of health, wealth, appetite, comfort, or pleasure. But demanding that a listener either turn off the radio or become a party to a conspiracy to violate the liquor laws is carrying the thing a bit too far.

As for us, we already had enough reasons for tuning out certain radio stations. Those reasons keep us jumping up and trotting across the room every three or four minutes all evening—or at least until our patience runs out. We do not relish the prospect of being yanked out of our easy chair at intervals—after we're worn to a frazzle from dialing—simply to help some gin distiller keep from breaking the law. As far as we're concerned the distillers can take the rap.

VALENTINES THAT MAY NOT BE SENT.

From an Italian Gentleman to a German Gentleman.

Herr Hitler, here's my valentine,
And on this day I'd hop and dance
If some one chanced to hand you
A swift kick in the pants.
You're stealing all your stuff from me,
I think you're an old meanie;
There's only one great man alive!
That's me—Mussolini!

A Valentine Postmarked Moscow.

Hello, Japanski—on this day
I send you greetingsski,
And warn you if you fight us Reds
You get it in the neckski.
We'll smear you all over Siberia,
We'll send you back a bawlin',
So don't start something you can't stop—
Yours truly—Comrade Stalin.

From La Belle France to Her Uncle.

Oo Onkel Sam, I theenk dat you—
Ees gran'! Oui, bon! bon! bon!
But as to paying zose war debts—
La la! Oh, non! non! non!

From the G. O. P. to—You Know Who!

You hungry omnivorous little beast,
You'll put us in the street;
You've stuck your snoot in the treasury,
And you eat and eat and eat.
You eat our coin by billions,
On the taxpayers' bones you chew,
And, my God, the Constitution!

From the Democratic Donkey to the Republican Elephant.

There's naught I do that pleases you,
At my errors how you moan;
But pardon me just a moment while—
I look at Teapot Dome.

To Gen. Johnson from One and All.

Dear Hugh, I will not send my heart
In a valentine so gay;
Such silly things are now forbid
By the code of NRA.
I'll not send love and kisses;
Such things we should forget;
I'll give you something you can use—
Inclosed find the Alphabet.

THE PARENTS OF PROBLEM CHILDREN.

PARENTS have much to say, sometimes wisely and sometimes otherwise, about the misbehavior and the conduct problems of their children. Daily they chide and punish their children for their shortcomings. Perhaps children complain of their parents and their peculiarities and shortcomings, but they have no clubs to complain before and no one provides them with rostrums from which to speak.

It is strongly suspected that most of the problem children belong to problem parents, and come out of problem homes. Dr. Arthur Berk and associates of the Massachusetts department of mental diseases had the usual suspicions on this subject and they undertook to get at the facts by studying some one hundred parents of problem children.

Some insanity and material departure from normal behavior is due to forms of mental disorder caused by definite organic brain pathology. Illustrations are: Paresis, syphilis of the brain, arteriosclerosis of the brain, and others. But most of the social "misfitting" that causes people to land in asylums, jails, or reformatories is the result of disorders of personality. Therefore, Dr. Berk and associates began their study of the responsibility of the home and the parents for the delinquencies of children by defining some of the terms used. There may not be unanimous agreement with all of these definitions, but they are much better than those most of us have and, in this study, they are especially valuable because they tell us what the investigators meant by certain terms and statements. We quote these definitions somewhat briefed, but essentially as given:

Personality is a combination of physical inheritance, intelligence, mental content, and emotional reactions. We add that we are apt to like or dislike a person because of his physical appearance, his manner, his mental makeup, his emotional reactions, and his behavior generally. This combination largely determines whether or not he fits in and, if he does not, the type of problem he is.

Normal personality embraces good intellectual endowment, self-criticism, good insight, and adequate adaptability to the environment.

The extravert personalities are the happy-go-lucky people. The introverts are those who are introspective.

A situational neurosis signifies that pressure of external factors has been great enough to affect the personality of the subject temporarily, but with the removal of these pressures one expects to see the personality revert to its former self. Children with problems that grow out of a very bad home can be expected to become about normal after being in good surroundings for a while.

Neurasthenia applies to those who show fatigue and irritability, who have many physical complaints, and who are apt to have crying and depressed periods.

Constitutional psychopathic inferiority or psychopathic personality includes those who have peculiar trends of interest, who are not inclined to follow any regular occupation, who show some moral deficiency, who are boastful, egocentric, weak-willed, irresponsible, quarrelsome, irritable, and who show immature or otherwise poor judgment.

The paranoid are those who think they are persecuted, or who think they do not get a fair deal.

The manic-depressive personality is one in which there are periods of overactivity and elation alternating with periods of depression. This is the circular personality. When it gets so marked that the individual does not fit in it is called insanity of the circular or manic-depressive type.

Schizoid personality applies to those who are seclusive, those who shut themselves in, have defects of interest and judgment, and lack of emotional reactions. When persons with this type of personality become insane their disorder is called dementia precox.

CAUSE OF STIES.

J. S. writes:

1. What causes sties?

2. I have been told that urine applied to sties reduces the swelling. Is this true?

3. What causes pasting of eyelids during the summer time only? Is this curable.

REPLY.

2. No.

3. It is caused by some form of conjunctivitis. It may be due to eyestrain and call for glasses or avoidance of glare. Other kinds of conjunctivitis are due to other causes.

LIQUOR CONTROL.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a fully organized club with a state charter sell liquors to its members? If so, can it sell to members' friends without a license? 2. Can it have private parties where no one is present except members and their friends and sell liquors without license? 3. If said club cannot do either of above, can it buy liquor at wholesale and give it to its members at cost, without having license? This club is in a local option district. Will that have any effect?

E. C.

1. The Supreme court has held that the old laws for liquor control were superseded by the prohibition laws and were not restored by the repeal amendment. The power of cities to meet the situation by ordinance is open to serious question. Your possession of a charter is immaterial.

2 and 3. See 1. If you decide to test the point you should be prepared to litigate through the Supreme court.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own a chattel mortgage on the furniture of a rooming house. The owner is also owner of the land and building and resides in and operates the rooming house. I understand the holders of the mortgage on the real estate may foreclose at any time. 1. Would my interest in the furniture be endangered in case a deficit judgment is granted? 2. What steps can be taken to protect my interest in the furniture? My chattel mortgage was recorded in September, 1932.

F. B.

1. A validly recorded chattel mortgage would come in ahead of rights under a deficiency decree, but you should keep in touch with the situation to see that the furniture does not disappear.

2. If a substantial amount is involved it would seem advisable for you to employ an attorney and perhaps have a representative on the ground.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—The American colony in Paris is very nearly down to pre-war size. The depreciated dollar did it. Able to buy 25 francs' worth of groceries until last April, it has sunk until it now can buy only 16 francs' worth. Consequently thousands of American residents of the French capital, even hardened expatriates, have been compelled to trek homeward.

In 1933 the colony lost 44 per cent of its permanent residents by comparison with the preceding year. At the end of December the American consul general estimated that only 7,532 Americans remained within the Paris metropolitan area. The figure 12 months ago was 13,453.

The homeward march of Americans began nearly five years ago and took a sudden spurt when the United States went off the gold standard nearly a year ago. The exodus increased in speed as the dollar dropped to 22, 20, 18, and finally 16 francs. During 1933 every homeward bound trans-Atlantic liner—and some modest priced ships which do not perhaps fall under that de luxe appellation—carried back reluctant expatriates.

The consulate figures for Americans permanently domiciled in Paris in the last five years are:

Dec. 31, 1929	20,699
Dec. 31, 1930	20,287
Dec. 31, 1931	18,496
Dec. 31, 1932	13,453
Dec. 31, 1933	7,532

From the armistice until the advent of the Roosevelt administration nearly a year ago the "man with a dollar salary" in Paris was envied by those of his compatriots who were paid in francs. Now the lucky fellow is the one with the franc wages. His francs are not affected by the dollar slump.

Among the types still sticking to Paris is the hardened, long time expatriate who has lived here so long that he is nearly French in everything but his American passport. The decline of the dollar has hit him, of course, but only by way of compelling unwelcome retrenchment. The currency would have to sink much lower to compel him to go back to what he somewhat sarcastically refers to as "God's country."

Another type is the manager and chief officials in the various American concerns maintaining Paris offices, such as banks, press agencies, and importing firms. In many cases the salaries of these men have been adjusted by the home office to make up for the dollar depreciation.

Another class is the Americans who, in the joshing expression of the A. E. F. veteran, "has a life sentence to France—a French wife." This class is perhaps the biggest of all. It numbers 3,000, including husband, wife, and children.

Most of them are on a franc salary. French salaries have shrunk only slightly in the last few years but the cost of living has mounted swiftly. However, this class of American has by ingenuity and pluck held on, sometimes with a bit of help from the French "in-laws," the solidarity of French families, when any member is in trouble, being famous. In 1933, 200 members of this class were repatriated.

As to its institutions, the American colony has not changed outwardly. Many American business houses have closed their Paris branches, but the American hospital, American library, the American churches, the chamber of commerce, the two American daily newspapers, the American University union, and the rest remain, although operating on a severely reduced scale.

ABOUT SPELLING.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—I have noted with deep interest the discussion in regard to the steps you are taking "toward the improvement of our utterly illogical and archaic spelling."

Classroom experience has brought home to me these facts: Some misspellings may be phonetic; others, I am sure, are not; moreover, our most unphonetic words are not the ones most frequently misspelled. Much of our misspelling is due to the slovenly habit of not really seeing what we look at. I believe a really fundamental solution and guide to correct spelling is the building up of a working knowledge of the derivation of words.

However, I am not trying to establish here the reasons for misspelling. I am taking exception to the statement that the spelling of our words is "utterly illogical." In truth, spelling follows fundamental laws of language, and what are frequently passed over as exceptions are really distinct rules in themselves. For instance, if the plural of "house" is "houses," why not "mouses," "mans" or "oxes"? Because these differences are based on their Anglo-Saxon origin and are due to differences of gender and declension and to stem endings, when from the same declension. Etymology is also always a guide to the spelling of disapprove, separate, immortal, division, mutation, misspell, illicit, elicit, etc., etc. For words ending in "ant," "ent," "able," "ible" the termination in English is always "tion" or "sion," according as its perfect participle in the original Latin, ends in "tus" or "sus." Words end in "ant," "ent," "able," "ible," depending on the original conjugation from which they come.

What is true of spelling is likewise true of pronunciation. Comfortable, estimable, explicable, formidable, hospitable throw the accent back on account of the obscure "a," whereas conversation, apparatus, indentation, administration throw it forward because the "a" is long. Decorous and decorum are accented on the second syllable because they are derivatives of decor, decors [long "o"], while decorative [decus, decoris, short "o"] is accented on the first syllable. It is only in the latest dictionaries that isolate is pronounced with a short "i," like its twin, insulate [Latin, insula, or Italian, isola]. That was always its logical pronunciation.

Words are the reaction of thought. They are "fossil thoughts," and, as such, are stored up with the history of all the circumstances and relations that produced them. The study of them has always disproved this accusation of "utter illogical" spelling. Of course, no one can logically be against any phonetic or visual device that helps us to think or remember.

But I am distrustful of a cross-corner and get-rich-quick philosophy that throws over fundamental principles simply because they are not understood or not "up to date."

In phonetic spelling we perhaps acquire something easier, but superficial, and lose something fundamental. The trend nowadays seems to be to make everything agreeable and easy. We have to learn "to take it" sooner or later in life. It therefore ought to be part of our whole education.

TAX PENALTIES.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The news item relating to tax collections which appears in your issue almost daily is a matter of considerable interest and I think it is a commendable service to the public. I have thought for some time past that you should have supplemented this information with facts relating to the penalties that are being collected from the poor property owner on all delinquent taxes. If a 50 per cent payment has been made on account of 1928 and 1929 tax bills in due time, the penalties assessed against the unpaid balance of the bills for those years could be cut 50 per cent, providing the taxpayer was in position to pay the entire unpaid balance and penalties. The poor home owner, who is struggling to meet his obligations and could only pay on account, is assessed the full penalties. The man who is in position to pay in full is the owner who is benefited by the half-penalty order. If the property owner had paid only 45 per cent of these tax bills in due time, he was also foreclosed from obtaining the 50 per cent reduction in penalties, even if he were ready to pay the entire unpaid balance.

That a situation like this should prevail in a period where great distress is being relieved by governmental agencies that are spending vast sums for that purpose strikes one as almost paradoxical.

In closing I would call attention to the fact that where the distressed property owner has been forced to give up the fight and his application for Home Owners' Loan corporation aid has been accepted we are told the Home Owners' Loan corporation succeeds in having the penalties cut in half.

THE RIGHT TO BEAR ARMS.

Carlinville, Ill., Feb. 3.—I observe with delight Carey Orr's cartoon on the front page of your paper of Feb. 3. I have been wondering for a long time when some cartoonist would tell in picture in some great newspaper this story. If every home contained firearms and somebody therein who knew how to handle them, the bandit, burglar, thief and stick-up fellows would be out of a job. Every law intended to disarm the robber simply disarms the law abiding citizen and leaves the public at the mercy of the fellow who can always get a gun and "stick 'em up." TRUMAN A. SNELL.

WOMEN IN MANY STATES TO COME FOR CONFERENCE

First Session Tomorrow Afternoon.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

As arrangements for the first annual Conference on Major Problems, to be held Thursday and Friday at the Palmer house, were completed yesterday by THE TRIBUNE, sponsor of the gathering, assurances were arriving from other cities and states of interest in the conference by women's clubs even beyond those that will have representatives present. Both small towns and large have demonstrated the extent of the attention the enterprise has aroused.

One such communication came from Michigan City, Ind., from the Purdue Extension club. Another from Detroit, from the Detroit section of the National Council of Jewish Women. From Fort Branch, Ind., came a request from the Mendelssohn club for additional material, even though no delegate can attend. Inquiry from the Wisconsin Council of Catholic Women at Milwaukee was followed by notification that Mrs. Edward A. Conway, president, will be on hand, among other Wisconsin women.

Sessions Begin Tomorrow.

Telephoned inquiries to THE TRIBUNE yesterday indicated that some clubwomen wished to be reassured as to their eligibility, because they do not hold office in any organization. Not only officers, but all clubwomen who are members of a group affiliated with the state federations in Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana and Illinois, will be welcome. No registration or attendance fees are required at any session.

Two o'clock tomorrow afternoon will mark the opening session of the event. Mrs. William F. Farrell, head of the Illinois Federation, will preside during the afternoon. On the initial program will be Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare association, Miss Helen Bennett of A Century of Progress, and Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, an outstanding figure in Chicago's literary world.

Concert in Evening.

Tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock, the doors of the grand ballroom will be closed for the half hour broadcast by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, with Adolphe Dumont swinging the baton, Pierre Andre announcing, and Attilio Baggiore as soloist.

At the close of the mu cal entertainment, officers and members of the numerous organizations represented will have an opportunity to meet and greet the state federation heads of Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana, and Wisconsin at a reception

Speaks Tomorrow

Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, Chicago novelist, who will speak at the first session of the Conference on Major Problems at the Palmer House tomorrow under the auspices of The Tribune.

DEMOCRATS PICK RUDOLPH HURT IN CICERO PRIMARY

Rudolph J. Hurt was chosen Democratic nominee for town trustee of Cicero at a primary election yesterday. His vote was 5,403 and the nearest of his three opponents for the nomination, Gustave O. Randa, received 3,380. Hurt is the candidate of the present city administration, headed by Town President Joseph G. Cerny. There were no contests for the Republicans, Taxpayers and Labor party nominations.

In Berwyn, John H. Ehardt won the Republican nomination for police magistrate, polling 1,551 votes, more than his three opponents combined. The Democratic nomination for the same office went to Frank Pavel: by a large majority. In Berwyn's First ward Ald. Jesse Green was renominated as the Reublican candidate over Richard D. Bonnany, 375 to 363. In the Fourth ward, James Svehla won the Democratic nomination from Joseh L. Liska, 399 to 277. In the Fifth ward, the Republican nomination went to James Potucek, who defeated G. George Sefranek, 209 to 67.

Maurice M. Shay, acting mayor since the death of Mayor Frank Novotny, took the Republican nomination from Joseph J. Zak, 447 to 133. James M. Gillespie won in the Seventh ward Republican race from Leo Humpal, 278 to 107. Other Berwyn aldermanic nominations were made without opposition.

ANXIETY CAUSING MANY ILLNESSES, PHYSICIANS TOLD

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

That portion of mankind's ailments which are creations of the mind, including the fear of illnesses or death, occupied the attention of a joint session of the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals and the Federation of State Medical Boards of the United States in the Palmer house yesterday afternoon. Two hundred and seventy-five physicians registered for the day's sessions.

Dr. Franklin G. Ebaugh of Denver, director of the division of psychiatric education of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, urged in an address that psychiatry be made a part of the basic preparation for the practice of medicine. Psychiatric training, he said, should be considered a requisite for licensure.

Watch for Symptoms.

Every interne in medicine should have clinical knowledge of the minor psychoses, or psychoneuroses, which include between one-third and one-half of the problems of general medicine not solved by organic diagnosis, he said. Of these the most common are what he described as "the anxiety states, in which the symptoms are grouped around a central core of anxiety and anxious expectation."

"The main symptoms are expressed in anxiety attack and panic with fear of death, fear of insanity and fear of stroke with attendant disturbance," he said. "The relationship of the origin of the anxiety states with actual life experiences of the patient, frustrations in connection with many of the major life problems, is important.

"These problems center around parent-child relationships, school relationships, vocational, marital and sex maladjustments, and religion and recreational adjustments."

Problem of Suicide.

Physicians should watch for early signs of paresis in irritability, loss of weight, sleep disturbance and other disorders, Dr. Ebaugh said. He charged that if physicians as a whole were alert to manic depressive psychoses it would have value in solving the problem of suicide, which he classed as "a major social-medical responsibility."

Dr. Wilson G. Smillie, professor of public health administration, Harvard university, Boston, pleaded for methods of teaching in medical schools which would prepare physicians to practice preventive as well as curative medicine.

Health departments which in recent years have organized numerous clinics for preventive treatments will turn these clinical activities back to the private physicians as fast as they will assume responsibility for them, he said.

Industrial Hygiene Urged.

Dr. Leverett D. Bristol, health director, American Telephone and Telegraph company, New York, urging additional courses in industrial hygiene in medical and public health schools, declared specific industrial and occupational disease were not the most important disability problems in industry.

"The common cold and other diseases of the respiratory system, including pulmonary tuberculosis; the usual diseases of the digestive, nervous, and circulatory systems, and the so-called degenerative diseases of advancing years are the most important causes of disability and loss of time from work," he said.

A survey made by the bureau of narcotics three years ago revealed that about 1,700 physicians and druggists were believed to be drug addicts, H. J. Anslinger, United States commissioner of narcotics, told the Federation of State Medical Boards. He suggested revocation of licenses in such cases.

POPE WARNS OF MOVE TO BRING BACK PAGANISM

The criticism was interpreted in various ways, some viewing it as a new attack on the Nazi sterilization law in Germany, while others believed it referred to bolshevism.

The statement by the pope was made during the course of an address in consistory hall to priests who will preach Lenten services in the churches of Rome.

It is customary just before Lent for the pope to make such a talk, and priests often take the points stressed by the pontiff as subjects for their sermons.

"While calling your attention to the beautiful tendencies which exist in the world for human welfare, truth and purity of Christian life," Pope Pius said, "it is not possible to overlook certain turbid, violent, insidious moves aimed at de-Christianizing the world and dragging it back to paganism."

It was recalled by persons who heard the address that the pope directly attacked sterilization in his Christmas speech.

Osservatore Romano, the church newspaper, has been regularly subjecting sterilization, bolshevism in Russia and anti-church tendencies in other countries to bitter criticism.

The pope also touched on the general international situation. He said the world needs Christian peace but "not that of interminable conferences which invariably bring new differences and new barriers."

Never as now, said the pope, has he felt it so necessary to reëmphasize the initial program of his pontificate, which was to achieve "Christian peace in the kingdom of Christ."

This, he added, "is not a peace such as that built on discussions but is obtained through the conquest of truth and tranquility of conscience."

POPE BANS BOOKS WRITTEN BY NAZI CHIEF IN GERMANY

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Vatican today placed on the index of prohibited books the works of Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, philosophic dictator for the third reich.

For years a close associate of Chancellor Hitler, Dr. Rosenberg is an uncompromising anti-semite. He is the author of "The Myth of the 20th Century," which contains many criticisms of the Christian religion. He has also attacked the Catholic church.

Other of his books include "The Criminals of Free Masonry," and "Masonic World Politics."

AUGUST A. BUSCH, BREWERY CHIEF, TAKES OWN LIFE

Shoots Self After Weeks of Painful Illness.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—August Anheuser Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and head of the internationally known brewing family, killed himself with a revolver shot in the stomach today in his bedroom at his Grants farm home, on the Gravois road, in St. Louis county.

Mr. Busch, who was 68 years old, had suffered intense pain for six weeks, from a complication of heart disease, gout, and dropsy. He had failed to obtain relief by rest and medical treatment, and had spent the last week in bed. Visiting his office in the brewery for the last time a week ago Saturday, he expressed discouragement about his condition, and said he had almost given up hope of improvement. He appeared very nervous.

Find Brief Note.

On a night table beside his bed was found an unsigned note, written with pencil on a plain sheet of paper. It read:

"Good-bye precious Mommie and adorable children."

John Busch of Washington, Mo., a cousin, stayed last night in the brewer's room on the second floor of the residence, occupying the bed beside his uncle. The sick man was sleepless and was "up and down all night," the cousin said.

After John awoke, shortly before 8 o'clock, the elder Busch said: "Get some breakfast, John." John Busch left the room, as the family chauffeur, Tony Feichtinger, entered, according to his daily custom.

August Busch replied to the chauffeur's "good morning," then asked him to close the door leading into Mrs. Busch's adjoining bedroom, and to "get some music" on the radio.

Chauffeur Hears Shot.

The chauffeur turned the switch on the radio, which was across the room from the bed, and knelt before the instrument to adjust the dials. As the hum of the radio began, he heard a crashing sound, and turning, he saw his employer, half raised in bed with hands extended and fingers twitching, while his revolver fell on the adjoining bed.

Members of the household, who had heard the shot, rushed to the room, but Mr. Busch had lost consciousness and died in a few minutes. The revolver, a pearl handled, blue steel, .32 caliber six shooter was one which he had been accustomed to keep in a stand beside his bed.

Mr. Busch was the son of Adolphus Busch, who founded the family fortune. He succeeded to the presidency of the brewing company at the death of his father in 1913.

Survivors include the widow, two sons, Adolphus Busch III., and August A. Busch Jr., three daughters, Mrs. Louis A. Hager, Mrs. C. Drummond Jones, and Mrs. Percy Orthwein.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: From Several Angles

CHARLES R. FLINT, ONCE ONE OF U. S. RICHEST MEN, DIES

Famed Also as "Father of Trusts."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Charles R. Flint, ship owner and financier, died at the Shoreham hotel here today. He was 84 years old.

Flint was widely known as "the father of trusts" because of his activities in organizing more than a score of the largest industrial and financial firms in the country. He always insisted that trusts, as he formed them, never would have proved a bane to industry.

A native of Portland, Me., he went to work as a young man for the late W. R. Grace, the shipowner. Eventually he became partner in the company, receiving a 22 per cent interest in the Grace corporations in New York, Chile, San Francisco, and Peru. Later he established his own company.

In 1889 he fitted out ships for the revolutionists who deposed the emperor, Dom Pedro of Brazil, and fifteen years later he sold the Russian empire 20 submarines and torpedo boats for about $30,000,000.

Flint was agent for the Wright brothers in their efforts to obtain governmental backing for their airplanes.

He was rated once as one of the wealthiest men in the United States, estimates of his fortune having ranged from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 when he retired in 1931.

In 1927 he married Miss Charlotte Reeves, some forty years his junior. The funeral will be in Washington Thursday.

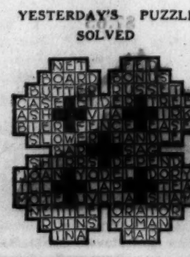
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



WILLIAM JEROME DIES; PROSECUTED HARRY K. THAW

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—William Travers Jerome, crusading arch foe of Tammany Hall for nearly half a century and the prosecutor of Harry K. Thaw, died of pneumonia today at his town house.

The 74 year old veteran enemy of gambling and vice dubbed "Mr. Carrie Nation" by his opponents while he was Manhattan's fighting district attorney from 1902 to 1910, had been ill two weeks.

Mr. Jerome twice tried Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, getting a disagreement on the first attempt and a conviction, tempered by a judgment of insanity, on the second. When Thaw escaped from Matteawan, Jerome chased him to Canada and brought him back, but he failed in his attempt to have him returned to the prison for the criminal insane.

Although Jerome's name is known to all New York City, where the greatest trophy of his war on crime was his sensational raid on the 20 year old gambling house of Dick Canfield, he had lived in comparative retirement in recent years.

Worth 20 Million in 1929.

He lent his voice, however, to the fusion campaign last fall of Fiorello H. La Guardia, seeking to break Tammany's hold on the city government.

His principal business enterprise of the last two decades was the production of color motion pictures, in which he was reported to have built up a fortune estimated in 1929 at $20,000,000.

Jerome's fetish in life was to fight for the day when, as he often said, "politics will be a career instead of a racket."

Even at the high point of his career, when he prosecuted Thaw after that youth of Pittsburgh wealth had shot and killed the architect, Stanford White, on the Madison Square roof, that was his goal.

"If I had my life to live over again," he said last fall, "I would devote all my energies to founding a citizens' party which would have as its main platform plank the reduction of the number of elective jobs."

Learns About Tammany.

Jerome's aptitude for law was a natural one, for his father, Lawrence Jerome, was an attorney.

After he was graduated from Amherst college he took examinations for the bar and was admitted in 1884.

What he saw then was a carefully organized Tammany machine of the "Boss Murphy" days when the Tiger permitted vice, graft, and crime to fill the pockets of its faithful adherents with gold.

The year of 1888 marked his entrance into the district attorney's office as one of the many assistants. He held that post for two years—long enough to get a taste of civic affairs under the Tammmany régime.

Keeps His Promise.

Five years later he was justice of special sessions, a post he held until 1901, when he found himself powerful enough to enter the municipal election for the office of district attorney.

He won—and in winning determined to carry out the fighting promises he had made on the speaking platforms in torchlight massmeetings throughout Gotham. And, much to the surprise and chagrin of Tammany leaders he carried them out.

DIES AT 100 AFTER LIVING FOR FIFTY YEARS IN CHICAGO

Mrs. Mary Gundlock, who was 100 years and six months old, died in her home at 3016 Seminary avenue yesterday afternoon. She had been a resident of Chicago for half a century, having come here ten years after she journeyed to the United States from Holland, where she was born. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John Esch, and a son, J. W. Gundlock, who lived with his mother. The funeral will be held from a chapel at 3037 Lincoln avenue at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Interment will be in Plato Center, Ill.

BATTALION FIRE CHIEF SERIOUSLY INJURED BY AUTO

James Rowley, 61 years old, 1704 West Marquette road, chief of the 26th battalion of the fire department, was seriously injured last night when he was struck by an automobile in front of 2549 South California avenue.

The driver of the car, Russell Dvorak, 2749 Cermak road, an employe of the city water department, picked up Chief Rowley and took him to St. Anthony's hospital. His condition there was said to be critical. The chief was off duty last night and had gone for a walk. His headquarters were with Truc' company No. 41 to 62d street and Western avenue.

Four more deaths were added to the Cook county automobile toll for the year, bringing the total to 159. The victims:

John Flaska, 43 years old, 4333 Haddon avenue. Died in St. Anne's hospital from injuries incurred Monday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas Deutsch, 1937 Humboldt boulevard. Deutsch was not held.

Mrs. Sophia Bybciu, 52 years old, 5524 South Hermitage avenue. Died in the Lutheran Deaconess hospital of injuries suffered Saturday when she was struck by an automobile at Garfield boulevard and Ashland avenue. Howard Long, 21 years old, 5636 South Artesian avenue, driver of the car, was not held.

John Rindt, 51 years old, 4034 Kimball avenue. Died in the Martha Washington hospital early today of injuries he suffered on Feb. 11 when he was struck by an automobile driven by George Lasser, 2452 Sheffield avenue, at Cuyler and Kimball avenues.

Unidentified colored woman, about 60 years old. Died in the county hospital of a fractured skull incurred Saturday night when she was struck by the automobile of a hit and run motorist at 34th street and Michigan avenue.

LEADERS OF CITY AT FUNERAL OF MRS. INSULL JR.

Leaders in Chicago's social and business world gathered in St. James's Episcopal church, St. James and Huron streets, yesterday afternoon for the funeral of Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr. The simple rites were conducted by Dr. Duncan H. Browne, pastor of St. James's, in a chancel banked with tiers of flowers.

Burial took place privately in Graceland cemetery. The pallbearers, friends of Mr. Insull, included Arthur Farwell, John V. Farwell, W. A. Pullman, Harold E. Foreman, George Carson Ellis, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Kent S. Clow, C. B. Goodspeed, Matthew J. Hickey, and E. Ogden Ketting.

Mrs. Insull, who was 36 years old, died suddenly Sunday morning following a kidney operation performed several days before. She rallied after the operation and appeared to be making rapid progress toward complete recovery. Pulmonary embolism developed, and death occurred within 30 minutes.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Insull is survived by a son, Samuel Insull III., 2 years old; a sister, Mrs. Robert McCreary of Lake Forest, and a half brother, Charles L. Pierce Jr. of Chicago.

FRANK PENNOYER, OFFICIAL AT FAIR, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Frank Pennoyer, assistant chief of the property protection service at the World's Fair, died yesterday afternoon in Mercy hospital after an emergency operation for appendicitis. He was 32 years old.

Pennoyer joined the staff in April last year. His work in conducting intelligence tests among applicants for jobs as guides at the Fair was instrumental in building up the organization which gained an enviable reputation, according to Charles H. Thurman, chief of the property protection service. Later he was raised to the rank of captain of guides, and then to his last post.

POISON FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Sally Kirkham, 35 years old, died early today in her home, 4720 Kenmore avenue, of poison she swallowed yesterday. She is believed to have taken the fatal potion while despondent over ill health.

DAUGHTER DIES; THREE IN FAMILY KILL THEMSELVES

Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Grief stricken over the death early today of the baby daughter of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Larwill, each 32, and their two grown daughters tried suicide by gas in the bathroom of their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Larwill and their daughter Mary, 26, are dead. Another daughter, Louise, 25, was revived by a resuscitator squad.

A note addressed to the county coroner was found. It proved a family suicide pact.

The four adult members of the family were found seated on chairs in an upstairs bathroom. They were dressed in their outdoor garments. A hose from a gas jet was disconnected to permit the bathroom to fill with gas.

The baby, Florence, age 10, was found in the room where she died, her body laid out carefully in her bed.

Police were called to the home by a physician who had attended Florence in her last illness and who, with the nurse, was ejected from the home Tuesday morning by Mr. Larwill.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

Here's a Look at Quarrels of Lupe, Johnny

Mr. Weissmuller, It Seems, Has Big Appetite.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Suggested title for an exciting motion picture: "Private Life of Lupe and Johnny."

Gleaned from Lupe, from Johnny and from one or more of their confidants during the last week here are developments that indicate what zestful scenes and dialogs might be lifted:

Said Lupe (at the publicity table at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio) to a dozen listeners: "I might kill Johnny but I never would divorce him. Just imagine, he objects when I sit up to 4 o'clock in the morning reading detective stories."

Said Johnny: "I rented an apartment for myself after Lupe said that we were to be separated. But after I made the down payment we weren't separated any more."

Said Lupe: "What do we fight about, they ask me. We fight about anything. I expect we will keep on fighting all the time. We'll keep on making up again too."

Said the butler to Johnny: "Nuts," and went on butlering. This occurrence struck both Lupe and Johnny as too funny not to tell.

And if you want to know what that dinner table spiff was about, Lupe'll tell you: "When I get up to answer the telephone, Johnny eats all his meal and he eats all of mine too. Nobody ought to have an appetite as big as that and I tell Johnny he should be more refined and not eat my food. There is a fight about that."

Johnny plaintively sums it all up: "Why should I let Lupe leave me? She'll just earn a lot more money and buy herself a lot more bracelets and she's got too many bracelets already."

The last time they "separated" Johnny retired to his separate apartment like Achilles to his tent, but Lupe got lonesome the same night and came over to Johnny's. But after she got there they disagreed so Lupe got mad again and called her car and went home. Then they had breakfast together at her house.

Schools Will Hold Valentine Parties Today

Newer Types of Greetings Are in Favor.

BY JUDITH CASS.

EACH year it seems as if the lure and magic of St. Valentine's day become less and less, but perhaps that is only because we are growing older. Perhaps the young still find it a day of sugar-coated sentimentality and the time to express hidden hopes, but we doubt it. The very young, however, still enjoy the day in the traditional manner, although the lacy hearts that pleased us when we were young no longer strike the fancy of the adolescents, who seem to prefer such valentines as one we saw, a stiff bit of cardboard decorated by the head of a horse in a flirtatious pose, lettered underneath with the words: "Roses are red, violets are blue; horse's neck, ——!"

The youngsters of the Latin School for Boys, the Harris school, and the University School for Girls all are planning parties for today. At the Latin school the kindergartners are entertaining the first grade and the second graders are giving a party for those a grade higher. The tiny hosts and hostesses of the kindergarten—and the girls far outnumber the boys—will receive their guests informally about 10:30 o'clock. No parents have been invited to attend the party. Some of the tiny hosts and hostesses will be Jeannette Hersey, Rita Rend, Johnny Carroll, and Georgie Gardner. "Beaudy" Eddy, the Augustus Eddys' son, is ill with whooping cough, so he is missing the festivities.

Huge Valentine Cake for Party.

Tracy Alden Jr. will be the hero of the second grade party when he arrives at school this morning with the huge Valentine cake that his mother had baked for him especially for the party. Among the other second graders who will help Tracy cut the cake at 11 o'clock are Nelson Morris, Andy Wiley, George Gilbert, Maurice Horner III., Richard Needham, and Larry Whiting. Young Watson Blair will not have his share of the Alden cake, for he is away, nor will William Peterson, Dr. Otto L. Schmidt's grandson, for he broke his leg iceboating at Lake Geneva last Saturday.

The primary grades of the Harris school are having their Valentine party at 2 o'clock this afternoon. For several days the tiny pupils have been making the decorations for the party as well as their own valentines, with special verses and composed and written in the valentines intended for their mothers. Before the orange juice, cakes and candies are served at 4 o'clock the children will piece together jig-saw puzzles made of cut-up valentines and pin the arrow in the valentine heart [just as they would pin the tail on the donkey at ordinary parties].

Dinner Party for Nancy Brown.

Mrs. Arthur L. Brown, whose daughter, Nancy, is in 7th grade at the Harris school, is giving a dinner for her tonight to which the eight girls invited will come in costume. "Not really a party," said Mrs. Brown, who with her husband and family moved here a year ago from Cincinnati, "but just some fun for the children." Mr. and Mrs. Brown gave a dinner last night for President William Pierce of Kenyon college, who is visiting the Converse Goddards. President Pierce came to Chicago for the Kenyon dinner Monday night, and Mrs. Brown and alumnus seized this opportunity to entertain him.

The University School for Girls is having its usual valentine boxes in all of the lower grade rooms. Here the pupils deposit their valentines when they arrive in the morning, and later in the day one or two of them are made postmen in each room and they distribute the carefully anonymous cards amidst much laughter.

Out in Winnetka the whole of the North Shore Country Day school is taking part in a Valentine celebration at 11 o'clock. With the pupils all paired off—a twelfth grader with a kindergartner—and so on through the grades, they will have a merry time. Each pair will do a stunt before the rest of the school. It is likely that little Susan Stern in the kindergarten will sing a song or give a play with her big sister, Marjorie, who is in the twelfth grade. Others who will take part are Deborah Leonard, John Strong and James Gillies of the 12th grade, and Susan Bur-

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]
[Posed by Gaby Dore.]

Enter the lipstick bar—to take its place in the smugly legal but still rather exciting procession of beauty bars that are springing up all over Chicago. Perfume bars, powder bars—and now this, each cannily planned to tempt even a perfect lady to take one, and then another, and emerge just the least bit swimmy in the head after sniffing perfumes, blending powders, or tasting wine flavors on one of six nice lipsticks in six nice shades.

The sticks bear a famous French name, a name that in itself is enough to send a girl off into elegant dreams about Paris ateliers in the Rue de la Paix, and have long been among the favorites in these parts. To be up to the moment, the establishment has just brought out new ones that, to celebrate repeal with that well known Gallic enthusiasm, are actually flavored with wines.

We hope they won't be mad when we say that the texture of the new sticks is somewhat improved on the old ones—although we like the old ones, too. The stick is as creamy, as easy to use without sloppiness as one could wish. It's not hard or crumbly. The degree of indelibility is good and the shades are, too.

For ourself we found in the selection a tone of red without a smidge of blue in it. It's those undertones that tell where lipsticks are concerned, and if any really reddish undertone stands up after we get through testing it on paper, hand and lips it's a good one. This stick looks a bit orange at first glance, but on us, anyway, that orange isn't apparent, which is just what we want. To make it more exciting, it's flavored with grenadine, which we'll take any day to some lipstick tastes we've encountered in our time.

If you're not a grenadine girl you may order from the bar, if the shade suits you, a stick flavored with burgundy, port, claret, madeira or chianti. It's a most respectable way of winebibing, and fun, too.

Many Stylish Suits Arrive in City Shops

Swanky Tweeds Win Success in Fashion World.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It must be spring, or darn close to that palpitating season, for new suits are appearing all over town as if by magic. First the casual, swanky tweeds of wearable and practical fabrics that will allow even the most shivery soul to go about in a suit without catching pneumonia. They are complete successes, what with their nubby tweed textures, their bright spring colors and color combinations, and the woolly blouses that top them so appropriately.

On a warmish day you can slip your shoulders into a heavy crêpe silk blouse either in daring breezy stripes or the plain one color affairs of the simple tailored type. They are life savers for the girl who capriciously begins to loathe her dark winter wardrobe early in February. The coats are usually long and hang loosely at the back, the freaky shoulders are gone, and high swaddling collars do their bit toward keeping your shivering neckline warm.

But adventurous shoppers are picking their real spring suits as soon as possible, for the first daring creations are increasingly difficult to resist, even though they cannot be worn except under a coat for some weeks to come.

If you are a good clothes collector, you'll pick a one piece dress and a matching jacket, either long or short, for heavy daily duty . . . and use the snappy, perky two piece get-togethers [skirt and jacket] for the days the sun will shine warmly and all you will need for contrast is a good looking fur scarf.

So the heavier and stunning tweeds are going out in boxes almost faster than they arrive in the last express. Grab the checks, even the bold horse blanket checks and racy stripes, just as soon as you can . . . they are frightfully smart and full of dash and daring for these in-between days.

Liquid Diet Is Eradicator of Troublesome Waistline Fat

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Says Mrs. J., just returned from a shopping trip: "I've got to get this fat off my middle. Otherwise I wouldn't be so bad."

A number of women are echoing the same thought this very minute, with the new streamline styles luring them on to critical figure analysis.

It's that middle sector that gets us all to looking up diets and exercise régimes, isn't it? And there's nothing like a dress shopping expedition to remind us that we could stand some whittling in the named area.

Well, the season is young, and it isn't such a hard trick to get rid of that middle aged look around the waist and hips.

It's a grand time right now to put oneself on a three day liquid diet. It's good, even though one isn't particularly sensitive about the figure. Sort of a spring cleaning. Do it over the week-end if you are a business person. Saturday, Sunday and you can stand one work day, Monday for the experiment. You may take fresh milk as your liquid, orange juice, or mixed fruit juice, such as orange, grapefruit, and a little lemon juice added. Or you may make it beef broth. Anyway, take nothing but liquids for the three days. Then, when you begin to eat again, take a big bowl of salad at noon for the rest of the week, and let your breakfast and dinner suffice for the rest of the day. You may lose anywhere from 3 to 5 pounds in the week, and feel awfully well cleaned out.

And, do a couple of good exercises, but do these over and over again. Not ten times a piece nor twenty, but fifty and one hundred. I think it far better to do two exercises fifty and one hundred times than six and ten times or twenty each.

Do exercises aimed directly at that midsector, as lying on the floor and bringing the legs up straight and stretched to toe tips and lowered slowly to the floor. But don't forget the stretching feature, since it is the value of the exercise. Another grand exercise for this midsector is lying on the back, with head and shoulders held to the floor. Swing one leg over the other and stretch the extended leg up and back as far as you can. This will train down the hips quickly.

Front Views and Profiles
By June Provines

PERHAPS by the time Valentine's day is over we'll have some unusual 1934 valentines to tell you about, but you might like to know about the one Helen Hayes, who now is starring in "Mary of Scotland," sent her husband, Charlie MacArthur, last year.

Valentines—Style Creator—Shopping.

Mr. MacArthur smokes a favorite brand of cigarets exclusively, so Miss Hayes went to a jeweler's, purchased a silver case just the size of the paper cigaret package, and had it enameled in yellow and brown, duplicating the colors and design on the original paper package. With one exception. And Mr. MacArthur did not notice the slight variance until long after Valentine's day. One afternoon as he was sitting over a highball, he pulled out his de luxe version of the ordinary cigaret pack, lit a cigaret, then stared hard at the case. He observed for the first time that where the original package reads: "Domestic and Turkish Blend," his wife had slyly had enameled:

"Domestic and Turkish Love from Helen."

* *

THERE must be a good many valentines in the mail today. At one store there were some 1,500 patrons at the valentine counter Monday. And many of them were, surprisingly enough, serious minded business executives and professional men. The old-fashioned sentimental valentine always is most popular, but we did see one dignified looking man, after much looking through the boxes, pick out a card adorned with a picture of a girl at a typewriter, her notebook and pencil on her knee.

"Take this down! You're just my type.

"And do we click . . ." began the message beneath the picture.

* *

MAYBE you won't care, but there is a town called Valentine, Ariz.

* *

ADRIAN, the Hollywood designer, was in town the other day and went into a large loop store to visit—not the fashion center, as you might expect, but the tropical fish department. He bought fish for his aquarium at home—strange, iridescent scalare, with their silvery fins, and Barbus sumatramus, a variety striped in a fashion that ought to please a dress designer. We were surprised to find any one buying fish in the middle west to send to the Pacific coast, and said as much to the saleswoman in the fish department. She said it wasn't unusual; that they frequently send fish even to Honolulu.

* *

A MORNING'S shopping for clothes for the tropics brings to light innumerable and incredible flippancies that are going on. It's a separate life that women live and talk when they meet in little shops and at the hairdressers. . . . Exercises, five of every kind, as prescribed by a young sculptor, to keep slim and supple. . . . Nails, shading from shell pink on the thumb to blood red on the little finger. Margery Lett's are done like that—just for fun. . . . A necklacelike adornment for a one-piece dress, dozens of strands of coppery brown leather—as slim as wire strands—spreading out like a yoke in front. . . . "You must wire this very minute for another one for me to wear with my brown dress." . . . Cottons for Jamaica (and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody writes a friend that it's incredibly beautifully green and hot there) . . . Sweaters for Santa Fé. . . . "And Alice tells me the cowboys adore perfume and I'm buying a bottle especially for the cowboys. . . . Shorts (white linen) and brown chiffon evening gown for Miami. . . . "And what will happen to that ruffled train after a glass of champagne is just too bad!" . . . A scarlet and gray striped frock chosen by the shopper for clothes for Tucson. . . . A flowered print for the dark-eyed Lake Forest beauty leaving today for California. . . . We are in the fourth shop by now, and hate cottons, sweaters, chiffons, and prints with equal violence. And order three of the same two-piece dress with the yoke and monogram we liked last year, in different colors.

Poldi Mildner Gets Ovation at Orchestra

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Poldi Mildner, a blonde and pretty pianist from Vienna, who, according to her press notices, is eighteen years old, made her first Chicago appearance yesterday afternoon as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. By the time she had finished playing the Tschaikowsky Concerto in B flat minor the greater part of the population of Orchestra hall were cheering her with all the noise at their command.

She has the quality of excitement in her playing that stirs an audience as nothing else does. When she lashes out into a long line of octaves up and down the piano, one can fairly see the sparks fly. In such respects she is a good deal of a technical marvel. It may be that as the years go on she will change her manner of interpretation somewhat. She may even build up some other matters of fireworks display. But it is to be sincerely hoped that the exuberance, the excitement that is now hers will not be altered. That is the quality that puts the world at the feet of an artist, that makes time fly during a performance.

In other words, she has an enormous talent, and she is young enough so that it can easily become even a greater one. Her kind of playing sounds a cheery note in a concert season.

Conductor Stock preceded her appearance with some Beethoven, the "Coriolanus" overture and the mighty Ninth Symphony, which, however, was trimmed by the omission of the final movement of chorus and soloists. Rather curiously, the omission did not sound like an amputation. The first, second, and third movements left the impression of a great piece of music complete in itself.

Arthur G. Cable, chairman of the committee to assist the financial affairs of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, told the audience at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon that there had been donations of $29,550 and extra tickets sold to the extent of $5,824, or a total of $35,374. This, he stated, came from 474 season ticket subscribers, or about one in five of the 2,400 who hold season tickets.

Much interest was aroused, he added, by the appeal made over station W-G-N during the popular concert of Feb. 3. He read a letter from Harrisburg, Pa., commending the campaign and enclosing the sum of $1.

Two large musical organizations are arriving in town today for concerts this evening. One is the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, to appear at the Auditorium under the direction of Eugene Ormandy.

The other is the Carleton College Symphony band of Northfield, Minn., billed for an appearance at Mandel hall, University of Chicago, under the direction of Dr. James Robert Gillette. It is playing under the auspices of the university department of music, and proceeds from the concert will be used for music scholarships. It will play another concert in the Concordia college gymnasium, River Forest, on Friday evening.

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce. Barbara introduces him to her father as a casual acquaintance. Her father suspects Barbara's interest in Rance. He won't have him in the house again. Then relents, fearing she will meet him outside. Barbara tells her father she is going to marry Gregory. Brawne grants Gregory an interview in his New York office. He turns him out when he learns Gregory is divorced.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

DEFIANCE.

"I ought to come in."

"No."

"Still——"

"No. I won't have you humiliated again!"

He hesitated.

"Don't fear, because I am not afraid." She put her arms around him and held him strongly. "And nothing, dear, is ever going to keep me from you, not now. I couldn't go on living."

He held her, reluctant to let her go.

"I'll be waiting for you outside."

"I'll come, and don't worry too much."

She stood watching until he had disappeared around the lilac bushes, and then went in.

"The aunts have gone up?"

"Yes, Miss Barbara."

"Father?"

"He's fidgeting with the clocks—as he always does."

"Ask him to come to the library."

Thomas had meant he was fussing with the clocks, as he always did when he was waiting the decision of an important case. She went into the library and braced herself against the desk.

Her father did not come for a full quarter of an hour, but she did not move. When he arrived he closed the door with a nervous fumbling movement. As he turned to face her his hand was shaking. Seeing this, an involuntary shivering seized her, too.

"What I want to know——"

"Why did you——"

They burst out together and as automatically stopped.

"Let him begin first," she thought. "I'll know sooner what's really in his mind."

He went to the desk, sat down, and buried his head in his hands.

"That's acting," she thought scornfully.

"Are you ready to listen to me?" he said, raising his head and biting off the words.

"I am listening."

"What I want to know is, did you know when you spoke to me——"

"Why did you——"

"That Gregory had been married? Yes, he told me at once, the day after I met him."

"And that he had deserted his wife after two weeks——"

"He did not desert her—it was mutual."

"That's what he told you," he persisted relentlessly. "The fact remains that he left his wife two weeks after he married her. Do you deny that?"

"No."

"You knew this, all of this? You have not just learned it?"

"I knew it all from the very beginning."

"And—and——"

"And it made no difference. Furthermore, there is nothing to be ashamed of, nothing to explain, nothing to apologize for!"

"Then why did you conceal the fact from me?" he said, immediately falling into his cross-examining manner.

"Before we go any further—I shall answer your question later—I have an explanation to ask of you." Despite every intention to keep control of her nerves, her voice broke. "You sent for Gregory to come to your office. You treated him like a book agent—you dismissed him before your secretary. Why did you deliberately humiliate him and me?" Her voice caught. "That is something I shall never forget, no, never! If you had the slightest respect for me you would at least have seen him at your home, as any gentleman would have done under the circumstances."

He gave an angry movement of his hand that sent a book scurrying across the desk.

"That has nothing to do——"

"It has everything to do with it!" She looked up with blazing eyes. "It showed me that all that you said to me was just pretense. You didn't mean a single word of it. You deliberately, yes, deliberately, did everything to provoke a quarrel!"

"I did no such thing."

"You did! If I'd been Gregory I should have walked out of your office instantly." She stopped because she was trembling all over, turned, and went to the long window to recover herself. "The person you hurt was not Gregory—but yourself," she said after a moment.

"When you are ready to resume the conversation——"

She came back, thinking:

"There, I've done that. Now, I must keep hold of myself."

"You have said what you wished," he said coldly. "Now, will you explain why you thought it necessary to conceal Mr. Gregory Rance's past from me?"

"I am going to marry Gregory. I have never had a moment's hesitation," she replied quietly. "This is final."

"Answer my question!"

"Why? O, father! You know very well why! Because I am afraid of you, yes, afraid! You've brought me up to be afraid and wanted me to be afraid, so that you could keep me here, absorb me, shut me away——"

"That's not true!"

"O, yes it is. All I've done—and you don't know the half of what I've hidden from you—I've done because I believed that if—if you got to know Gregory first, before, you might get to see him as I see him."

"And you knew if I'd known this story, I'd have shown him the door!"

She frowned, angered at the expression.

"You're right there, young lady," he continued savagely. "Now, to leave all these heroics, the plain fact is that you've introduced him here under false pretences. I disliked the fellow the moment I set eyes on him. There is something in instinct——"

She laughed angrily.

"That's ridiculous! And now, father, you may as well understand that I am at the end of my patience. You cannot call Gregory names and have me stay in this room."

"Shall I refer to him as the 'gentleman in question'?" he said cuttingly.

Her eyes flashed, but she restrained herself.

"I'll try to reason with him, one last time; but it will be useless," she thought. She went to a chair and sat down. "Your one objection is that Gregory is divorced, isn't it?"

"My principal objection. I object to the way the marriage was made and terminated," he said, drumming on the table.

"Don't do that!" she cried involuntarily. "I'm sorry, but it gets on my nerves."

Women Must Be More Chary in Mate Selection

Marriage Needs Foundation of Good Character.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am single, have been in the business world for a long time, and have seen how things work out. I do not, in any sense, qualify as a siren type. Yet, from personal experience, I know that many married men go to great lengths and considerable effort to cheapen the marriage state. It seems to be the fashion to do so.

"Whether admitted or not, polygamy seems to be a fact. I cannot conceive of an inducement sufficiently strong to influence me to endure the anxieties of many of my married women contemporaries. They do not know where their wandering boys are when the phone excuses come for their absence at dinner. Some other woman frequently does. This does not absolve the other woman, of course, but usually she is not betraying her own immediate family as is the man. The less said about her the better, however. She is the trouble the married man was looking for and found.

"As a constructive suggestion, I offer the hope that women will some day develop themselves to the point where marriage will assume such importance in their eyes that they will enter it only when they are as positively convinced, as is humanly possible, that the partner whom they select for the venture is a worthy, honest minded individual who believes stanchly in a square deal and is willing to abide by his belief.

"Miss Grace C.", before closing, urges less talk about the importance of acquiring and "holding" a male, any male, and more about the selection of candidates fit for the vocation of husband and father, fit mentally, physically and ethically.

Sound suggestions and constructive, for which we thank the writer.

But why get sour on a group that is, at worst, but a small minority of our married folk? True, there is a good deal of this thing, called marriage cheapening, going on. On the other hand, the country is flooded with husbands whose dinner appearance can be counted on with clocklike regularity, and whose general behavior conforms to the finest marriage standards.

A popular fault is to form opinions from a small group whose behavior does not begin to represent the great body of substantial people in this country of ours.

Good Morning!

The story, located in the regions "somewhere east of Suez," is so shoddy and unoriginal that the picked cast can do little with it. Your interest starts collapsing at about the second scene and by the end of the picture is flat.

There doesn't seem to be anything else to say.

See you soon.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Appeal for Clothing.

A discarded suit, size 40, and a pair of shoes, size 8, wide, would mean a very great deal to G. L. Some months ago he lost his job and his wife and 3 small children were forced to go to another city to live with relatives. Mrs. L. and the youngest child are ill at the present and he is anxious to go to them. He has an offer of transportation, but must have decent apparel. A short stocky build, his height is about 5 feet 3 inches. As he has no permanent address at present, persons wishing to assist him may forward articles to this office.

"There is only one way to remove hair and destroy the roots: ELECTROLYSIS but beware of novices," Miss Keller, a specialist for 22 yrs. in this work, is endorsed by eminent physicians. 200 to 600 roots destroyed per hour. No scars. Face, arms & body. Permanent—Reasonable

Doris Blake Answers

Make Him Feel at Ease.

"Dear Miss Blake: I like a boy who told my girl friend he cares for me. When my friend and I meet him he speaks to her but not to me. Why?

"PUZZLED MARY."

If you suspect the boy to be shy, make him feel at ease with your friendliness.

Make Explanation.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a girl whom I intend to marry, but due to financial matters it is impossible at present. Should I explain this to her?

"AL."

By all means, make your explanation. It would be a good way to test her love for you at this time.

BY MARY MEADE.

"I must earn some money!" Can you guess how many times that appeal has turned up in letters and by phone this last trying year? It has come to us hundreds, I had almost said thousands of times. Many, many days it has been written by women whose families were destitute, who themselves, with what unpracticed abilities they might possess, had suddenly to take the responsibility of the home and, in some way, produce a miracle that would stretch ends at least to meeting.

Others of these appeals did not come from quite such tragic surroundings. They came from homes where women who had had no need to do professional work since marriage had now determined to put their home-making abilities to use, if could be, and help out the bread winner in holding up their slipping standards of living.

When such appeals have come in we have given what council we could, helping women with advice in making and marketing their jams or cookies, hamburgers, or barbecues. But advice by letter can do so little on such a large and detailed matter. So, glad I am this morning to be able to present to you, not by any means the first but at least one of the most recently revised and most popular books on making money in your home kitchen that I have yet seen. Here 'tis:

"Cooking for Profit," by Alice Bradley. American School of Home Economics, Chicago. Price, $2.50.

Miss Bradley, whom you've likely met, at least second handedly, through magazine pages and other diet and cookery books, has discussed for us in detail in these pages 51 different ways to make money, all based upon home cooking. If you despise cooking and aren't too good at it, don't even consider this book. But if you love it, are trained either at home or at school for the work, and have a few other sterling character traits, which Miss Bradley nicely lists, then "Cooking for Profit" may be the answer to a sea of troubles, and the path to a nice little bank account. Briefly the book considers, step by step, all the pros and cons of cooking as a profession; specialty cooking at home [canning, breads, sandwiches, and meats come in into this], and cooking specials for a food shop, your own or another's. In addition there are sections, with recipes, explaining home candy making, cake making, catering for social occasions, also tearoom and cafeteria management—all for profit.

Which leaves us room to play tag with a few cookery tricks which, perhaps, you haven't yet met.

For one, do you ever have squarish shaped tins come into your house—small ones, I mean, not gasoline cans? Some baking powders come in them, and some canned meats. Well, save 'em. They're swell exant for the steaming of Boston brown bread. For, when cut, the slices make cornered, packable sandwiches for school lunches, or, if you will, a gracious change for the daily table layout.

And ever have sorrows from that villainous lime scale on the inside of the tea kettle? One writer in says to it, "Scram," simply by dropping a clay marble, purloined from the small son, into the boiling water. The scale preferred the marble to the kettle, changed places, and the kettle came clean.

Getting suds in hard water is another job most of us don't like, and often don't do too well. One way I've found, if a gal has a drip coffee pot with the proper kind of lid, is to put the soap in the small coffee container, either in cake or flake form, put on the lid, and shake it about excitedly in the hot dish water.

And while I was playing about happily with this new idea the other day I thought up a still newer one which isn't so bad, although I've had better. If this same perforated section of the coffee pot is like mine, it makes a pretty successful clothes sprinkler! It runs out speedily, but inverting nearly stops it, and it certainly does dampen clothes!

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The wind blown silhouette is a new fashion for daytime dresses. Note the big bow that finishes the neckline, the new sleeves that flare, and the plaits of the lower front skirt. Martini green, printed silk crêpe suggests springtime, and will be lovely. Plain crêpes, light weight woolens, rayons, etc., are also suitable.

The pattern, No. 3389, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully] for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, New York City.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

Lent to Open Today; Rites to Mark Season

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Lent begins today, Ash Wednesday, and Catholics, Lutherans and Episcopalians will observe the next 40 days, exclusive of Sundays, with distinctive seasonal devotions. The season is becoming more universally observed by all Christian groups, and Protestant churches are again planning special services.

In Catholic and Episcopal churches the symbolic feature of the services today will be the blessing of the ashes. The day will also usher in the long sequence of fast days. Regulations for the meals of Catholics on those days of devotion have been published by Cardinal Mundelein.

Bishop George Craig Stewart will open the annual noon day Lenten services under Episcopal Church club auspices at the Grand Opera house today. These services have been conducted during the Lenten seasons of the last quarter century. Some of the country's most notable preachers have appeared before the noonday loop audiences.

Today is being utilized by Chicago Methodist pastors for a spiritual conference in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Oak Park. The devotional program for the day will be directed by Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf. Taking part in the leadership of the Ash Wednesday retreat are Dr. Harlow V. Holt, Dr. Harris Franklin Rall, Dr. L. F. W. Leseman, and Dr. John Thompson. Devotions will center on the subject of Christ's teaching about God.

The Chicago Church federation, through its department of evangelism, will use the Lenten period to bring to a climax an evangelistic effort which has been under way since the first of the year. The evangelistic plans of the 19 constituent denominations have been coördinated by a special committee headed by Bishop Waldorf.

A "World Day of Prayer" will be observed on Friday, with special services beginning at 10:30 a. m. in the Chicago temple. The observance is under the auspices of the women's division of the federation. The day of prayer was established in 1927. More than fifty countries of the world participated in the observance last year. It is held annually on the first Friday of Lent. The address will be delivered by Mrs. Joseph N. Rodeheaver of the Northern Baptist Theological seminary.

The Rev. Canon David E. Gibson, pastor of the Cathedral shelter, Washington and Peoria streets, has announced that noon day masses will be said each day during Lent, beginning today. These services are sponsored by the Catholic club of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago.

His subject will be "The New Deal and Its Future." Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, president of the league, is in charge of arrangements and assisting her are Mrs. William G. Hibbard, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Ralph T. Winston, Mrs. E. W. McCready, and Mrs. Quincy Wright.

Four of those who took boxes for the Passavant hospital benefit Friday night and who are not going to be here to occupy them have given their boxes to the nurses of the hospital, who will attend in uniform the opening performance of the Monte Carlo ballet, reminding the others in the audience of the cause they are aiding at the same time that they are having a particularly pleasant evening.

Those who have donated their boxes to the nurses are Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. James R. Offield, and Mrs. Max Hoffman.

Mrs. Francis Johnson, president of the women's board which is sponsoring the benefit, and Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, who live in Lake Forest, are giving a dinner party together Friday night in Mrs. Johnson's attractive Lake Shore drive apartment.

Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, who is a co-chairman with Mrs. Johnson of the general committee, is inviting her box guests for supper after the performance.

Tavern Elects Boyden President.

The new board of governors of the Tavern yesterday rewarded William C. Boyden for the efficient manner in which he assumed the duties of the presidency at the death of John Norton by electing him president. This was all the business, however, that the governors took time to transact, reserving the selection of the other officers until lunch today.

At the annual meeting of the members Monday night the new board was named [this in turn elects the officers], but as a matter of fact it is not especially "new," since Alfred Shaw, Alfred MacArthur and Wirt Morton are the only members who have not served before. The "holdovers" include Karleton Hackett, John Wentworth, Lloyd Lewis, Joseph T. Ryerson, William Welch, and Augustus S. Peabody.

Mrs. Dudley Root, who arrives this morning for a visit with the Paget Cadys of East Division street, will have a chance to see all her old friends tomorrow afternoon at a cocktail party Miss Frieda Foltz is giving from 5 to 7 o'clock at her apartment, 37 East Division street.

The party is for Mrs. Root, the former Ellen Dudley, and to give a preview of some water color sketches of Burnett H. Shryock, who has just finished a sketch of Miss Foltz. Mrs. Root has been living abroad for the last two years, most of the time in Mallorca, and her many friends here will welcome her home with open arms and the hope that she is here to stay some time.

Fairbanks to Visit Town of Their Name.

While the Kellogg Fairbanks are in southern Arizona, where they are visiting Mr. Fairbank's cousin, Mrs. Hobart Johnson, and Mr. Johnson in Tucson, they certainly will visit a nearby town, Fairbank, which was named for Kellogg Fairbank's father, the late Nathaniel K. Fairbank, many years ago when he was visiting in southern Arizona. Fairbank is the spur line terminal for Fort Huachuca and is nearer Mexico than Tucson and not very far from Tombstone.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Belden are boarding the train today for Jacksonville, Fla., where they will pick up their car and motor on to Palm Beach. They are planning to be away four weeks, making their residence in an apartment in Palm Beach. In another two weeks their son, Joseph C. Belden Jr., will join them.

The Chicago alumnae of the Mary C. Wheeler school of Providence, R. I., will hold their luncheon and annual reunion next Tuesday at the Casino. Miss Dorothy Stirling and Mrs. Arthur W. Rogers are in charge of arrangements. Miss Mary Helen Dey, head mistress, will arrive on Saturday to spend several days at the Fortnightly club and to be the speaker at the luncheon.

Kenwood Club Sets Fashion Show Date.

The date for what always is one of the nicest and most successful benefits of the early spring is announced today, that of the Kenwood Social Service club fashion show. It is to be held this year on March 31 at the Drake hotel and, as in years past, there will be cards and tea in the afternoon and a supper dance at night with a floor show and a bar as extra attractions. Mrs. Wilson Kilough is chairman of the committee in charge and Mrs. William S. Hubbard is in charge of the fashion show.

The American Friends of China are meeting today for luncheon at the Palmer house to hear Francis Hutchins, president of Yale-in-China, speak on "Present Conditions in China." Dr. Hutchins, who is on his way to Montclair, N. J., to marry Miss Louise Gilman on the 22d of this month, recently made an extensive tour of China and Manchuria.

During his two day stay here—he arrives this morning from the west coast—Dr. Hutchins will be the guest of his brother, President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Hutchins, who will go east a bit later for the wedding.

Paris Permits Variations on One Color Theme

BY BETTINA BERWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Variations of the one color ensemble theme, which Paris likes for first spring wear, are allowed. Lots of the younger set here are wearing blue ensembles in two tones of that charming color. The two best tones of blue for the ensemble are a dark violet-ty blue and a lighter shade of the same, like corn flower blue.

The fenny ensemble herewith is in these two stunning nuances of the same basic color. The knee length coat is made of dark blue rough woolen and is a loose wrap that gapes open all the way down the front to let the world know what your dress looks like. It has a real cowl collar of the material, tied in front in a knot.

The dress, of corn flower blue flat crêpe, is trimmed with plaited frills of the material and has a tie-on skirt tunic. The skirt beneath this tunic is narrow with two plaited ruffles at the hem. The tunic, which is three-quarters length, ties on at the waistline with a band and bow of the crêpe and has a narrow, fluted, ruffle hem.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

OPENING ONE NO-TRUMP BIDS. [Continued.]

IN my previous articles I have told you that three things are necessary for an original no trump.

[1] Primary trick strength.

[2] Tenace positions in the hand.

[3] Strength equivalent to Q-small in every suit. I am trying to teach you imaginative contract. You should visualize an operating unit of twenty-six cards—your own hand and your partner's—and bid accordingly, so that, through the correct placing of the declaration, the declarer will be benefited instead of handicapped by the opening lead.

P. HAL SIMS.

Now I am going to attack another old standby—the policy of always bidding a biddable suit. Suppose you held the following hand:

Sp. K x	Di. A K Q x x x
Hts. K 10 x	Cl. A Q

"This is a good hand," you say to yourself. "This is a very good hand. It will probably play in three no-trump." Whereupon you promptly and foolishly bid a diamond. Your partner responds with one no-trump, which you raise to three. The hand is set two tricks. You say cheerfully, "It's too bad about that spade lead, partner. I wish I could have played the hand. There are nine tricks cold, if you could have only got in."

Did it ever occur to you to bid one no-trump, yourself. Don't look blank. Did it? I thought not. In the dear departed days of auction, such a thing was unthinkable. But you're playing contract now. The chances are one in 100 that somebody will obligingly lead diamonds for you. Therefore, it is imperative that you be the declarer and get the lead up to your kings.

Bidding a no-trump with a concealed suit in the hand does not mitigate against the chances of a slam in that suit. Whatever your partner bids, you may now bid your suit. If he has a distributional type of hand, he will either raise you or rebid his own long suit. Then you can rebid accordingly or sign off at three no-trump.

Sp. A Q 10 x x	Di. A Q
Hts. K J x	Cl. A J 10

This hand is generally considered a one-spade bid. I advocate one no-trump. If my partner bids any suit I will now show the spades. He then has a chance to support my suit, definitly knowing that it consists of at least five cards. If he bids two no-trump I will raise the contract to game without showing my length in spades. Possibly I may get a spade opening on the hand. If he passes—well, the hand will produce just as many tricks at no-trump as in spades. I shall go into the question of responses and rebids more fully in later articles.

One final comment. In my system we try to avoid playing a hand at two no-trump [except with a part score]. If the hand won't produce game, then it should be played at one no-trump or at three in a suit. A hand is either too weak or too strong for two no-trump. That is why I advocate strong opening no-trumps, so that if your partner gives you one raise you will feel perfectly free to bid the game. If your hand lacks sufficient values for that, do not open it with one no-trump. Rather bid a suit, no matter how weak.

FAIR PLAY

BY NANCY CABOT.

Here is a splendid example of a quilt for a boy's room—simple, easy to piece, and most effective. Since the color scheme suitable for such a room needs thoroughly masculine colors, strong shades of red, yellow, and blue on a white ground make up this nine inch block.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

Mothers Should Cut Housework to Minimum

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It looks as though today's column would have to contain a blanket prescription for managing small children. It seems that the writer of a recent letter needs help badly but did not dare sign her name or address for fear I would use it, since all her family read this column. Well, I never use names—but let's start with as much of the letter as I have space for:

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: I wonder if you would be so kind as to answer my letter in your column. I do so need your help.

"I have two lovely little boys. One is two and a half and the other is one year. Now it happens that these two kiddies are simply into everything. And nothing I can say seems to make any difference. They stop when I tell them—but a half hour later they're doing the same things again.

"We have a large apartment which I have to look after besides doing our family wash—and washing for the kiddies every day. I cook for my husband and myself, and cook everything special for the kiddies. And there are a million and one other things to be done around a home—bathe the children, take them out, do my shopping, and so forth.

"You see with me it's simply rush, rush, rush all day long."

"Please, Mrs. Bevans, won't you tell me what to do. I'm banking on you to help me."

It's a large order to answer in an inch or two of space, but I shall try.

Two things need changing here. The management of the children and the planning of the housework. The housework and the cooking and washing simply must be reduced to essentials.

Next, this young mother must learn to understand her children and their needs, and then discover how to direct their energy instead of scolding and screaming at each mischievous or unruly thing.

As it is impossible to lay out here, in the column, a whole course of procedure, the only thing I can suggest is that the write send for several of our written-in-full booklets such as those on patience, obedience, stubbornness, "don't touch," and reading references on child management. Many parents have achieved a complete change of attitude in this way. A stamped, self-addressed envelope is required for each booklet.

How to Travel Alone Is Told by Mrs. Shaw

Suggests Demonstrations in Packing Technique.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Some of society's civic minded matrons who spend a major part of their time thinking up successful benefits for their pet charities might spend a profitable hour or two in the company of Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw. She would give them the formula for a distinctly new and thrilling travelog.

"It has always seemed strange to me," remarked Mrs. Shaw parenthetically yesterday while reading her paper "Traveling Alone" before the members of the Chicago College club, "that no one has ever worked out a system of booths with hourly packing demonstrations by some of our inveterate and finished travelers. Each one, you know, has her own particular method.

"One friend, for instance, always takes along a canvas duffle bag for her husband's accessories while several more pin paper labels to each of their articles. Add to these demonstrations a few travel stories and a successful afternoon ought to be assured."

Whether or no Mrs. Shaw was offering her suggestion in seriousness remains a question, but more than one member of her audience remaining for luncheon at the College club was mulling over its possibilities.

Most of the guests agreed, however, that an even better benefit attraction would be a repetition of Mrs. Shaw's delightful paper replete with its whimsicalities and humor and more than one good suggestion for "Traveling Alone."

"Don't misunderstand," Mrs. Shaw cautioned in beginning and again in closing, "I'm not advocating traveling alone. I've just written this in answer to all my friends who ask 'why' and 'how.' It's to give the technique and frame of mind. I suppose when I was little I was one of those anti-social menaces who built block houses in a corner of the kindergarten all alone.

"People travel by themselves for one of two reasons and they're quite diverse. One is to get away from themselves. The other to find themselves."

Mrs. Shaw's solitary experiences have taken her by bus to James Whitcomb Riley's country, by freight packet down the Mississippi river, by donkey up Mount Ætna. And in enjoying these jaunts no detective has ever been more avid in running down a clew than she has been in searching out the unusual.

"My trip to Riley's country . . . that pleasant part of Indiana . . . was less than a day's journey from home," Mrs. Shaw related. "I fled by a big gray bus to get away from a dinner party at home with which I wasn't concerned. When I got there I sat down and wrote the 'Revolt From Table Decoration. . . . .

No more to worry under this pale moon
About the shape and placement of a silver spoon.'"

"Morning for the solitary traveler should be taken up with exercise and study," she goes on to explain. "The afternoon is good for needlework or a related subject, with the evening reserved for entertainment. As for reading when going to Italy, for instance, don't devote yourself to Marie Antoinette or Gandhi; Breasted's 'Ancient Times' is better under such circumstances. Even the Punic war 264 B. C. will become an exciting romance in your letters home.

"But when you send cables to your anxious family, do be careful how you word them," Mrs. Shaw added. "Four years ago when in Naples I shipped off the following innocent message to Mr. Shaw and our three daughters, 'Delightful voyage. Enjoying self and friends.' Much to my amazement the strangest and most surprised letters came in reply. The second part of the message had been relayed to the family, 'Enjoying self and friend.' Imagine their amazement. I, a grandmother of five!"

Whose Fault?

When a Child Won't Study
"Kept after school!" And it isn't the child's fault, or the teacher's. His mother is to blame. How can a boy get his lessons when his senses are dulled day after day by dosing with sickening purgatives? When a child's bowels are stagnant they need help, of course. But not some drastic drug to upset the stomach, perhaps weaken the entire system; or form the laxative habit. On the right, parents will find a happy solution of this problem: Here's a boy who gets good marks, has time and energy for play. He is never ill, hardly ever has so much as a cold. When he does show any symptoms of being sluggish, his mother knows just what to do. She gives him a little California Syrup of Figs—and that is all. It's a natural, fruity laxative that is agreeable to take, and its gentle laxative action comes from senna. Parents are urged to use just pure California Syrup of Figs. Be sure bottle says 'California'.

NEW STREAMLINE TRAIN CREEPS AT 60 ON FIRST RUN

Break in Equipment on Trip to Capital.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Garrett, Ind., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—A sleek, streamlined train, its appearance reflecting its 110 miles an hour capability, crept across northern Indiana tonight at 50 and 60 miles an hour on its maiden trip—perhaps the maiden trip of a new railroad era. It was the M-10000, just delivered to the Union Pacific railroad by the Pullman Car and Manufacturing company, and now en route from Chicago to Washington, D. C.

"We're breaking in a new machine, not breaking speed records," said E. E. Adams, vice president of the Pullman corporation, as a party of fifty climbed aboard late this afternoon in the shops at Pullman, "but we'll be breaking time schedules when the train is placed in regular service."

W. A. Harriman, chairman of the U. P. board, announced that between 20 and 24 hours will be cut from the running time between Chicago and the west coast by this and three similar trains now under construction in the Pullman plant.

Picks Up Like Auto.

The three articulated coaches, with a 600 horse power distillate engine in the rounded nose and a kitchen and pantry in the tapered tail, eased onto the Baltimore and Ohio tracks and gathered headway with the smoothness of an ocean liner and the rapidity of an automobile. Mr. Adams said the acceleration was two and a half miles per hour per second.

With increased speed the train settled down to a quiet and steady pace, somewhere between fifty and sixty. Waiters with glasses on trays walked in the aisles with none of the swinging of arms and grabbing of seats that accompany this balancing act on a conventional train. There was no loss of riding qualities through the reduction of weight obtained by employing aluminum alloys—quite the contrary.

Travels Safely at 100.

"This stability," said Mr. Adams, "will enable us to travel at a hundred miles an hour with perceptible as well as actual safety."

The interior was as trim as the cabin of a well kept private airplane. The walls of metallic blue sloped inward to a rounded roof, conforming with the stream lines of the exterior.

"It's sound aerodynamics" said the Pullman official, referring to the exterior contours. "Five hundred horse power applied to the drive wheels will push this train over the rails at 90 miles an hour as contrasted with the 1,700 horse power requirted to propel a train of conventional design of this same weight."

But the conventional trains are many times heavier, a single Pullman weighing approximately the same as the 160,000 pounds these three coaches with seats for 116 passengers, a mail and baggage compartment and a self-contained power total. Transcontinental trains are traveling with from ten to twenty tons of weight per passenger as contrasted with less than a ton per passenger on the M-10000.

Somewhere in northern Indiana the brakes were applied. The deceleration was firm and steady and free from any jolting.

Stops 50 Per Cent Quicker.

"There is a new device on these brakes called a decelerometer," Mr. Adams explained. "It automatically regulates the pressure of the shoes on the wheels so as to obtain a maximum efficiency. We can stop from 90 miles an hour in as short a distance as the ordinary passenger train can halt from 60 miles an hour."

"How about operating costs?" he was asked.

"About half what it costs to run a steam train of the same capacity," he replied. "It'll be cheaper than highway transportation."

"And orinigal cost?"

"With quantity production, about the same as for steam equipment."

"And you're going to Washington to show this to the NRA boys?"

On NRA Advisory Board.

Mr. Harriman, son of the famous railroader, E. H. Harriman, was on President Roosevelt's National Relief administration advisory board. The nation has more than 26 billions invested in its railroads, an industry vital to the welfare of society. There are 59,000 conventional coaches and Pullmans in operation.

Their replacement with streamlined, high speed, light weight, economical trains would cost about 2 billion 360 million dollars, which could be spread over a period of years so that the annual outlay would be less than is now squandered in desert dams and similar federal relief measures, it was pointed out.

Dearborn, Mich., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Plans for the Ford exhibit at the 1934 Century of Progress in Chicago were announced here today by Henry Ford. Details of the plan were made public following a conference last week between Mr. Ford and Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition.

The exhibit is to take the form of an exposition of arts and crafts contributing to the manufacture of the modern automobile. It will be housed in a building to be constructed on an 11 acre plot flanking Leif Ericson drive for more than 1,100 feet in the heart of the fair grounds. Workmen are to start constructing the building on March 1.

Opposite the Exposition building, which is to be located on the west side of Leif Ericson drive, Ford park will be constructed, landscaped, and supplied with seats for the comfort of visitors. Plans for the park and building have been drawn by Albert Kahn of Detroit.

The dominant section of the Exposition building will be a circular structure 210 feet in diameter rising in receding terraces to a height of 110 feet. The building will house the "Drama of Transportation," depicting the development of passenger vehicles from Egyptian chariots to modern automobiles.

ASKS $25,000 IN FLOSSMOOR SLANDER SUIT

Nick Calpino, a Flossmoor newspaper distributor and landscape gardener, yesterday filed the declaration of a $25,000 slander suit in the Circuit court against Charles A. Jansen of Flossmoor, an oil broker. The declaration charges that on Feb. 7 Jansen "circulated remarks in which he asserted that Nick Calpino was in trouble with the United States government, that he had been arrested in Chicago and placed under bond for selling moonshine as coffee to CWA workers." The bill also asserted that Jansen suggested Calpino be "run out of town."

Attorney Lee W. Carrier, counsel for Calpino, asserted in the declaration that Jansen's remarks were not based on truth. Yesterday the lawyer explained that Jansen had probably referred to a Nick Galfano of Chicago who was arrested by the government on charges of peddling liquor to CWA workers. Mr. Carrier said that Jansen probably had listened to a radio broadcast of this information and had confused Galfano with Calpino.

SENATE SPEEDS BILLS TO ALLOW FAIR TO REOPEN

3d Special Session Gets Going Instantly.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Convened in third special session today, the Illinois legislature went swiftly to work on two of the major subjects before it, Chicago school legislation and bills to A Century of Progress, to open in June.

Since the World's Fair bills must be speeded if the Exposition is to reopen, the major action came in the senate. Senator Roy C. Woods [Rep., Chicago] introduced the measures and they were sent to second reading immediately in anticipation of a vote on passage Thursday. It would then be possible to obtain house approval next week.

No appropriation for the Fair was sought in the senate today. The bills introduced would merely continue the grant allowing the south park commissioners in Chicago to enter into a contract with A Century of Progress for the lease on the grounds upon which the Exposition is built.

Introduces Measure for Funds.

In the house, where Representative Benjamin S. Adamnowski and Frank Ryan, Chicago Democrats, will handle the legislation. Ryan introduced a $100,000 appropriation bill to insure Illinois' participation again this year.

But this bill will not go into the senate at present, Woods said.

Moved also to second reading in the senate were the Chicago school bills backed by Mayor Kelly and the board of education. Introduced by Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] in the upper chamber and Representative Adamowski in the house, they embody the plan to pay teachers' salaries by selling a $42,000,000 bond issue to the federal government.

Gov. Horner's message was read in his absence by Secretary A. E. Eden of the senate and Clerk Charles P. Casey of the house. The governor is convalescing at Phoenix, Ariz., from a stubborn attack of influenza. He has been there a week and is expected to stay at least another week.

A summary of the important sections follows:

SCHOOLS.

"It is very important that measures be enacted to make possible the continued operation of our public school system. Curtailment in the revenue of school districts has been occasioned in large part by the huge shrinkage in the assessed value of property throughout the state, the delay in the collection of taxes and the inability of many property owners to pay the taxes levied against them. A number of suggestions have been made to me and will be made to your body for remedial legislation and the proclamation has been so phrased that the entire subject as it affects the state may be considered by you. In our desire to aid our schools we should not take from local communities, insofar as their ability permits their privilege and their duty to maintain them.

"Laws should be enacted which will enable the local communities to support their schools, but not to disturb the fiscal affairs of the state which we are striving to place on a sound basis. May I again call to your attention the opportunity now before you of meeting the problem of more than ten thousand one room school houses in the state, many of which have less than ten pupils?"

"The consolidation of many of them will result in economy of administration and greater efficiency in the school system of the state."

WORLD'S FAIR.

"The Century of Progress Exposition of 1933 resulted in definite advantages to the whole state and I believe the World's Fair of 1934 will also be of advantage to all Illinois. Legislation is necessary to vest the proper authority for the conduct of this exposition of 1934 and for the state's participation therein. Prompt action on this subject is necessary and I am sure it will receive favorable and immediate consideration.

CO-OPERATION WITH RECOVERY PROGRAM.

"This legislation should include, among other things, authority to the sanitary district for the treatment of industrial wastes and to pledge to the federal government as part security for its loan receipts from such charges, and also the judgments rendered in favor of the district for the sale of electricity, and also to require judgments of the city of Chicago to be paid in the order of their rendition."

COUNTY COLLECTORS' BONDS.

"I am informed that the surety companies insist on certain changes in the conditions of these bonds and that amendatory legislation for that purpose is necessary. It has also been suggested to me that the cost of these bonds can be reduced to the municipal corporation by reducing the amount of bonds required of the officer."

RECORDING COSTS.

"The fee for recording chattel mortgages, particularly the lengthy instrument necessary under federal financing relief acts, has greatly increased the costs of such loans to a class of borrowers of small sums least able to bear any added expense."

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURES.

"I favor such legislation as will vest the power of staying or postponing the sales under mortgage foreclosure in the courts of this state, providing that such power shall be circumscribed by provisions to protect the security of the creditor and such other restrictions as shall not destroy the validity of the contracts. In adopting such legislation, care should be taken for the sake of both legality and equity to protect adequately the rights of the creditor while affording relief to the debtor. In my opinion, we can safely leave the exercise of this great power and the ascertainment of the conditions under which it should be exercised, to the wise discretion of the courts."

CORPORATION TAXES.

"It has been discovered that the corporation act of 1933 by inadvertance omitted a provision imposing a penalty for failure to pay taxes imposed upon corporations when due. This oversight should be remedied to insure prompt payment of franchise and capital stock taxes in order that the state may be assured of its revenues in this respect without delay."

TRUCKS AND BUSES.

"The statutory provisions licensing, taxing and regulating motor truck and bus traffic have not kept pace with its rapid development. I ask your careful consideration of this subject to the end that we may secure adequate, comprehensive and modern statutory provisions in this regard, including the imposition of a fair tax on this traffic."

LEGISLATORS WAIL AS AUDITOR CHOPS TRAVEL ALLOWANCE

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Illinois legislators today were confronted with a situation which "hurt" because it touched their pocket books.

The auditor's office "cracked down" on the assemblymen's travel expense accounts in recognition of the two cent a mile fare prevailing on the railroads between Chicago and the capital. This meant that an expense account hitherto totaling $13.36 must now read $7.45. The resulting wails of anguish could be heard in the next county.

STEVE HAMAS WHIPS SCHMELING IN 12 ROUNDS

GOLDEN GLOVE BOXERS FIGHT ON 2 FRONTS TONIGHT

50 Matches at Savoy Athletic Club.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The near south side sectional tournament gets under way at the Savoy Athletic club, 4733 South parkway, at 7 o'clock. Thirty minutes later—at 7:30 o'clock—west side sectional championship bouts begin at the 132d Regiment armory.

There will be fighting in one ring only at both sectional centers tonight. About 40 bouts will compose the grand finale on the west side. The south siders will engage in 50 matches.

Thrill After Thrill.

Four hours of furious fighting last night reduced the west side sectional field to some 70 boys. They were the survivors of an original field of 400 and more than 200 encounters.

Not only will the west side championships be at stake tonight in both the open and novice divisions, but the lads from the west side will be fighting to qualify for the Tournament of Champions. The champions and the runners-up in the open division and the eight title winners in the novice class will qualify.

With winners from the preliminary rounds coming together the fighting last night was more thrill-making than ever and it had a big crowd in an uproar from the first bout, which was a knockout, to the last.

Roberts Leads Way.

The youngster who stood out above all the others in the huge field was Earl Roberts, a bantamweight and former southern A. A. U. champion. The lithe, clean cut Roberts drew what was regarded as one of the toughest customers in his division when he was paired with Sammy Kaplan from the Jewish People's institute. Kaplan just missed winning a Golden Gloves title three years ago.

Kaplan, fighting better than ever, swarmed all over Roberts in the first round and had him down for a nine count two minutes after the bout started. It appeared as if Kaplan could win when he pleased.

Roberts weathered the round, however, and when he came out for the second session the entire complexion of the struggle changed. Now it was Kaplan who was bounced all over the ring.

Referee Stops Fight.

A minute after the round started Kaplan was down for an eight count and was almost knocked out of the ring. He rallied slightly and Roberts whaled him again. Kaplan was hopelessly beaten and, to save him further punishment, Referee Tommy Thomas stopped the fight.

Two of the most sensational and spectacular knockouts came in the light heavyweight division and occurred almost simultaneously.

A few ticks of the clock after Sam Kahn, unattached, had floored Augustus Peters, Bellwood Negro, for the count in the first round, Willis Johnson of Downers Grove was knocked out by Harry Dietrich from the German American Athletic club in the second ring.

Mr. Bone Can't Take Sherry.

One of the crowd's favorites, Bill Bone from the Civilian Conservation corps, whose stiff punches made him a great idol of the galleryites on opening night, disappointed his admirers and forgot to duck, going into the discard in his first bout last night.

Eddie Sherry from the Catholic

15,000 WATCH EX-COLLEGIAN WALLOP GERMAN

Max Is Himself Only in Twelfth.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Steve Hamas of Passaic, N. J., tonight scored one of the greatest upsets in recent years when he whipped Max Schmeling of Germany, former heavyweight champion, before 15,000 at Convention hall. The receipts were estimated at $33,295.

Referee John [Spud] Murphy and Judges Al Voice and Lew Cassidy, by unanimous vote, awarded Hamas the decision after 12 rounds in which he clearly established his right to the award. One ballot gave the ex-champion three rounds, another gave only one. That is a fair indication of how clearly Hamas worked his way to victory and jumped from semi-obscurity to ring prominence when few thought he could.

Schmeling didn't do any of the fighting of which he has shown himself capable in the past until the 12th and last session. Then he hammered a weary Hamas, who, no doubt, was surprised at his own success. The rally, however, came too late to help Schmeling.

Banged with a right hand in the ninth round that cut a deep gash over the left eye, Schmeling must have known he was beaten when the final bell clanged and he smilingly tapped Hamas on the shoulder in acknowledgement even before the decision was announced.

No Alibi for Max.

Schmeling went through 11 of the 12 rounds smiling a perpetual smile, while Hamas tapped and smashed and stung him with a bewildering fire of straight lefts and right hooks, and occasionally, in surprising outbursts, smashed him with solid rights to the head and face.

Starting cautiously, it seemed that Schmeling permitted himself to be outboxed in the first round, as if he were waiting for a chance to end the battle with one blow.

He waited through ten succeeding rounds, at times even through punishing fusillades to which Hamas subjected him. Schmeling never has been a one punch finisher, so his strategy was a surprise.

For a time it seemed that Schmeling would suffer his second ring knockout without being counted out. Idle since his knockout last summer at the hands of Max Baer, he was threatened with an arbitrary interruption of tonight's battle when a state athletic commission physician examined his badly torn left eyebrow between the ninth and tenth rounds and again between the tenth and eleventh sessions. The injury was passed after examination.

Fails to Harm Steve.

Schmeling never really hurt Hamas. Hamas' weariness as the finish neared was from his own exertions as much as from the few punches landed by the German. He was ready for a knockout in any round after the eighth, when Schmeling shook him to his heels with a smashing right to the jaw.

In the eleventh and twelfth rounds the will to win, with victory so near his grasp, was the urge for Hamas, despite Schmeling's desperate closing bid. But in every other round with the exception of the fourth, which was even, Hamas just fought his way to victory steadily with a succession of left jabs and hooks and occasional right crosses with infrequent two fisted flurries, with which he at times fought Schmeling clear across the ring.

Schmeling weighed 189 pounds, four less than Hamas, whose greatest victory up to tonight had been a two round knockout of Tommy Loughran.

Despite the defeat, Schmeling said that he intended to continue his comeback campaign, and that he would sail from New York Saturday to box Paulino Uzcudun in Barcelona in April.

BOZEMAN LEADS CUE MEET WITH FIFTH VICTORY

Cochran, Matsuyama and Hall Win.

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—J. N. Bozeman Jr., 27 year old Vallejo, Cal., player, took undisputed possession of first place in the world's three-cushion billiard tournament tonight as he defeated the Chicago southpaw, Augie Kieckhefer, 50 to 45, in one of the best played games of the tournament. It was Bozeman's fifth straight victory.

Kieckhefer, champion two years ago, opened the game with an exhibition of billiards that indicated he was going to make short work of the player picked by the experts as most likely to reach the championship heights. In the first four innings Augie reeled off 15 points with the aid of a high run of seven and another cluster of five.

Bozeman never got rattled, however, and with a consistent display of shotmaking that saw him fail to score in only five of the first 15 innings he soon caught up. At the end of the first 15 frames he was in front, 22 to 20, largely as the result of a run of five in the tenth and another cluster of four in the fifteenth.

Kieckhefer Draws Up.

Bozeman kept steadily at his task of compiling points and with a high run of six in the thirty-sixth inning led, 40 to 34. Then Kieckhefer, calling on his knowledge of safety plays, began to close in, sending his total to 45 while Bozeman was collecting seven more points. Bozeman finally got his 48th point in the 51st inning, however, added his 49th two innings later, and ran out in the 57th.

Welker Cochran of San Francisco, fighting to stay in the thick of battle in defense of his title, defeated Len Kenney, Chicago, 50 to 29, for his fourth triumph in five matches. The defeat was Kenney's seventh successive setback.

Runs Out With Two.

In chalking up his fifth triumph in six matches Hall defeated the gray haired conqueror of Cochran and Johnny Layton, 50 to 37, in a battle that ended in the 60th inning, when the Chicagoan ran out with a cluster of two.

The rivalry between the 33 year old Chicago player and De Oro began in 1928 when De Oro beat Hall in a duel in the now defunct American league. At that time De Oro said he would never speak to his younger opponent again, and he has kept his word, even refusing to shake hands following Hall's victory this afternoon.

The standings:

Player	W.	L.	Pts.	Hr.	Bg.
J. N. Bozeman, Vallejo, Cal.	5	0	250	8	34
Willie Hoppe, New York	4	0	200	8	44
Allen Hall, Chicago	5	1	278	7	48
W. Cochran, San Francisco	4	1	249	13	39
Johnny Layton, Sedalia, Mo.	3	1	196	7	43
K. Matsuyama, New York	3	3	284	8	53
Arthur Thurnblad, Chicago	3	3	271	6	39
Tiff Denton, Kansas City	2	4	254	9	55
Alfredo De Oro, New York	2	4	231	6	51
Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago	2	5	312	10	45

Negotiate for Notre Game C. C. N. Y. Game in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Negotiations were proceeding today for a basketball game in Madison Square Garden, either March 20 or 21, between Notre Dame, uncrowned champion of the midwest and the College of the City of New York, the east's undefeated standard bearer.

Vines' Powerful Service Evens Tilden Net Series

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, tall Californian, used the power of his service to advantage tonight to defeat Bill Tilden, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0, and even the count in their professional tennis exhibition tour. Each now has won nine engagements.

BETWEEN THE ROUNDS AT GOLDEN GLOVES

Henry [Zeke] Bonura, rookie first baseman from Dallas in the Texas league, returned a signed contract to the White Sox yesterday and it was promptly filed among other autographed documents labeled "regulars."

With Bonura's contract came one from Paul Gregory, pitcher, who will get another chance this spring to make good on the promise he displayed last year before he suffered arm trouble and was sent to Milwaukee.

The principal interest in the day's developments, however, centered in the signing of Bonura. Club officials say he will play regularly at first base.

Bonura was purchased late last summer, but did not report to Manager Lew Fonseca because he quit Dallas with a sore finger and preferred to remain at home as long as he was unable to play. He reports that he has fully recovered and is confident he can carry on as well in the majors as he did in the Texas league, where his fielding average was .994 and his batting average .357. Bonura is 6 feet tall and weighs 205 pounds. He bats and throws right handed.

Trainer George Washlow rubs down the arm of Charles Wentworth, a flyweight entrant in the west section of the Golden Gloves tourney at the 132d Regiment armory. The attention failed of its purpose, however, for Wentworth was stopped by Joe Pischl of the C. Y. O. in the third round last night.

Jimmy Had a Nickel!

But he didn't have it long. No sir, Jimmy is a real boxing fan, and when he read that he could put that nickel with some other nickels and see the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at Chicago Stadium he didn't hesitate.

He went down to the Tribune Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn street (or maybe he went to Tribune Tower) and bought ringside tickets for Feb. 26, 27, and 28. It didn't take so many nickels—only $1.10 a copy. And Jimmy could have bought tickets for 66 cents, or even 40 cents, and still had reserved seats.

Jimmy's girl likes to see Golden Gloves (boxing's biggest show), too So Jimmy got seats for the finale at the Stadium March 9, and had his choice of paying $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, or 55 cents.

What's that—you live out of town? Just mail your order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Make checks payable to The Chicago Tribune.

In the Wake of the News

CARNERA IN TRAINING.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13.—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, since Primo Carnera defends his heavyweight title against Tommy Lougran in two weeks, I thought maybe you'd like me to see him in action and tell you what I thought were his chances or, more strictly speaking, Tommy's chances.

By the way, one of the younger Wakes drove me down in the family bus so I wouldn't have to rent a car and put it on my expense account, as I told you I'd be careful how I spent money, but I may have to take a bus back, and if so, I'll put that on the expense sheet.

Primo trains at Deauville, a hotel and casino on the ocean, on the deck of an improvised or make believe ship. First, he went three rounds with photographers posing with bathing beauties. Isn't it strange how young women always seem to want to pose with ring champions? This did not seem to tire him much. While he was perspiring, he was not breathing heavily at the end, although he lifted them with one hand, and stood with them, and all that sort of thing.

Then Carnera boxed four rounds with Arthur Hittick and Harold Mays. Mays, they told me, is the chap to whom Tunney wished to relinquish his title when he retired. If that's so I don't see why, although Mays looks like a nice boy. How did Primo look? I'd say he had improved greatly. Of course, if he was to change at all since I last saw him, he was bound to improve greatly, because he was not a great pugilist then, except in size.

Billy Duffy, Carnera's manager, evidently realizes Primo will have to catch Tommy before he can hit him, for he has the big fellow chasing his sparring partners. Duffy explained

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

BENTON Harbor, Mich., has been a generous contributor to inter-collegiate football the last two years . . . Its 1932 representative was Milton Summerfelt, captain and guard of the Army . . . In 1933 it had Charles Bernard, center of Michigan's undefeated eleven, as its leading standard bearer . . . Jack Saltzgaver, second baseman who will have his third trial with the New York Yankees this spring, is getting into shape on handball courts at Keokuk, Ia. . . . Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, contributes this item: "If George Earnshaw is the pitcher he was in 1931 and 1932, and I know he can pitch far better than he did in 1933, he will help the White Sox where they need it most. . . ."

Ernest Quigley, basketball official, recently called a foul on a University of Kansas player and observing that the boy seemed perplexed he explained why he had inflicted the penalty . . . Nothing but a blank look from the athlete . . . Quigley repeated his reason but still no reply . . . "Don't you understand me?" he asked as they approached the foul line . . . "No," replied the youth, "but I may get used to you." . . . It took two trips from Palo Alto to San Pedro and two cruises taking him into the semi-tropic waters off the tip of Lower California for former President Hoover to satisfy his ambition to catch a marlin swordfish . . . He kept at it until he had hooked three . . .

A. A. Stagg reports that the honor blankets he received in such great numbers last year at the Midway were useful during those cool California nights at Stockton before his household belongings arrived . . . Gordy Jones of Oak Park, who is running on the Illinois mile relay team, is a Phi Beta Kappa . . . Does any one know what became of Pat O'Dea, Wisconsin's great football kicker who went to the world war with the Canadian forces and never was heard of again? . . . Among his feats were a 62 yard drop kick against Northwestern in 1898 and a 50 yard place kick against Chicago in 1897. . . Ed Baecht, right handed pitcher who was louder and noisier than he was able as a $75,000 Cub, was known as Elmer the Great in the National league . . . The name didn't click so well after he was given his release by Minneapolis last season, but now that the Browns have signed him the Lardner title probably will be revived . . .

Newsy Lalonde, manager of the Montreal Canadiens, was a member of world's championship teams in both professional lacrosse and hocky . . . Bernie Bierman is holding class once a week for Minnesota quarter backs . . . He has ordered all football regulars out for track . . . The horses owned by Mrs. John Hertz will race in two divisions this season . . . Frank Hackett will train the main division and Mose Lowenstein will have charge of the second stringers . . . Hackett's horses are in training in South Carolina and Lowenstein's at Lexington . . . The quadrangular track meet to be held at Northwestern Feb. 24 has been an annual event for 11 years . . . It brings together Northwestern, Chicago, Ohio, and Wisconsin . . .

Pete Vaughan, Wabash basketball coach, won the admiration of Purdue fans by his sportsmanship in the recent game between the two schools at Lafayette . . . Whenever Purdue made a good play he would clap his hands as enthusiastically as when his own boys did . . . Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight boxing champion, did not win a vote from the officials of his match with Joe Knight at Miami last week and yet he defended his title by receiving a draw at the end of 15 rounds. . . One judge voted for Knight and the other judge and referee called it a draw . . .

They do say that Tarzan Taylor, Marquette's football line coach, almost committed assault and battery on his boss, Frank Murray, when the latter recently failed to respond to an informatory double . . . The Michigan track squad has eight quarter-milers who have done 53.5 seconds or better in time trials . . . Capt. Tom Ellerby's time of 51.3 is the best of the group, but Harvey Smith, Edward Lemen and Harvey Patton have broken :52.

Ten Years Ago Today—Chicago Maroons were still leading the Big Ten basketball race . . . Ernie Goozeman pounded out a ten round decision over Eddie Shea at East Chicago . . . Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox, testifying in Joe Jackson's suit for back pay, told the Sox' side of the 1919 baseball scandal . . .

GAMES TODAY.

[Lightweight.]

Phillips at Lindblom.
Senn at Von Steuben.

Calumet clinched the lightweight south section basketball championship in the Chicago Public High School league by defeating Bowen, 25 to 23, at the Calumet gymnasium yesterday. It was Calumet's sixth consecutive victory. It will conclude its sectional schedule Tuesday against Morgan Park before competing in the quarter final round of play for the league title.

Roosevelt, the only other undefeated squad in league lightweight competition, became assured of at least a tie for the north section title by triumphing over Amundsen, 38 to 15, on the latter's court. Roosevelt still has one more game to play. Its nearest rival, Senn, has two remaining on its schedule and a record of four victories and one defeat.

Senn Meets Von Steuben Today.

Roosevelt, however, has qualified for the quarter finals. Winners and runners up in each of the four sections are eligible for the title playoffs. Senn will seek its fifth triumph against Von Steuben on the Von Steuben floor this afternoon. Roosevelt will meet Lane Tech in its last sectional contest Tuesday.

Yesterday's play also marked the second league defeat of Farragut, which was tied with Phillips and Lindblom for the central section lead. Farragut lost to Harrison Tech, 28 to 26, at Harrison in the only upset of the day. The setback sent Farragut into third place. Phillips and Lindblom will meet today at Lindblom to settle the first place deadlock.

Crane-Marshall Remain Tie.

Crane Tech and Marshall remained tied for the west division lead. Crane defeated Foreman, 37 to 20, at Foreman, and Marshall routed Kelvyn Park, 31 to 13, on the Marshall court. Crane and Marshall, who now appear as the west section's representatives in the quarter finals, each has scored five victories and suffered one defeat.

The 16 game winning streak of Catholic High of Joliet was snapped by the strong Marmion heavyweight quintet at Aurora last night. The score was 24 to 19. Capt. William Adams led the Marmion attack, scoring three field goals and four free throws.

Court Awards White's Gymnasium to Wife

Charles White, former boxer, no longer will be in charge of the Charlie White health training school at 8 North Michigan avenue. Judge Rudolph F. Desort in the Superior court yesterday ordered the establishment turned over to his wife, Stolla, that she may have an income to support their two children, Joan, 11, and Danna, 6 years old. Mrs. White brought suit for divorce last summer against White, charging cruelty.

Thompson, Horse Owner, Faces Doping Charge

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Louis Thompson, owner and trainer of two horses at Tampa Downs, was suspended by the track stewards today, pending action of the state racing commission, on a charge of using a stimulant on Black Comet. The horse placed second in the fifth race last Friday.

Nature Takes Time to Grow Larger Pike

BY BOB BECKER.

With Illinois fishermen hooking pickerel or northern pike through the ice these winter days, the old argument of how long it takes one of these fish to reach a length of two feet is being revived. Two feet is taken as a nominal standard, since a pickerel of that size is capable of putting up a spirited scrap. Therefore, it's really a question of how long nature must have to grow a husky specimen of a pickerel for the rod and line fisherman.

Here is a table of growth ratios which give the angler an idea of how many years it requires for a lake to develop the kind of pickerel one likes to hook with rod and line. A fast growing pike or pickerel living in a lake in which there is plenty of food can attain a length of 22 to 25 inches in his fourth summer. The odds, however, are against a large number of pickerel in any lake making that growth during their fourth summer. In fact, if you catch, for example, 25 fish which show [by reading their scales] that they are in their seventh summer, the average of those fish is apt to be around 24 to 25 inches.

Vary in Weight, Length.

Some of these pickerel may be so slow in their growth that they are only 18 inches long—a small pickerel to put up much fight. On the other hand, a number of the specimens in the 25 inch group might be three feet long, all of which shows that fish vary greatly in their progress toward weight and length.

So far, the oldest pickerel that we know of being caught and studied in Wisconsin was one in its 14th summer. Considering the way our lakes are fished and the number of lures thrown at game fish every summer, this is a ripe old age for a pugnacious pike or pickerel. This particular specimen was 49 inches long and weighed 20½ pounds. Just to show the difference in development, we can turn to a Wisconsin pickerel which although only 12 summers old reached a length of 53 inches in length and weighed 25 pounds.

Take Time to Develop.

When we haul in a 24 inch fish it is possible that we have a slowpoke which is in its 10th summer, or we may have caught an average northern pike which has taken seven summere to reach a length of two feet. Studies of our game fish to check length and age all point toward this fact: one can't put fingerlings in a lake and expect to catch old lunkers out of that lake in a couple of seasons. It takes nature quite a bit of time to produce good sized specimens.

HOCKY ALL-STARS BATTLE TORONTO FOR BAILEY FUND

Conacher and Gardiner in Tonight's Lineup.

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Sixteen all-star players of the National Hocky league tomorrow will play the Toronto Maple Leafs in a benefit game for Irwin [Ace] Bailey, Toronto winger who suffered a fractured skull in a game at Boston Dec. 12 which may have terminated his hocky career.

With players, officials and the Maple Leafs Garden management waiving expenses, the entire receipts of approximately $17,000 will go to the injured player. He already has received more than $6,000 from the Boston club as the result of a benefit game.

Partially recovered from the effects of his injury, Bailey will make his first appearance at a hocky game since his injuries to toss in the puck for the first faceoff. On the ice at the same time, as one of the players, will be Eddie Shore of Boston, who drew a 16 game suspension as a result of a fight with Red Horner during which Bailey was accidentally knocked down and injured.

Gardiner [Chicago]	Goal	Hainsworth
Shore [Boston]	Defense	Clancy
Johnson [Rangers]	Defense	Horner
Morenz [Canadiens]	Center	Primeau
W. Cook [Rangers]	Wing	Kilrea
Joliat [Canadiens]	Wing	Jackson

SPARES.

HAWKS IN STUNT DAY

The irksome strain of every day practice to which the Blackhawks have been subjected since the opening of the National Hocky league season nearly four months ago will be missing from today's workout at the Stadium. The session will have more an element of fun than work in it, due to Maj. Frederic McLaughlin's inauguration of a stunt day in which the players will vie for prizes donated by the major. The public is invited to attend the stunt exhibition, which will consist of contests involving passing, puck carrying, speed skating, long range and close up shooting. The doors of the Stadium will be open at 2 o'clock.

Two of the Hawks' biggest attractions, Goalie Chuck Gardiner and Defense Man Lionel Conacher, will be absent from the stunt show, both now being in Toronto to take part in the All Star-Maple Leaf game tonight.

Both Conacher and Gardiner will be very much in evidence, however, tomorrow night when the Hawks meet the Ottawa Senators at the Stadium. A victory over the visitors will practically clinch a playoff berth for the Hawks.

Even with the absence of Conacher and Gardiner, Hawk fans who attend the stunt day today will have an opportunity to see such as Johnny Gottselig, Lolo Couture, Taffy Abel, Johnny Sheppard, Doc Romnes, Tommy Cook, Rogers Jenkins and Art Coulter in action.

Fighter with a Background Is Defeated

Possession of one of the fightingest backgrounds of any boy in the sectional Golden Gloves trials at the 132d Regiment armory didn't help Peter Griffin, flyweight boxer, last night. Joe Pischl of the Working Boys' home stopped Griffin in the second round.

Griffin is a Cherokee Indian. His grandfather was called Cherokee Bill when an Indian scout in the Indian wars of 1870. Peter's father, Joseph Griffin, who was in his corner, was a bantamweight 35 years ago. He fought Johnny Coulon and Kid Williams, former champions. The late Johnny Griffin, uncle of the boy, held Frank Erne, lightweight champion, to a 20 round draw in 1895.

Walter Bartkowiak, unattached, entered the tournament to fight and he refused to accept a bye. On his second drawing he pulled Ernst Galinis as an opponent and Tony Spudk got the bye. Galinis beat Bartkowiak in three rounds.

Gus Costanzo, Sheridan Athletic club welterweight, must have studied the methods of King Levinsky, heavyweight, for he did the same things Levinsky does against three opponents. He jumped around, talked to his opponents, wound up his right and threw it wildly, and continually beckoned to them to come and fight. These maneuvers succeeded against two foes whom he beat Monday, but they didn't work last night. So he lost a decision to Hilliard Ellis of Maywood.

A boy that ringsiders believe may win the novice welterweight title is Barney Peterson of Trafton's gymnasium. He whipped Edward Kane, C. Y. O., for his third victory in the tournament. Though he is boxing only a short time, Barney feints, leads, and counters like a veteran. Barney is on the track and boxing teams at Lane Tech High school.

Vince Pellegrini, unattached, went a step closer to his goal when he stopped Jerry Dub in the first round. Vince is a brother to Willie Pellegrini, former A. A. U. bantamweight king, who went to the Tournament of Champions in the 1929 Golden Gloves tourney.

Willard and Charles McElroy, welterweight brothers, both unattached, won and lost their matches. Charles, who is two years older than Willard, lost to Al Simon, Friars Athletic club, while Willard outpointed Howard Walker, Franklin Park.

James Gardner, bantamweight, is thankful to an old-timer for his help in a triumph over Bruno Musial. The old-timer is Walter Parson, who fought some of the best lightweights in 1900.

Sidney Newburn, Lawndale gymnasium light heavyweight, has been picked by several critics to go to the Stadium Feb. 26 for the Tournament of Champions. He was defeated by Max Marek in the semi-finals two years ago.

Packey McFarland, member of the Illinois athletic commission, was one of the loudest rooters for Frank Kausak, C. Y. O. middleweight, when he stopped James Jones of the Civilian Conservation corps.

George Holden, Kane County Athletic club, will tackle Morrie Biner of the Deborah Boys' club tonight for the right to compete in the Stadium bouts in the open class.

Winning Ping-Pong

BY COLEMAN CLARK.
[National Champion 1932.]

USE YOUR HEAD AS WELL AS YOUR HANDS.

THE questions are frequently asked, "How can I stop the slugger," or "How shall I down the stone wall defender?" Answer: Use your head as well as your hands.

Check the slugger by keeping the ball out of his reach so that he cannot sock it. Keep him on the run. Place the ball alternately at sharp angles to the corners or sides of the table.

Patience is required to down the pesky defender. These fellows can be beaten, but it calls for resourcefulness to do it. Don't commit the fatal mistake of playing his game or of becoming overanxious to finish him off.

COLEMAN CLARK.

Match your patience with his. Rally back and forth with him until he presents you with a ball you are sure you can put away, and then smack it. Keep him moving and eventually he will give you the opportunity you have been waiting for.

The ideal game to play is the so-called all-court game whose principal exponent in tennis is Bill Tilden. To play winning ping-pong learn how to defend and how to attack. One is just as important as the other.

Golden Glove Boxers Fight on 2 Fronts

Youth Organization, clipped Bill Bone with a powerful right to the chin a minute after the round started. That was the end of Mr. Bone, who was declared the victim of a technical knockout.

The crowd had hardly quit cheering this mighty punch when Alex Numerowski of the Austin Omars showed it a sweeping left hook to the jaw. This punch, which was something to write home about, landed squarely on the right side of Tony Torian's chin. Tony went down and out of the tournament.

C. Y. O. Leads Qualifiers.

A German and a Jewish boy came together in one of the breath taking scraps. George Fisher was applauded by all the Jewish Organized Youth supporters. Ungie Vollmer represented the German-American Athletic association. Both were terrific punchers and landed many damaging blows in each round. The scrap went the limit and the Germans in the crowd lifted the roof with their cheers when Vollmer got the decision.

The Catholic Youth Organization qualified more boys for the west side championship struggles than any other organization. Thirty C. Y. O. lads still were in the running when last night's 80 bouts ended. Twenty unattached entrants had moved down the trail nearer a title. The German-American Athletic association had five left in the struggle and the Northwest gymnasium had four survivors. Two were left in the running from Trafton's gym while the others came from various athletic clubs on the west side.

GARY PICKS CHAMPIONS

Gary, Ind., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The eight champions who will represent Gary in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at Chicago Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28, were crowned tonight in the finals of the annual Gary Post-Tribune-CHICAGO TRIBUNE tournament at Memorial auditorium before 5,000.

Two former champions, Paul Stedina and Anthony Zale, are on the squad. Stedina captured the bantamweight championship by knocking out William Goldsmith in the third round. Zale, welterweight champion last year, won the middleweight title, knocking out Alfred Anderson in the first round.

112 pound class—William Joyce beat John Grady [3].

175 pound class—Paul Luptak beat Charles Sully [3].

Heavyweight class—Bill Kranz knocked out James Johnson [1].

Arcadia Card to Be Parade of Mat Holds

Each of the six headliners will show the fans a fancy hold. Gus Sonnenberg, who meets Jack Smith in the main event in a two out of three fall match, employs the flying tackle almost exclusively. Smith has been experimenting with a new mystery hold which he calls the Yale lock.

Buckets Sonnenberg, who wrestles Ole Oleson in the semi-windup, has decided to concentrate on the inside toe hold, made famous by the late Frank Gotch. Oleson uses the face lock, a novel hold.

Seals Want to Borrow Babe for Year at $35,000

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The San Francisco Seals want to borrow Babe Ruth, the New York Yankees' outfielder, for one year. What's more, they'll pay him $35,000. Charles Graham, vice president of the Seals, said today:

"We would like to have Ruth play in the Pacific Coast league for one season. We make our offer in good faith, based on the esteem we hold for Ruth and taking into consideration what the baseball world owes to him."

Baby Ruths Turn Back Blue Ribbons on Ice, 5-4

The Baby Ruths repeated their earlier victory over the Blue Ribbons last night at the Coliseum in the second game to decide the city champion in the Chicago Amateur Hocky association series, the final score being 5 to 4. The match was played with wild abandon, fourteen penalties being meted out by the officials. The Blue Ribbons outplayed the victors a good part of the time, but heroic work by Poulin, Baby Ruths' goalie, stalled off a tie game. The backstop made 21 saves in the third period to keep his team in front. The Baby Ruths need one more victory to win the city title.

De Paul Adds St. Joseph to Basket Card

Having no regular game scheduled for this week, De Paul university yesterday arranged a contest for tomorrow night with St. Joseph's at Collegeville, Ind. The game was scheduled to prevent the undefeated Blue Demons from suffering a letdown. They have won ten straight games.

De Paul will undergo heavy firing next week, being scheduled to play three games. On Monday night they will travel to Valparaiso. On Wednesday night they will appear at Armour Tech, and Saturday, Feb. 24, will find them at Western State.

MRS. PARDUE WINS OVER MRS. HILL, 1 UP, IN 23 HOLES

Misses Hicks, Orcutt Also Advance in Florida Golf.

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Two golfing mothers, both former western champions, fought it out today in a spectacular match in the first round of the Florida women's championship here and Mrs. Austin Pardue, Minneapolis, finally defeated Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City veteran, one up, in 23 holes.

All even at the 18th, they halved four straight holes and went on to another before the decision could be reached. On the 23d Mrs. Hill faltered and took a five. Mrs. Pardue's four was enough for a win.

Tomorrow Mrs. Pardue will face more than usual heavy going again, for she meets Helen Hicks in the second round.

Other favorites came through today, Miss Hicks winning, 2 and 1, over Miss Katherine Bragaw, Orange, N. J., and Miss Maureen Orcutt, Hawworth, N. J., having an easy time defeating Mrs. William Farris, Boston, 6 and 5.

Another veteran, Mrs. H. C. Sterrett, Hutchinson, Kas., had trouble disposing of Miss Jane Douglas, San Gabriel, Cal. This match ended on the 22d hole.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—Domestic bonds resumed their advance on the stock exchange today with many corporation issues up a point or more. The turnover amounting to $13,718,000, was the smallest for a full five-hour trading day since Jan. 3.

United States government bonds finished generally higher, up 6-32ds to down 5-32ds point. Foreign bonds showed considerable irregularity with advances and declines about evenly balanced.

Low Priced Bonds Rise.

As a rule the lower priced domestic corporation bonds were the principal gainers. The rails, industrials and utilities averaged higher in that order. In the railroad group considerable strength was displayed by the obligations of the Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific, the Erie, New York Central. The New Haven, the Pennsylvania and Southern railway.

Bonds of the Austrian group were irregular today on the news of the disorders in Vienna. The government 7s due 1943 moved up 1½, while the 7s due 1957 broke 3½ points. Austrian corporation issues finished generally lower.

French Issues Higher.

French government and municipal loans were up fractionally to more than a point, and Dutch East Indies issues were bid up half a point to 2¼ points. Most of the loans of the Japanese group finished fractionally easier in quiet trading.

German bonds were irregularly higher. Brazilian loans showed the principal strength in the Latin American group.

A Widow's Worries.

Investors' Guide: I was left a widow recently with some insurance, a part of which I left with the company and on which I am receiving a monthly payment. I can withdraw this on short notice. This has been and is considered a reliable and sound company. When I told this to a party, who holds a position of trust and is a prominent business man, he told me he did not trust insurance companies. His opinion has disturbed and worried me ever since. What shall I do? I shall very much appreciate your opinion. From our past experience we know you are unbiased and reliable and would like to acknowledge thanks at this time.—S. B. W.

Answer: The final decision as to what your course of action should be is one that only you can make.

Any sweeping assertion to the effect that all insurance companies are unsound is a gross exaggeration. There are many life insurance companies that are in excellent financial condition and which will carry out their policy contracts. If the insurance company to which you intrusted your funds happens to fall into that class you need have no worries concerning the safety of your principal.

Of course, if you would rather have your funds invested in sound bonds that would be satisfactory, but we would not advise doing it solely on the misconception that insurance, as an institution, is unsound.

If we can be of any further help, either in sending you a report on the company in which you are interested or in sending you reports on such bonds as you might wish to purchase, we shall be glad to do so.

General Motors and N. A. Aviation.

Investors' Guide: Would you please tell me if General Motors and North American Aviation are related?

—D. V. R.

Answer: General Motors corporation holds its interest in North American Aviation through the 50 per cent owned subsidiary, General Aviation corporation. General Aviation corporation acquired about 43 per cent of North American Aviation stock in exchange for its subsidiary, General Aviation Manufacturing corporation. In addition, General Motors purchased an additional eight per cent of North American Aviation stock through outside sources, thus giving it nominal control of 51 per cent of North American Aviation stock.

Iowa State Insurance Co.

Investors' Guide: Would you please send me the address of Iowa State Insurance company?—K. C. G.

Answer: Iowa State Insurance company, Keokuk, Ia., was taken over by Home Insurance company on Oct. 15, 1931. The address of Home Insurance company is 59 Maiden lane, New York City.

BANKS, BROKERS LAUNCH BATTLE ON BIG MARGINS

Fletcher Bill Seen Threat to Loans.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Wall street and banking interests tomorrow will begin a vigorous battle before congressional committees to reduce the margin requirements of the Fletcher-Rayburn bill which would place speculative activities of the stock market securely under the thumb of governmental regulation.

While the measure is studded with potential controversy its stipulation that purchasers of securities must post 60 per cent cash, with an optional agreement equally objectionable to many brokers, arose as a source of its most protracted dispute.

Both the senate banking committee and the house commerce committee will begin hearings, the former combining with them a continuation of its investigation of stock exchange practices and delving particularly into last spring's pool operations in alcohol stocks. Numerous witnesses prominent in financial circles have been summoned.

Threat to Business Seen.

The bill, as introduced, would make it unlawful to extend credit on securities "in any amount exceeding at any time whichever is higher of [1] eighty per cent of the lowest price at which the security has sold during the preceding three years or [2] forty per cent of the current market price."

Many brokers have asserted they consider this an unfair demand and one that would reduce their business seriously and require the discharge of numerous employés. In reply, proponents of the measure have asserted its intention was to restrict and not to facilitate speculative buying.

But it is the application of these requirements to banks that is developing a vigorous objection. Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the senate committee and co-author of the measure, has made it clear that it was intended to apply to the banks as well as to brokers.

The banks, their spokesmen say, have outstanding loans aggregating many millions for which the borrower furnished securities as collateral. On these securities sums have been loaned in excess of the maximum imposed by the present bill and these upon the effective date of the measure would become outlawed.

Must Liquidate Collateral.

The only recourse, they assert, would be to liquidate the loans, sell the securities, or require the further posting of collateral by the borrower. This, they assert, would prove a hardship both upon themselves and the borrower and might have the effect of seriously impeding the recovery program.

They consider the loans adequately collateralized as they stand and see no need for this provision of the law. They expect to demand some modification.

In reply the proponents of the measure point out that while it is expected to pass at this session it does not become effective until Oct. 1, allowing the banks ample time to bring their loans in an orderly fashion into conformity with the law.

While the exchange spokesmen agree that governmental control is inevitable and that the measure will be enacted in some form, they are anxious that many changes be made, among them the placing of control in a special board upon which the stock exchange would be represented rather than in the federal trade commission as proposed in the bill.

BANKERS FINISH WORKING ON CODE FOR INVESTMENT

Investment bankers from all over the United States, who have been meeting here to study a draft of a code of fair practice for their industry, have virtually finished their work and most of them left the city yesterday for their homes. The work is to be completed in time to have the code submitted at regional meetings to be held in 26 cities on Monday.

Robert E. Christie Jr. of New York, president of the Investment Bankers' association, who has been in charge of the general meetings in Chicago, left yesterday for New York City.

The Chicago regional meeting is to be held under the chairmanship of T. Weller Kimball of Field, Glore & Co. The place has not yet been announced. The Chicago district includes Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa, and Nebraska.

N.Y. Exchange Tightens Rules on Stock Pools

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—Adoption of three important changes in rules of the New York stock exchange was announced today by Richard Whitney, president, following a meeting of the governing committee. At the same time, Mr. Whitney criticized provisions of the proposed federal bill regulating exchanges.

He called the worst feature of the proposed bill the clause under which corporations with listed securities would be required to register their shares with the federal trade commission, holding that powers vested in the commission by the bill were so extensive that the commission might, in effect, control the management of every listed company.

He added that if the powers should be used unwisely they might result in the publication of confidential statistics that would be destructive of American industry, because it would furnish vital information to foreign competitors.

Pools, Specialists Hit.

In describing the three changes in rules adopted at the meeting of the governing committee, Mr. Whitney said:

"The first prohibits members of the exchange, or their firms, or partners participating or having any interest in the profits of any pool, syndicate, or joint account, organized or used intentionally for the purpose of unfairly influencing the market price of any security by means of options or otherwise and with the intention of making a profit thereby. Members and their firms and partners are, likewise, forbidden to manage or finance any such transaction.

"The second prohibits any member acting as a specialist, or his firm, or any of his partners acquiring or granting any option in respect of the stock in which such member is a specialist.

"The third prohibits any specialist disclosing to any person, other than certain committees of the exchange, any information in regard to orders entrusted to him.

Action Follows Long Study.

"These three rules have been adopted as a result of careful study by officials of the exchange which has extended over many months. In August of last year the exchange called upon all members to report all pools and options in which they were interested or of which they had knowledge. As a result of the examination of these records it was felt that a specific rule should be adopted prohibiting pool and option transactions which are intended or actually used to influence unfairly the course of prices.

Discussing the proposed bill for the regulation of exchanges, Mr. Whitney said, a hasty examination had convinced him that it contained both good and bad provisions.

"In many respects," he said, "it deals with matters which are already covered by the rules of the New York Stock exchange, which is conclusive evidence that the purposes of the exchange and the purposes sought to be achieved by the bill are in many respects identical. In general, the bill is aimed at eliminating from the stock market manipulative practices which might unfairly influence the course of prices. It attempts also to prevent excessive speculation. For many years the exchange, by changing its rules, has sought to accomplish the same result."

SEES STOCK BILL MAKING GAMBLER USE OWN MONEY

A man may speculate if he likes even under the proposed federal regulation, but he must use funds that are the greater part his own, John T. Flynn, writer on economic subjects and former editor of the New York Globe, told the Rotary club at the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

"The bill simply proposes to give you a fair chance in the market," he said. "If you want to gamble, it gives you an even break with the next man. However, I don't know of any man who ever won in the long run playing the market. A man can buy stocks as foolishly as he chooses, but I think we ought to agree that when he gambles in stocks he should do so with his own money."

The bill stipulates, he explained, that in order to speculate a man must put up $60, then may use other people's money to the proportion of $40. That is as much as any honest man should expect, Mr. Flynn said. The bill will tend to stop pernicious pool manipulations, give business a better chance to borrow money for legitimate business, and benefit bank depositors by discouraging loans of bank funds to stock market speculators, he said.

Place Cotton Consumption Above Month and Year Ago

The New York cotton exchange service estimates cotton consumption by domestic mills at 515,000 bales in January, compared with the census bureau's figures of 548,000 bales for December and 470,000 for January, 1933.

Sales of the First National stores for the four weeks ending Jan. 27 amounted to $7,899,714, compared with $7,210,918 in the same period last year, an increase of 9.55 per cent.

NRA Lightens Code Control of Small Firms

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The national recovery administration yielded today to obstacles in the way of codifying small local trade units on national lines, reversed past policies, and formally announced it would promote establishment of regional agreements to suit local conditions. This will extend only to such service establishments as are purely local in character and will not include retail stores and agencies which handle nationally produced goods.

At the same time the NRA issued regulations by which establishments remaining under national codes must post prominently the labor requirements of their codes, together with detailed directions on how employés may file complaints of violation. Failure to comply with these rules will be punishable by a $500 fine or six months' imprisonment.

May Establish Area Rules.

By the departure from the purely national code policy, such establishments as barber shops, restaurants, laundries, taxicab fleets, and other service enterprises may subscribe to a loose national compact and wherever they desire establish competitive rules by city or trade area grouping.

The NRA will supervise the regional agreements in a general way to protect consumers from discrimination, authorize use by subscribers of the Blue Eagle, and remove it from violators, but will leave policing of the agreement to the local trade groups and to such local authorities as possess legal power under state laws.

Retail stores, filling stations, sales agencies, and "outlets for productive enterprises of a national character" are to remain under national codes largely so that they may continue to serve as regulators of manufacturers and distributors through the requirements of retail codes which ban sweatshop products, limit prison made goods, and generally require the signers to buy only under the Blue Eagle.

Must Follow National Standard.

Generally, it will be insisted that labor regulations on wages, hours, etc., conform to the established national standard, leaving trade practices such as prices, hours of store operation, and the like as principal subjects for local rule.

Although NRA had definitely decided against regional codes earlier in its career, officials regarded that development as forced upon them by circumstances arising largely through the Blue Eagle campaign, which made it difficult to draw a line excluding all local establishments from the patriotic drive for reëmployment purposes.

Beer Ingredients to Cost 125 Millions This Year

American brewers will spend about 125 million dollars during 1934 for malt, hops, and other ingredients for beer, according to an estimate made yesterday at a meeting of the fifteen trustees of the Master Brewers Association of America at the Germania club.

BANKS MAY BUY U. S. BONDS, STILL RETAIN FUNDS AS DEPOSITS

Banks and trust companies subscribing to new government bond issues have been notified by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago that they may keep their subscription funds on hand in the form of government deposits upon proper application.

Under the ruling the banks may turn a neat profit, inasmuch as under present regulations they do not have to pay interest on such government deposits. Both reserve member and non-member banks were notified that they may apply for the government deposits, which in no instance may exceed a bank's combined capital and surplus.

Banks seeking such deposits are asked to forward their applications with their subscriptions for the new government issues. The method is the same as used during the war financing period, when the government left the proceeds of bond issues on deposit. The government may withdraw the funds at any time, but the banks can subscribe to new issues and get new deposits under the present system.

SIMPSON, SHEDD FAMILIES APPEAL FIELD STOCK TAX

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Seven petitions appealing taxes totaling $659,981 for 1930 and 1931 growing out of the sale of stock in Marshall Field & Co. were filed today with the board of tax appeals by members of the Simpson and Shedd families of Chicago or their trustees.

All petitions claimed the bureau of internal revenue, in estimating the capital net gain resulting from the stock sales, computed the book value of the stock as of the date it was given the petitioner or the trust instead of the actual market value. The petitioners claimed the market value was higher, and therefore the gain from the sale was less.

James Simpson appealed a claim of $17,412. Mrs. Jessie McLaren Simpson appealed a $245,937 assessment. Trustees for trusts for James Simpson Jr., John McLaren Simpson, and William Simpson appealed respective claims of $89,642, $94,333, and $94,936. All three trusts were set up by gifts of stock from the elder Simpson in 1920. Trustees for Helen Shedd Reed and Laura A. Shedd Schweppe appealed claims for each trust of $58,859. The trusts were set up by gifts of stock from John G. Shedd in 1918.

Dollar Sinks Within a Cent of New Parity

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—The dollar declined today to the nearest approach to its new parity that it has reached since the revaluation of gold. On the old basis the final quotation on the French franc indicated a value of 59.97 cents, less than a cent from the dollar's devaluated basis of 59.06 cents. In terms of its new parity this was equal to more than a cent premium against the franc.

The franc stiffened in the face of further disturbing political and social disturbances abroad. At the close it was quoted at 6.53¼ cents, an advance of 5¾ points from Saturday. The rise was attributed to covering by professionals who had sold the franc short in anticipation of more serious disturbances than occurred.

The British pound likewise was strong but reacted later and closed half a cent lower in the day. Other foreign exchanges also stiffened, especially the Swiss franc, Dutch guilder and Belgian franc. The Austrian schilling was little disturbed by the political flareup in that nation, inasmuch as Austrian exchange dealings are so restricted as to be almost nominal. New York dealers quoted the schilling at .25 of a cent over Saturday's level at 13.85 cents.

The price of gold in the London open market jumped to 137 shillings 11 pence, which with sterling at $5.04 was the dollar equivalent of $34.35 an ounce. This made the spread between the United States treasury's and world's prices 47 cents, which was expected to result in further gold shipments.

STORAGE BUTTER MOVEMENT SETS JANUARY RECORD

The movement of butter out of cold storage in the United States during January totaled 35,198,000 pounds, according to the monthly cold storage estimate issued by the department of agriculture. This was the heaviest ever recorded in January, exceeding the 1933 movement by 30,988,000 pounds, and exceeding the 5 year average movement for the month by 22,059,000 pounds.

Total stocks on hand, however, continued at a record high level. The Feb. 1 total was 75,051,000 pounds, or 58,218,000 pounds more than last year, and 41,629,000 pounds above the 5 year average.

There were only 52,000 cases of eggs in storage on Feb. 1, 23,000 less than last year and 320,000 less than the average. Holdings were reduced 679,000 cases in January, exceeding 1933 withdrawals by 595,000 cases, but falling under the average movement by 78,000 cases.

Farmers National Leases 2 Large Elevators Here

The Farmers' National Grain corporation has secured leases on the Rock Island railroad elevators "C" and "D" annexes, which have a combined grain storage capacity of 4,250,000 bushels, and will start to operate the elevators July 1, it was announced yesterday. The elevators which have been operated for over 30 years by the Shafer interests are located on the Calumet river and have facilities for loading and unloading by rail or lake.

Federal Power Bureau Adds to Authority in New Ruling

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration, through the Federal Power Commission, today again asserted its authority over development of the nation's power resources by requiring license of a project intended to produce power for industrial use.

The commission acted under the water power act, reversing a ruling made by its executive secretary in 1929 which supposedly withdrew federal jurisdiction over construction of a power project by the New Kanawha Power company on New river near Hawks Nest, W. Va.

This action is the second decision in recent weeks by which the commission seeks to extend and define its jurisdiction. It is one of several steps, such as the Tennessee valley development, aimed at development and control by the governmnt of watr power resources.

Claim Navigation Rights.

The basis for insisting that the New Kanawha company accept the commission's jurisdiction was that federal control over the flow of the New river is essential to protection of navigation on the Kanawha river, just above the New river site, on which the government has "already spent and is spending millions of dollars."

The New Kanawha company previously sought to avoid federal jurisdiction on the ground that interstate commerce would not be affected by the proposed construction, and in 1929 the executive secretary of the commission apparently agreed with this contention in a letter to the company advising that the case would be considered closed.

May Attack Holding Company Fees.

The present commission found today that the executive secretary acted without authority in recognizing the "attempted withdrawal," and advised the company that it intended to act on the company's declaration of intention to build the project.

A recent decision by Chairman Frank McNinch held that the Louisville Hydroelectric company claimed $800,000 in excess of the actual cost of a project, by failing to prove that management fees to a holding company were properly part of the cost. This decision indicated a way for attack on management fees and holding companies not now stated in the law, in this connection the commission has asked for legislation to give it more power over holding companies.

FORECAST DELAY IN FINAL BANK GUARANTY PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—The administration program, it was learned today, calls for an amendment to the federal deposit insurance law under which the temporary fund, insuring deposits in banks only up to $2,500 with limited liability, would be continued until July 1, 1935, and operation of the permanent fund delayed at least until that time.

Such a proposal is understood to have the support of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and the sympathetic approval of the federal reserve board and treasury department officials. It is expected that definite recommendations will shortly be made to congress.

The senate banking committee today asked the department for its views on continuing the present temporary insurance plan for one year with defects in the permanent plan, which would become operative at midyear, to be corrected during that period.

Concessions Agreeable.

The treasury preferred the alternative plan of fixing up the permanent plan now and losing no time in putting it into effect. Secretary Morgenthau's advisors let it be known there would be no objection to placing a limitation on the liabilities of the banks to assessments for the insurance fund.

The banks have construed provisions of the law as making the one half of one per cent assessment under the temporary plan the maximum amount that a sound bank could be called upon to furnish to meet the needs of the corporation in paying off depositors of failed institutions. They interpret the permanent plan as authorizing unlimited assessments.

As the law stands at present, the temporary fund would be liquidated on July 1 of this year and the permanent plan then would become effective. Under this, deposits not exceeding $10,000 would be insured 100 per cent; those from $10,000 to $50,000, 75 per cent, and deposits in excess of $50,000, 50 per cent. There has been much opposition by some of the banks to the permanent insurance plan and particularly against that feature of it which would permit unlimited assessments against sound banks to pay off depositors in banks which might fail. As a result, the whole subject has been given the closest scrutiny of the administration fiscal experts.

Study Various Methods.

There have been various suggestions, such as limiting deposits to be insured under the permanent plan to $10,000, a limitation of the assessment which could be made on member banks, and the assumption by the government of a greater share of the risk. There has come up for discussion also the magnitude of the task of making by July 1 the strict examinations of the banks called for prior to their entry into the permanent fund.

As a result of these deliberations it now has been decided that the wisest policy to meet all angles of the situation would be to delay the operations under the permanent plan for another year so as to give further time for the study of the various arguments for and against the permanent features of the legislation.

Opponents of the permanent plan in congress have been seeking to obtain a change, but this activity has been chiefly among Republicans up to this time. Of the latter, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan has introduced an amendment which would relegate the permanent plan to the discard.

Pennsy Places Huge Order for Steel, Copper Wire

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania railroad announced it placed orders today for approximately 15,000 tons of steel and more than a million pounds of copper wire and cable to be used in its roadway electrification work now under way between New York, Philadelphia, and Washington. The orders followed the beginning of actual construction last week on the road's $77,000,000 improvement and employment program.

Unite Utility Investors to Oppose Curbs

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

What promises to be a concerted nation-wide effort to defend the position of the country's 10 million utility investors, which has been jeopardized by recent anti-utility legislation and the threat of public competition, is taking form in Chicago in the American Federation of Utility Investors.

RUSH C. BUTLER. [Moffett Photo.]

The purposes of the federation and the progress made since its incorporation as a nonprofit organization late last year were sketched yesterday by Rush C. Butler, prominent Chicago attorney, who is serving as counsel for the group. Support of the federation's program and its effort to organize security holders is being given by the larger public utility groups of the country, Mr. Butler said.

Financial Support Not Accepted.

Mr. Butler emphasized that the federation is accepting no financial support from the companies. In this way, he said, the federation remains free to act independently of the companies as such and to take issue with them should the welfare of the utility security justify such action. Support of the organization's activities by the leading companies has been confined to circularization among their stockholders of copies of the statement outlining the federation's purposes. The companies are purchasing the circulars from the federation at cost.

Among the larger groups which are circularizing their stockholders are the United Gas Improvement company, Public Service company of New Jersey, and the Standard Gas and Electric company systems. Other groups include the United Light and Power and the North American companies.

Advisory Committee Formed.

The federation has an advisory committee of 71 representing interests in all sections of the country. Serving on this committee and on the board of directors are individuals who are large utility investors in their own right and others who represent important institutional holdings. Among the latter are representatives of several educational and charitable institutions whose endowments are tied up in part in public utility securities.

Notre Dame university, Chicago Council of Social Agencies, Jewish Charities of Chicago, and the Catholic Church Extension society are among the educational and charitable institutions represented on the advisory committee. Also represented are banks, insurance companies, investment trusts and estates.

The eastern utility companies have been swinging behind the federation's program with increasing enthusiasm in the last 10 days, Mr. Butler said.

Criticizes Public Expenditure.

The use of public moneys to set up power companies to compete with and threaten destruction to the investments of investors in private utility enterprise was characterized by Mr. Butler as a "flagrant breach of public trust." The taxes which a public utility investor pays into the federal coffer are being used in some instances, he pointed out, to destroy the wealth of the taxpayer and dry up his source of income.

He estimated that the eastern companies alone will send the federation's message to more than 3,000,000 holders of utility securities.

"The response so far has been most encouraging," he said, "and we are just getting under way."

NEW U. S. LOAN OF 800 MILLION FLOATED IN DAY

Second Big Move to Borrow Put Over.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—Floating an 800 million dollar loan in a single day, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today put over the second big borrowing move necessary to finance the federal government up to the close of its fiscal year on June 30.

In raising the loan, the treasury offered 400 million dollars' worth of 2½ per cent 22 month notes and 400 million dollars' worth of 3 per cent three year notes. They were placed on sale this morning, and at six o'clock this evening Secretary Morgenthau announced that the whole of both issues had been sold. Total subscriptions far exceeded the treasury's offering of securities, the department indicated.

Money to Pay Bills.

All of the 800 million which the treasury was seeking to raise will go into the cash fund out of which the government meets its current bills. This fund has now been swollen to more than five billion 100 million dollars, of which, however, 2 billion is set aside for the treasury's currency stabilization fund.

Floating of the new loan closes the treasury's second successful borrowing campaign since President Roosevelt announced at the opening of the new year that the government would have to raise 10 billion dollars in addition to its tax revenues in order to pay its bills through June 30. Two weeks ago the first of this borrowing was done when the treasury floated a billion dollar combination issue of notes and certificates.

Its new loan put the federal government approximately 26 billion dollars in debt. The war time peak of the debt was only 26½ billion dollars. Before this fiscal year is over, however, the treasury is expected to owe more than 29½ billion dollars.

More Billions Are Needed.

At least 3 billion dollars more must be borrowed by the treasury in order to meet the rest of the government's anticipated bills in this fiscal year. In addition, the treasury must refinance with new borrowing, billions of dollars in maturing securities.

In closing the subscription books on the 800 million dollar loan, Secretary Morgenthau announced that subscriptions mailed before midnight will be accepted. Others filed later will be rejected. The new securities are to be issued to their purchasers on Feb. 19. The total amount of subscriptions and the allotments to bidders will be announced about Friday.

Stock of Gold Held by U. S. Climbs to $7,058,309,984

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—United States gold stocks today stood at $7,058,309,984. This figure last Saturday represented a $40,000,000 increase since Feb. 1, the first day the gold supply was listed in terms of the revalued dollar. The Feb. 10 total was a $14,000,000 increase over Feb. 9 and was accompanied by a further gain in the dollar profit on the gold stock from $2,806,817,226 to $2,806,937,331. At its new value of $35 an ounce, the government holds more than 200,000,000 ounces of gold.

U. S. TO SEEK HIGH COURT RULING ON OIL CODE DECISION

Texas Jury Indicts 5 for Violations.

Tyler, Tex., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Confronted by an adverse ruling from a United States district judge, the federal government moved today to take to the Supreme court, if necessary, its fight to establish the constitutionality of the petroleum code under the national recovery act.

The federal grand jury for the eastern district of Texas returned five indictments charging violations of the code despite the fact that Federal Judge Randolph Bryant held yesterday against oil concerns which had not signed the code and dealt only in intrastate commerce.

Federal Case Strengthened.

However, the likelihood of continued federal regulation of the oil industry in east Texas was strengthened late today when Federal Judge Randolph Bryant left for his home in Sherman without signing an order based on the Panama Refining company case opinion which he rendered yesterday.

"The charges were filed on points held unconstitutional," said Charles I. Francis, special assistant to the United States attorney general, "but the jury went ahead and indicted them anyway."

The defendants, independent operators, were: The McMurrey corporation and A. R. McMurrey as president, L. M. Harris, P. E. Parsons, J. D. Wrather and J. W. Smith, Roy Taylor, W. B. Gossage, Marvin Jones and John M. Kerr.

List Separate Charges.

The indictments listed separate charges, which included failure of a producer and refiner to make monthly reports and failure to keep books and records open for inspection of the government.

Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior, said in Washington that the government expected the indictments would be quashed, thus permitting an immediate movement of the case to the United States Supreme court. He said that should the highest court overrule the lower court and uphold the government on constitutional grounds, the oil administrator could go back and prosecute those who produced oil in excess of their allowables.

OIL OUTPUT UP 162,550 BARRELS A DAY LAST WEEK

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 162,550 barrels in the week ended Feb. 10, totaling 2,284,200 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California increased 136,450 barrels to 1,816,000 barrels.

Imports of crude and refined oils at principal United States ports totaled 575,000 barrels, a daily average of 82,143 barrels, against 763,000 barrels, a daily average of 109,000 barrels, for the previous week.

BUTTER FUTURES REACH NEW HIGHS; EGGS FIRM

Butter futures advanced to new highs on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yeserday, closing ¾ to ⅞ cents per pound higher, equal to $144 to $168 per car. Eggs were unchanged to ¾ cent higher. Potatoes declined 5 cents.

February butter sold up to 23 cents and March to 22⅞ cents on active new buying and covering support. A heavy movement of storage stocks accounted for much of the buying. The four markets in a two day period took out over 2,000,000 pounds or 1,600,000 pounds more than last year. Eggs were quiet.

Potatoes opened 10 cents down as a result of lower cash prices, but buying improved near the close and part of the loss was recovered. Sales: Butter, 77 cars; eggs, 17 cars; potatoes, 12 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 2 cars. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Raw Sugar was quiet today and spot prices were unchanged at 3.40. There was no general buying interest at this level, although there did appear to be a fair amount available and the only sale confirmed was 5,000 bags of Porto Rican for February shipped to an outport refiner at the quoted price. In a quiet market where trading seemed to be restricted on account of uncertainty over developments at Washington in connection with the allotment plan, sugar futures held generally steady after early setbacks with the market closing 1 point lower to 3 net higher. Sales were only 7,850 tons.

BALDWIN LOSS IN 1933 $3,857,743; ENGINE BUSINESS IS SLIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—Of the Baldwin Locomotive Works' business in 1933, 87 per cent was outside the locomotive field, George H. Houston, president, discloses in his annual report. This compared with 71 per cent in 1932. Sales of locomotive products amounted to $1,037,104 in 1933, against $3,034,694 in 1932.

Total sales were $8,250,319 against $10,596,859. Net loss was $3,857,743, approximating preliminary estimates, against loss of $4,078,131 in 1932.

The report states that 99.18 per cent of the company's $12,000,000 of three year notes that matured on March 1, 1933, were deposited in exchange for an equal amount of five year consolidated bonds. Since the exchange plan was declared operative, subscription warrants for 211,800 shares of common stock have been exercised. Warrants for the purchase of 268,000 common shares remained outstanding on Dec. 31. Nearly all the stock bought was paid for with consolidated bonds, resulting in a reduction of $1,055,600 in bonded debt. Consolidated net current assets were decreased from $15,393,955 to $13,498,039.

U. S. KEEPING EYE ON SPECULATION IN SILVER MART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—Chief attention is being given to the New York market in the treasury's investigation of speculative holdings of silver, Secretary Morgenthau said today.

While holders of silver "are being followed up wherever they are," Mr. Morgenthau explained, the treasury is particularly concerned with the country's principal market, which is in New York City. The investigation is only partially completed, it was stated, and Secretary Morgenthau declined to indicate whether he would make public a list of those who are holding silver.

The silver stocks of the country, according to the treasury daily statement for Feb. 9, were $840,000 in bullion, under the act of May 12, 1933, $506,654,861 in silver dollars and $35,721,421 in bullion under general fund assets.

Silver received by the United States mints under the President's proclamation of Dec. 21, 1933, amounted, for the week ended Feb. 9, to 375,995 fine ounces. Of this amount the San Francisco mint received 311,439 fine ounces and the Denver mint 64,556 fine ounces. Receipts for the previous week were 117,554 fine ounces and total receipts, up to and including Feb. 9, have been 590,652 fine ounces.

GENERAL MOTORS EMPLOYES GET STOCK, SAVINGS

Distribution by General Motors corporation of $8,499,670 and 56,433 shares of its common stock to 28,393 employés was announced yesterday by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president.

The beneficiaries had invested in the savings and investment fund class of 1928 which matured Dec. 31, 1933. Of the total disbursement, $5,084,485 represents the employés own original savings and the balance the interest and investment fund benefits paid by the corporation. This is the tenth class which has matured under the plan, which was inaugurated in 1919.

Investment Doubled.

Investments made in 1928 by the employés more than doubled at maturity. For example, each employé who in 1928 saved $25 a month, or $300 for the year, the maximum annual amount allowed in the fund, received at maturity not only his original $300 but also $114.35 in interest, plus $207.17 in investment fund benefits paid by the corporation.

A new five year class is formed each year and one matures each year. At the end of every forming class General Motors corporation contributes 25 cents to each dollar paid in by employés. The contribution accrues to the employés over the ensuing five years.

38,000 Still on Rolls.

"The employés' savings and investment plan has been of inestimable value, particularly during these last few critical years," commented Mr. Sloan. "It has proven a profitable investment to our employés and has given them a measure of security which probably they would not have had otherwise.

PROFIT TAKING IN COTTON BRINGS SHARP REACTION

Trading in cotton was heavy yesterday with action nervous and prices covering a wide range. There was good commission house buying early, as well as by speculators, and prices moved to a new high level with May in Chicago up to 12.65 cents. Later heavy selling for profits in all markets, especially in New York, drove prices sharply lower.

At the close futures in Chicago were 29 to 37 points net lower, although at the extreme low level of the day there was a loss of around $2 per bale. New York closed 16 to 22 points net lower on futures and 20 points, off on spots at 12.45 cents. New Orleans was closed for Mardi Gras. Houston dropped 15 points to 12.20 cents. Galveston closed at 12.25 cents, off 15 points. Prices:

STOCKS FIRMER IN CALM TRADE; NEWS CONFLICTS

Washington and Foreign Events Watched.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—Some measure of confidence returned to speculative Wall street today. Aviation shares continued to be offered rather freely, particularly United Aircraft and Wright; the alcohols had their troubles and some of the so-called pivotals, such as American Tobacco, Western Union, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas, and the like, found the going a bit difficult. But on the whole the list was able to negotiate substantial progress on the day.

The week-end turn of events at Washington, namely, the move toward drastic Stock exchange regulation and the presidential order canceling all air mail order contracts, and the troubled situations abroad, appeared to have put a damper on speculative initiative for the time being and trading was very largely a professional affair.

Industrial News Cheerful.

News from the business field was cheerful enough, all things considered, including gains in steel operations and rising automobile production. Apparently, however, traders considered this good news very largely offset by the possibilities of the plan to regulate stock and other security exchanges, and preferred to await developments on the hearings on the Fletcher-Rayburn bill, due to begin tomorrow.

Of the different market groups, the mining group made about the best net showing. U. S. Smelting was a feature, reaching the best price on record with an upturn of around 5 points, about half of which gain the issue had later to give up. Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Kennecott, Anaconda, and other silver producers were quite active and strong. Among the gold producers, Homestake rose 3 points and pulled McIntyre and Alaska ahead fractionally.

Aviation Issues Under Pressure.

Selling orders poured in against United Aircraft all day and the issue, which has a heavy stake in the air mail cancellation order, was driven down 5 points before it could find a footing. Support began to appear in the afternoon, however, and the final gong found the stock back within a point of its previous close. Wright lost 3 points on a flood of small transactions and Bendix aviation and Douglas were kicked about before pulling themselves together to recover to around their previous levels.

Several of the rails performed impressively. Union Pacific scored a net gain of nearly 4 points, and New York Central bettered its standing by a point or so.

American Can, Wrigley Rise.

Unsettlement of the alcohol shares was due to fears of some discomfiting revelations regarding pool manipulation in their behalf, which is expected to come out of the forthcoming hearings on the regulation bill.

Automobile shares benefited by further optimistic production estimates. Nash and General Motors each rose major fractions, and Chrysler's extreme gain was around two points.

INTERLAKE IRON REDUCES LOSS; SALES INCREASE

Increasing its net sales substantially the Interlake Iron corporation reduced its net loss for 1933 to $817,331, compared with $2,169,887 in 1932 and with $1,357,502 in 1931, according to the report issued yesterday.

Net sales amounted to $11,090,846, against $8,920,836 in the preceding year. Before provision for depreciation and other charges there was a profit for 1933 of $303,533.

In each of the quarters of last year the net loss was materially less than that for the corresponding period of 1932. The net loss for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1933, was $98,780, against $224,838 in the last quarter of the preceding year.

Current assets as of Dec. 31, 1933, totaled $11,274,393, of which $549,700 was in cash and $9,080,681 in inventories at approximate cost or market, whichever should be the lower. Current liabilities totaled $1,599,724.

Large Orders Are Taken at Chicago Apparel Show

Goods amounting to more than $527,000 were sold by exhibitors at the wash dress and children's apparel show which ended last Saturday at the Merchandise mart, announced T. J. Reed, general manager of the mart, yesterday. Chicago is well on its way as a market center for this type of merchandise, Mr. Reed said.

LIVE STOCK HITS BEST SEASONAL LEVELS IN YEARS

Hogs Lead Improvement; Set Top of $4.85.

All live stock registered price gains here yesterday. Some divisions set up the highest February marks in several years with sales in sheep and yearlings going back four years for higher records for this season. Hogs again led the rise, but cattle and lambs followed closely on the upswing.

The average hog price at $4.50 was the highest for this month since 1931, while the peak price at $4.85 equaled th previous three year high mark for February. News that the federal surplus relief corporation had cut its daily quota 25 per cent yesterday after filling out the previous week's shortage on Monday, tended to slow up trading in the 200 pound averages and lighter weights for a time, but all classes finished at the high point of the session on buying by local interests.

Costs Up 39% in 20 Days.

Packing houses have been working on a hand to mouth basis in the fresh pork trade because of the spectacular rise in the costs of hogs including the processing tax during the last two weeks. Including the $1.50 per hundred weight processing tax, yesterday's cost of hogs to the packer shows a rise of $1.70 or 39 per cent compared with 20 days ago, and it is $2.35 higher than on the same day last year, a rise of 64 per cent.

Buying by local houses yesterday indicated they needed hogs to take care of the urgent call for fresh pork. The government bought only 4,000, against 6,400 Monday, most of which were selected light and light butchers at $4.60 to $4.75.

Cattle of Light Weights.

The Lenten season, which opens today, had little or no effect on live stock prices.

Cattle receipts were moderate at 7,000 yesterday but offerings ran lighter in weight and the tonnage of beef in the supply was below average for Tuesday. Brisk competition centered in the best grades of light and medium weights, boosting quotations 15 to 25 cents.

The only weakness found in the cattle market yesterday was the class federal buyers are buying. The government bough tabout 1,000 for food for the needy.

Only a small share of the steers were good enough to bring above $6.75. One load of yearlings averaging 924 pounds topped the list at $7.25, while $7.00 was paid for 996 pound averages. The bulk sold at $4.50 to $6.75.

All interests bought freely of $9.75 wooled lambs yesterday, paying this figure for stock weighing up to 98 pounds. Lambs shorn of their fleece just a few days ago brought $8.00. Wooled yearlings were sold up to $9.00 and yearling ewes brought $7.50. Matured ewes averaging 122 pounds gained to $5.25, all new four year high marks in these divisions.

LENGTHY TRADE WAR PREDICTED BETWEEN BRITAIN AND FRANCE

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—As the trade war between France and England got into full swing today it was considered probable in political quarters here that it might become a long and bitter commercial fight between the two nations. While the British government is certain to reply to the latest French note, the dignity of officials here and in Paris, well informed persons believed, will not permit either country to back down in the near future.

Meanwhile the British government searched for new commercial ties. The Associated Press was informed today by members of the Russian trade delegation that a new Anglo-Russian trade pact will be signed Thursday by the British board of trade. Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, and I. M. Maisky, Russian ambassador to London, will sign the treaty. The pact provides for the re-establishment of official commercial relations between the two nations, broken off since last April. It must be ratified by the house of commons.

British shipping interests today feared a considerable loss in business with the French colonies as a result of the trade war which began last midnight.

PROVISION TRADE ACTIVE; LARD FUTURES ADVANCE

More active buying of lard futures due to the advance of 25 cents in hogs and the upturn in cotton early in the day, resulted in a net advance of 5 to 10 cents on lard futures yesterday.

Cash lots were up sharply, with a close on regular of $6.42½. Loose closed at $6.07½ and leaf closed at $6.12½.

Liverpool lard was steady to a shade higher. Exports were 750,000 pounds on Monday.

GRAINS FOLLOW STOCKS, COTTON; CLOSE IS MIXED

Corn Improves Slightly; Ignore Routine News.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Action of the cotton and stock markets largely dominated fluctuations in grains yesterday. Speculative interest was light and final prices irregular. Little attention was paid to routine developments but some uneasiness was displayed over the proposed bills in congress for further regulation of commodity exchanges.

Wheat fluctuated erratically within a range of 1⅝ cents, an early break being followed by a strong rally when stocks and cotton started upward. When the latter broke wheat followed and closed unchanged to ⅛ of a cent lower with May at 90¼ cents and July at 89 cents.

Coarse Grains Mixed.

Corn, oats, and other grains were affected to some extent by the action of wheat. Sufficient short covering developed in corn to hold prices above Saturday's finish a good part of the day and the close was ⅛ to ¼ of a cent higher with May at 52 cents. Oats finished unchanged to ⅛ of a cent higher with May at 36⅝ cents while rye was unchanged to ⅜ of a cent lower at 60¾ cents for May. Barley was ⅜ of a cent lower, May closing at 50 cents.

The winter wheat crop in parts of Oklahoma, eastern Colorado, and western Kansas was benefitted Saturday and early Sunday by snows ranging from a trace to as much as 8 inches, but these reports had comparatively little effect on the market.

Winnipeg developed a heavy undertone and closed ⅜ to ½ of a cent lower than Saturday. Liverpool was unchanged to ½ of a cent lower.

Terminal Stocks Decline.

Stocks of wheat at terminal markets continue to be drawn on heavily by mills with the total dropping 2,511,000 bushels last week to 107,008,000 bushels, the smallest since July, 1929. This compares with 149,452,000 bushels last year. Stocks of corn increased 479,000 bushels despite the small movement, and now aggregate 65,831,000 bushels against 31,392,000 last year.

Reports that farmers are signing corn-hog production control contracts freely in the main corn belt coupled with small offerings of cash grain to arrive had some effect on corn futures which held part of their early upturn in the face of easiness in wheat. Should the AAA be able to secure a 100 per cent signup on its corn contracts, it was pointed out, the acreage for the 1934 crop would be the smallest in over 30 years.

Five Hundred Slain in Austria; Fighting Between Troops and Socialists Continues—Touhy Gang on Trial Again

CASUALTIES GROW IN AUSTRIAN CIVIL WAR AS TROOPS TURN GUNS ON SOCIALIST CENTERS IN VIENNA; FIGHT IN STREETS. Bird's-eye view of Vienna, the historic capital of Austria, which is in grip of civil warfare as forces of Chancellor Dollfuss battle the Socialists. The Socialist party has been dissolved and the mayor of Vienna jailed. The Fascist troops shelled the Karl Marx hof, largest apartment house in Europe, yesterday and many are believed to have been slain. Fighting continues in many cities in the provinces. (Story on page 1.)
